SOLVES PROBLEM OF SANITATION

WHERE 'WE WILL' THERE'S A WAY
—Chicago's New Proverb.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

Physically and in many other ways Chicago and Buenos Aires are much alike. Chicago lies no lower and flatter on the sandy shore of Lake Michigan than does the capital of the Argentine on the muddy littoral of the Rio de la Plata, just where that huge river discharges its sluggish and muddy burden into the ocean. Each is primarily a commercial city, and has grown with tremendous rapidity, chiefly because of its favorable location as a center of trade. When Chicago had 420,000 people Buenos Aires was a packed and huddled city of 200,000. Now it has a population of 1,200,000, and boasts itself the largest Spanish city in the world.

ONE sails 6,000 miles—twice as far as to Liverpool—southeast of New York to meet the muddy yellow stream which the Rio de la Plata sends out for miles into the blue waters of the ocean. Not many years ago ocean steamers anchored eight or ten miles out from land, and freight and passengers were unloaded into native tubs of primitive character, which crawled in as close to shore as the shallow and muddy bottom would permit. There a second transfer was made to big carts backed down into the water to receive passengers and luggage.

Naturally, under such conditions commerce increased but slowly. First of all, the people of Buenos Aires set themselves to build proper facilities for handling shipping. The great mouth of the Rio de la Plata is 120 miles wide at this point, and every year its waters carry down millions of tons of soil from the interior.

Out of the mud banks a deep harbor was dredged and five miles of splendid docks, fitted with modern machinery, were built, at a cost of $40,000,000. The harbor was protected by self-scouring jetties, which carry the deposit-laden stream out further into deep water.

Now that ocean going ships could tie up alongside a dock, Buenos Aires became at once one of the world's great seaports. So rapidly did the foreign commerce of the republic grow that presently even the five miles of dockage became overcrowded and $20,000,000 more have now been appropriated to increase the shipping facilities.

WHEN Buenos Aires was originally laid out its straight streets were made very narrow as a protection against the heat. But as the town leaped forward in population the cramped streets caused tremendous congestion.

Nearly twenty years ago the city rose to this emergency and partially remedied it by cutting a splendid avenue more than a hundred feet wide for a mile through the heart of the town, running from the water front back to the residence district.

This work necessitated the tearing down of hundreds of small houses and shops and has resulted in a really beautiful boulevard lined with tall, plane trees. As a part of the city's policy in preventing congestion and increasing civic beauty all the buildings along this street have been kept down to a uniform and not great height.

BUT street congestion still remained a great problem in Buenos Aires, and, in another effort to relieve it, a comprehensive system of subways, intended to take all the street car lines off the surface in the downtown district, is now in process of construction. The contract is in the hands of an English syndicate, which has already completed one big section of the bore and has started work on the other two.

But not even putting the rapid transit facilities under ground will make the old streets in the heart of the town anything but narrow lanes. The Calle Florida, for instance, along which are located the principal retail shops, is so narrow that

BUILDING TRADES 'LOCKOUT' ENDED; 30,000 GET JOBS

Permanent Peace Board Agreed On; Unions Yield to Dropping "Maintenance Men."

CAR STRIKE CALLED OFF

New County Traction Owners Reach Settlement with Employes; Trolleys to Run Again Today.

MEN GRANTED INCREASE IN WAGES

Labor troubles were adjusted with a sudden bang in Chicago yesterday.

The "lockout" of 30,000 building trades men employed on $40,000,000 worth of work ended at night—a victory for arbitration. The men will return to work on Monday.

The strike which tied up the County Traction lines was called off. The men reached an agreement with new owners of the lines, adn cars start today.

Settlement of the building "lockout" was effected by the twelve members of the joint conference committee, who signed an agreement on all the difficulties.

The agreement was called a signal victory by the representatives of the Building Construction Employers' association, which ordered the lockout.

Arbitration for the Future.

The principal clause of the agreement and the one that affects possible labor difficulties in future in Chicago was the provision for a joint arbitration board, which will settle all strikes and wage disagreements. No strikes or lockouts will be ordered in the future unless efforts at arbitration fail.

The lockout started on June 19. It followed an ultimatum from the Employers' association to the trades council that some 250 strikers should return to work and that "maintenance men" be done away with.

Work to Resume Monday.

Work on the following large buildings will be resumed on Monday:

Consumers' building.
Continental and Commercial National bank.
Two Marshall Field buildings.
Conway buildings.
Reid-Murdoch building.
Charles A. Stevens building.
Webster Annex.
Fort Dearborn hotel.
Jarvis Hunt building.
Commonwealth Edison.
Ford Automobile company.
County hospital.
Northwestern University buildings.
Six buildings costing $10,000,000 in the stockyards.

Joint Committee on the Job.

The joint conference committee will remain operative with all the powers of the joint arbitration board until the membership of that board is finally decided on.

On the joint conference committee are: For the Building Trades council—Simon O'Donnell, president; Peter S. Shaughnessy, John A. Metz, Chris Timmins, F. E. Thoman, and W. G. Gunther. For the employers—Charles W. Gindele, president of the Building Construction Employers' association; W. A. Winslow, John Griffiths, E. V. Johnson, Oscar A. Reum, G. A. E. Kohler, and A. Lanquist.

Establishment of the joint arbitration committee was considered as a victory by the officials of the Building Trades council. Simon O'Donnell, president, said he has been striving for years to leave the labor disputes go to an arbitrating board.

The only wage question settled resulted in an increase for marble setters and helpers. That craft had been on strike for the last six months. An increase of 25 cents a day, effective on Oct. 1, was granted the setters and 15 cents a day to the helpers.

McEwen New Traction Head.

The new owners of the County Traction lines are said to be residents of Oak Park and Chicago. Heads of western Chicago factories, whose employés use the lines to get to work, are heavily interested.

According to a statement, former Judge Willard M. McEwen becomes president of the new company.

The transfer was made after an all day conference in Mr. McEwen's office in the Tribune building. President Emil Schmidt, Samuel Tripp, Joseph Kernan, and James O'Shea represented the County Traction company and its subsidiary, the Suburban Traction company. W. D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employés; President William Quinlan of local 241, and William Taber, secretary of the Chicago local, attended the conference and agreed to the settlement.

Wages Equal Chicago Scale.

The employés received an increase in wages equal to the wages of the employés of the Chicago Railways company and the Chicago City Railway company. The men will return to work this morning, when operation by the new owners begins.

The cars this morning, however, will be sent around Forest Park. Mayor Henry J. Mohr ordered the police to arrest the employés of the company and the passengers if an attempt was made to operate the cars in that suburb. The Forest Park permit of the company was revoked when the employés struck for higher wages some weeks ago.

The County Traction purchase price was placed at $750,000. The sale includes the lines to Maywood, River Forest, Lyons, and Riverside; one power house in Oak Park, one power house in Riverside, a car barn in Oak Park, and thirty-nine cars and seventy miles of track.

U. S. TARS WRECK I. W. W. QUARTERS

Sailors of Pacific Reserve Fleet Mob "Red Flag" Offices in Seattle.

DANIELS ASSAILS CREED.

Seattle, Wash., July 18.—[Special.]—United States sailors and marines from the Pacific reserve fleet, reinforced by soldiers and some young civilians, made a general raid tonight on Socialist and Industrial Workers of the World strongholds in this city. The attack followed a clash Thursday night between I. W. W. people and sailors, in which three of Uncle Sam's men were beaten up.

During the Golden Potlatch celebration hundreds of men from the fleet have been given shore leave and many soldiers from Fort Lawton and Fort Flagler have been at liberty. These young men generally participated in tonight's raids.

Daniels Assails "Red Flag."

When the rioting began Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, was dining in the harbor on the cruiser West Virginia, the guest of Admiral Reynolds. Later Mr. Daniels was the guest of the Rainier club at a banquet.

Although the secretary presumably did not know the clash was in progress in the streets between the sailors and the red flag contingent, he made a reference in his banquet speech which is interesting. He took occasion to praise the attitude of the mayor of Boston, who stopped a red flag parade.

"The red flag has no place in this country," Mr. Daniels said, "and believers in it have no place in this country. A mayor who does not enforce the law against the red flag is not fit to hold office and people who believe in the red flags should be driven from the country."

Sailors Storm Socialist Quarters.

About a dozen men-of-warsmen were in the first wrecking party to get under way. They were aided by several members of the Washington naval militia and by a hundred young civilians, who made most of the noise. Waving flags, the storming party swooped down on the cart news stand of Millard Price, a Socialist orator, at the intersection of Fourth avenue and Westlake boulevard, the busiest night corner of the city. The cart was broken to splinters in a moment and the big stock of Socialist papers and magazines torn and tossed into the street.

The mob then proceeded to the Socialist headquarters on Fifth avenue, near Stewart, smashed in the plate glass front, and nailed American flags on the front of the building.

Police Halt Mob Temporarily.

The sailors and their companions then went toward the old Unitarian church on Seventh avenue, near Union street, which had just been vacated by the Moderates. On the way they were overhauled by an automobile full of policemen, headed by a big captain, who told the sailors that if they did not disperse he would arrest every one of them. The policemen succeeded in scattering the youths, who shouted back:

"Your mayor won't do anything to protect the flag, so we are saving your city."

A young civilian who had been trying to incite the sailors kept shouting to them to "Go and get Mayor Cotterill." No arrests were made.

The mob reformed in the north part of the city after it had once been dispersed and went back to the Socialist headquarters at Fifth avenue and Virginia and sacked the place, destroying the furniture and a large quantity of Socialist literature.

Others Wreck I. W. W. Offices.

A second party of men from the fleet attacked the big Industrial Workers headquarters on Washington street, in the southern part of the city. The contents of the building were dragged into the street and a bonfire made of them.

A provost guard of fifty men from the fleet was hurried ashore in cutters to arrest all the men ashore.

The rioters received news that Secretary Daniels in his speech had urged that all believers in the red flag be driven out of the country. It was also reported to them that he had made a direct attack on Mayor Cotterill, who sat directly behind him. The fact was that the mayor accompanied the secretary from the banquet to the Press club reception and has been with the secretary during much of his stay. It is believed Mr. Daniels had no knowledge of the trouble in the streets.

During the administration of Mayor George Cotterill all street speakers have been given full license to speak as long and as loudly as they chose, provided they did not block traffic or display the red flag. The I. W. W. have held meetings every night at three public squares. The meetings generally have been orderly. Mayor Cotterill has been assailed in the newspapers and otherwise, but he has insisted the meetings did not violate the law.

Strikers Break with I. W. W.

Paterson, N. J., July 18.—[Special.]—By voting to accept a nine hour day instead of the eight hour day, which they had first demanded, and by deciding to treat with the manufacturers individually and accept less wages than they had held out for, 2,500 striking ribbon weavers at a meeting in Helvetia hall today practically defied the Industrial Workers of the World.

Of the 25,000 who went out only about 10,000 are now on strike. The action of the strikers today, in conjunction with the withdrawal of Haywood, gives promise of a speedy settlement of the struggle that began the latter part of February.

I. W. W. Leaders Indicted.

Salem, Mass., July 18.—Nathaniel Harmann of Boston and Carroll L. Pingree of Lowell, Industrial Workers of the World leaders, and seventeen foreign residents of Ipswich were indicted today for rioting. The charges grew out of a riot at the Ipswich hosiery companies plants at Ipswich last month when a woman was killed.

HUMAN CHAIN SAVES MAN NEAR BRINK OF NIAGARA.

Unidentified Rescuer Wades Into Terrific Current to Young Canadian Lodged Against Stones Near Edge.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 18.—Truman Chapman, 22 years old, of Hamilton, Ont., was rescued from the brink of the American falls tonight by four men, one of whom took a desperate chance to reach him. Chapman was sitting on the iron railing just above Prospect Point and was seen suddenly to topple backwards into the stream.

At this point the current is swift and the pull toward the brink of the falls, fifteen feet away, almost irresistible. After striking the water Chapman's body lodged against projections of rock and this undoubtedly saved him from death.

When the cry went up John Hughes and Thomas S. Winders of Niagara Falls, Thomas D. Thomas of Toronto, and a fourth man who did not give his name, leaped over the railing.

The unidentified man waded several feet but could not reach Chapman. Hughes, Winders, and Thomas then formed a chain from the iron fence and clinging to the unknown's hand enabled him to reach Chapman.

Twice the man at the end of the chain was swept from his feet but he clung to his burden.

RECORD FOR LACONIC WILLS.

New York Merchant Directs Disposal of Property in Direct One-Word Sentences.

New York, July 18.—[Special.]—Here is the record for laconicism in a will disposing of a large estate:

"Balance to go to Mrs. Doussett, without any string tied to it—absolutely. I hope she won't get married because she is too old. The doctor may have my body. Services in chapel. Free Mason services. Body to remain here. Cremation."

When M. Wilbur Dyer, a wealthy manufacturer of underwear, who died May 4, made his will he stipulated that 30 per cent of the stock in the company should be divided between his two sons, Charles W. and Grant C., and that the balance should be set aside for Mrs. Caroline Doussett of 639 West One Hundred and Forty-second street, an old employé.

FIND WOMAN DEAD TIED UP ON FENCE

Man in Cornfield Near Oak Forest Stumbles Upon Corpse Near Road.

NECK FASTENED TO POST.

A farmer passing through the cornfield of Chris Abbe about a mile northeast of Oak Forest yesterday stopped whistling suddenly, caught his breath, and turned pale. Then he advanced slowly toward the gate which separates the cornfield from another field.

The body of a young woman, possibly 25 years old, was suspended from a cross bar between the fence posts. A strip of cloth of white wash material, evidently torn from a dress, had been drawn around the woman's neck and tied to the post.

Her feet touched the ground, and if the case were suicide it was necessary for her to lift her body partially from the ground in order to hang herself. Her arms extended stiff against her sides.

Dressed in White.

A white wash dress with an open worked waist of lace and white material, black laced shoes, and black stockings clothed the body. The hat was missing. She had dark brown hair and her complexion, as nearly as could be ascertained from the decomposed face, was olive brown.

She weighed approximately 130 pounds and was about 5 feet 5 inches in height. Near the body lay an empty pocketbook. Pinned to her waist was a small open faced gold watch. No letter of explanation or means of identification were found. Indications were that she had been dead two or three days.

Few Yards from Highway.

A few yards away was the county highway, but view from it was screened by large trees and heavy underbrush. The farmer examined the earth about the place for some time, but could not find any traces of footprints or of a struggle.

Later Supervisor Samuel Fulton of Bremen township, whom the farmer had told of the discovery, came with a number of people to the scene. No one had ever seen the young woman before. She is a stranger to the vicinity. William Funk, undertaker at Tinley park, thought perhaps the young woman had killed herself. Others ventured the suggestion that perhaps she might have been killed and her body and effects arranged to make it appear a suicide.

May Be Missing Passenger.

A possible clew to the woman's identity lies in the fact that three days ago a woman passenger on the Rock Island, bound for a little station beyond Tinley Park, got off the train by mistake at Tinley Park.

The Rock Island train crew inquired about her, and told the town marshal that some woman had left the train at the wrong station and had forgotten her baggage, but she has not been found.

"It looks very much like murder, from the meager report I have received," said Coroner Hoffman last evening.

O'HARA ASKS CITY OFFICIALS TO CLOSE CAPITAL RESORTS.

Acting Governor Bases Request on Presence of Illinois National Guard Encamped in Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., July 18.—[Special.]—Acting Gov. Barratt O'Hara contemplates calling upon the city commissioners of Springfield to close the disorderly houses of Springfield during the time he is acting governor.

Presence of state national guardsmen in Springfield, the lieutenant governor thinks, warrants his acting in this manner. Immediately after his arrival in the capital this morning he was advised that a number of dissolute women from Chicago and other points had flocked into the city with the opening of the annual encampment of the Illinois national guard, with the intention of remaining here until the encampment is over.

FOUR MEN SKIP; INDICTED FOR BALLOT FRAUD

Three Charged with Crooked Work to Aid Hoyne, Bartzen, et Al.

SHERIFF'S VAIN HUNT

First Result of Special Grand Jury's Inquiry Into State's Attorney's Election.

IN M. F. SULLIVAN BAILIWICK

The four men who were indicted yesterday by the special grand jury on charges of fraud in the election last November, skipped out of town before sundown and are in hiding from the sheriff.

Three of them are charged with ballot tampering in the interest of Maclay Hoyne, the present state's attorney, Peter Bartzen and others.

The fourth did his work for the benefit of a Republican city candidate.

All of the quartet are missing. From what source they were advised to become fugitives is not known. The sheriff's deputies hope to capture them later. Special State's Attorney Northup believes they will come out of hiding when bond matters are arranged for them.

The First Day's Catch.

The indicted men are:

BARANOV, CHARLES, Democratic judge of election, proprietor employment agency and lodging house at 16 South Canal street, resides at 1131 West Madison street, charged with penciling ballots in favor of Hoyne and other Democratic candidates. Baranov had access to ballots that had been cast by voters at 762 West Adams street.

GEARY, THOMAS, 2215 West Monroe street, Union depot expressman, lives at 2215 Monroe street, Democratic precinct committeeman, said to have marked ballots for Hoyne and other H.-H. slate candidates same polling place.

GORDON, JOSEPH, a jeweler of 114 South Canal street, alleged to have marked ballots in the interest of State's Attorney Hoyne and County Commissioner Peter Bartzen, same polling place.

ROSE, DAVID, Vestibule hotel, 519 West Madison street, charged with marking ballots in the interest of Leland S. Rapp, Republican candidate for bailiff of the Municipal court.

"Gone Across the Lake."

Deputy Sheriff E. E. Schmidling was given the papers for the arrest of the indicted men. Accompanied by newspaper men, he hunted assiduously for them and in the evening said he would continue the search today.

Schmidling was informed that Rose had left the Vestibule hotel last Tuesday and failed to leave a forwarding address; that Gordon had gone "across the lake" and was expected back next Monday; that Baranov had announced he was "going across the lake," and that Geary had been under cover for some time.

Mr. Northup expressed surprise when told of the failure to find the four men.

"They probably are remaining low until they can arrange for bond, the figure having been fixed at $10,000 in each case," he said. "I cannot conceive that they will attempt to leave the jurisdiction of the court. Their flight would be a confession of guilt and, of course, we would find them and bring them back."

Denials were made at State's Attorney Hoyne's office that the disappearance of the accused had any political significance.

Bailiwick of Hoyne's Deputy.

It was learned that three of the four accused men were connected by witnesses who testified before the grand jury with the H.-H. clan and that their chief concern on election day was in promoting the chances of Hoyne and Bartzen particularly and other Democrats incidentally.

Rose, who is said to have shown a desire to boost the vote of Rapp, had formerly been known as a Democrat. The fraud charged to the men was committed in the Sixteenth precinct of the Eighteenth ward, over which Michael F. Sullivan, the indictment attorney of Hoyne's staff, presides as political dictator or boss. The polling place was a coffee house at 762 West Adams street.

"Tom" Geary and Rose both are credited with living in the First ward, although operating on election day in the Eighteenth. Geary is said to have moved into the ward for the purpose of running for precinct committeeman under the H.-H. banner. His temporary residence was at Baranov's lodging house, 16 S. Canal street.

Witnesses Who Testified.

These are the witnesses whose testimony caused the grand jury to vote the true bill:

LAWRENCE KING, minute clerk in Judge Baldwin's court and official custodian of the November ballots under an order of the court. He is said to have displayed the marked ballots to the jurors, who, it is declared, were astounded at the remarkable similarity of the short pencil work.

JAMES A. HARRIS, 509 West Madison street, Democratic judge in the precinct involved.

GEORGE BROWNING, 562 West Adams street.

JAMES H. ROOT, 614 West Adams street, a Republican judge.

WILLIAM OGDEN, 608 West Adams street, a clerk of election.

FRED ANGST, 133 South Halsted street, an election clerk.

ERNEST A. ANDERSON, 509 West Madison street, who is said to have given important testimony.

Early Trial if He Catches Them.

Prosecutor Northup said he considered the evidence against the men conclusive. He intimated that he might bring them to an early trial. They are grouped in a single indictment of three counts, two charging them with altering ballots in violation of the election law, and the other charging the altering of a public document.

All three offenses are felonies, punishable with penitentiary sentences of not less than five nor more than ten years. It was intimated that the indictments were just the beginning of startling disclosures affecting many others.

The special grand jury adjourned after voting the indictments until Tuesday morning, when other true bills may be reported. In the meantime Prosecutor Northup and his staff will be busy preparing a long list of witnesses. Mr. Northup declined to say just where his investigation would lead to next, but indicated that the way had opened up for sensational developments.

Says He Doesn't Know Them.

State's Attorney Hoyne issued two statements, in one of which he asserted his lack of personal acquaintance with any of the four men indicted. He also denied any agreement with Leland Rapp or any other Republican candidate.

"If these accused men are guilty of any irregularities I not only have no connection with it or knowledge of it," he said.

In his second statement Hoyne reiterated his reasons for opposing the $15,000 appropriation by the county board for the special grand jury investigation. He again attacked the good faith of the inquiry, as well as the legal right of the board to vote money to Northup from the state's attorney's contingent fund. He defended the refusal of the Bartzen element of the county board to support the appropriation.

Exposes Their Desperation.

Hoyne's slap at the county board drew a warm retort from President A. A. McCormick, in which he also paid his respects to Commissioner Bartzen and the board members who have followed the "rampageous one" in repeatedly opposing the efforts of the McCormick crowd to finance the fraud investigation.

"I didn't suppose," said Mr. McCormick, "that the Bartzen members of the county board were so desperate in their opposition to the investigation of election frauds as to hold up all of the county pay rolls and thereby force hardship and suffering on a lot of innocent people. Now that indictments have been returned by the Cooper grand jury I begin to understand why the 'perless leader' of the county board has waged such a long, hard, and bitter fight against the appropriation.

"I suppose that it does hurt when men have committed fraud in your interest at an election to vote money for an investigation that you feel certain will land them in jail—where they belong.

Sorry for Mr. Hoyne.

"I am exceedingly sorry that Mr. Hoyne has ventured a criticism of the action of the county board at the time when the grand jury has voted indictments of men interested in his election. Mr. Hoyne personally has rather an attractive personality. It is too bad that he fell under the domination of Andrew M. Lawrence of Hearst's Chicago Examiner.

"It is always pitiable when a weak man is dominated by an unscrupulous man. Lawrence seems to own and control Hoyne as he owned and controlled Bartzen. If Hoyne asserts his independence and cuts loose from Lawrence he may achieve a career of honor and distinction.

"If he continues in the course which he has pursued since he took office he will find that his career will end in dishonor and extinction.

"Mr. Hoyne has the opportunity, by performing the duties of his office as many of his friends hoped he would perform them, to restore the name of Hoyne to the honored place which it occupied in the history of Cook county before it was besmirched by the support of 'Andy' Lawrence and trailed through the columns of the Chicago Examiner."

FAIL TO GET JURY TESTIMONY.

Former Gov. Deneen, counsel, and Lucas I. Butts, chairman of the legislative committee investigating the $1,000,000 purchase of voting machines for Cook county, yesterday requested of State's Attorney Hoyne a transcript of the testimony taken by the April grand jury in its vote machine inquiry.

Mr. Hoyne said it would be impossible for him under existing conditions in his office to have any of his stenographers prepare the record, but suggested that if the committee desired to defray the expense of transcribing the evidence he would give them the names of the shorthand reporters who took the testimony.

The grand jury, in its final report to Judge Richard E. Burke, suggested that the transcript be turned over to the Butts committee.

Before putting the committee to the expense of paying for the mass of testimony at following Mr. Deneen, it is said, will attempt to get a copy from Benjamin T. Lewis of La Grange, foreman of the jury, if one was turned over to him.

HOYNE INDICTS A "TRIBUNE" MAN

Grand Jury Finds True Bill Against Annenberg; None Against Gamblers.

RECORD SPEED IN CASE.

Tearney Clash Is Recalled; Effort Made to Have That Story Suppressed.

The gamblers took the offensive yesterday in the fight on THE TRIBUNE. They were gratified last night when they learned that State's Attorney Hoyne's office had procured the indictment of Max Annenberg, circulation manager of this newspaper, in connection with the shooting that followed an attack by a gang of gamblers on a party of TRIBUNE men who had photographed the crowded gambling room. Alexander Belford, who was shot, is at the county hospital, improving.

Mr. Hoyne and his assistant, Michael F. Sullivan, have pushed the case against Annenberg with great energy. They have taken no steps toward the prosecution of the gamblers, though Mayor Harrison has revoked the license of the poolroom at 818 Maxwell street because of the gambling there. Nor has any effort been made to indict leaders of the gamblers for murderous threats against THE TRIBUNE representatives.

Hoyne Takes Personal Charge.

The fruits of Mr. Hoyne's activity became manifest yesterday afternoon, when one of his assistants appeared from the grand jury room and annnounced:

"Mr. Hoyne has just secured the indictment of Max Annenberg of THE TRIBUNE. We hope to rush this case to trial and secure a conviction within a short time. Mr. Hoyne considers this case so important that he has taken personal charge of it."

Witnesses whose statements favored THE TRIBUNE'S representatives, and did not favor the gamblers, were of course not called by Hoyne. One young man says he was picked up by Mr. Hoyne's assistants and started for the Criminal Court building. On the way he says he was asked: "What will you say about the place at 818 Maxwell street?"

"I will say there was gambling there," he says he replied. Whereupon he says he was put out of the automobile.

Recalls Tearney Incident.

Last winter THE TRIBUNE sent a reporter and a photographer out to take a picture of the notorious café run by "Al" Tearney, then a city alderman. After making the picture THE TRIBUNE'S representatives were mobbed and beaten by Tearney in person and his hangers-on. The reporter testified that Tearney brandished a knife, shouting, "Cut off his hand."

THE TRIBUNE secured convictions of Tearney for more than a score of violations of the 1 o'clock law. At the time of the attack on THE TRIBUNE'S representatives, Ed Fleming, State's Attorney Hoyne's secretary, who was in Tearney's at the time of the fight, called up Mr. Annenberg of THE TRIBUNE and said Mr. Hoyne wanted to have the story suppressed. He said he was speaking for Mr. Hoyne. The latter is said to be a close friend of Mr. Tearney.

Since the Tearney incident TRIBUNE reporters have felt that attempts to investigate or photograph illegal resorts were fraught with danger.

JURY IN VON KLEIN CASE HUNG AFTER THIRTY HOURS.

Man Arrested as Bigamist and Diamond Thief at Chicago to Be Tried Again in September.

Portland, Ore., July 18.—After being out thirty hours the jury trying E. E. C. von Klein for alleged theft of diamonds from Miss Ethel Newcomb of San Francisco reported today inability to agree.

The court set the retrial for Sept. 2, and fixed bail at $4,500 cash or $5,500 surety bond.

Mrs. Rena B. Morrow of Chicago, who is said to have financed the defense, stayed at the courthouse all day, as did Mrs. Weber, the "mysterious white veiled" woman of Kansas City, who has threatened to pursue Von Klein until he lands in the penitentiary.

Miss Newcomb claims Von Klein, who was arrested at Chicago, is her husband by a polygamous marriage in San Francisco several weeks before he is alleged to have deserted her, taking her diamonds. He is under indictment on a polygamy charge.

MISSOURI FIRE RISK WAR ENDS.

State Insurance Superintendent Announces, After Two Day Conference, Companies Will Resume Business.

St. Louis, Mo., July 18.—Following an intermittent conference of two days' duration with local insurance heads, Charles G. Revelle, state superintendent of insurance, announced tonight that the fire risk war in Missouri had ended.

Neither he nor the men with whom he had conferred, however, would divulge any of the details of the compromise.

It is understood that the 132 fire insurance companies, which were restrained from withdrawing from Missouri only by the state Supreme court, will resume business. Business conditions in St. Louis and Kansas City already have suffered a slight depression.

GIBBONS EXPECTS TO DIE SOON.

Cardinal, Who Will Be 79 on Wednesday, Believes Final Summons Will Be Sudden.

Baltimore, Md., July 18.—"Next Wednesday I shall be 79 years old," said Cardinal Gibbons today, as he sat in his study. Then he added, in a gentle voice: "I do not think that I shall live much longer. My life is nearly spent.

"I shall soon be an octogenarian," continued the cardinal smilingly, "and nature must take its course. Almighty God has blessed me with a long life and I am ready to answer whenever he sees fit to call me to render an account of my stewardship.

"I think that it will not be long now," he said, slowly, and there was no sorrow in his voice, just resignation, "and when the call comes I think it will be a sudden one."

RIVAL COPS TRAP GAMBLERS.

Schuettler's Men Capture Eighteen and McWeeny's Squad Arrest Nine in South Side Raids.

As a result of the rivalry of the two police gambling squads now in existence only a few days twenty-seven men were arrested in raids yesterday.

Eighteen men were arrested by First Deputy Schuettler's men at an alleged gambling room above the saloon of Wilson & Herman at 6331 South Halsted street.

Nine men were arrested in the afternoon in a room at 2819 South State street by Chief McWeeny's gambling squad.

TEAR MASK FROM GAMBLING

Jewish Daily Press Lauds "Tribune's" Expose in Maxwell St.

MORE LIGHT DEMANDED.

Jewish Record Emphasizes the Need of Publicity.

The gambling situation in the Maxwell street region was torn wide open yesterday by the Jewish Daily Press, a leading Yiddish paper on the west side, and by the Jewish Record, a well known family weekly.

The editorial in the Jewish Daily Press says in part:

"In the Jewish quarter of Chicago there has developed—to our shame—an underworld which is indebted for its existence to corrupt Jewish politicians who have the brazenness to pose as the representatives of the Jewish population. Thanks to the influence of these politicians, there are on the west side a large number of poolrooms and other places where poor workingmen gamble away their wages, the money which should have gone to their wives for bread and clothing for themselves and for their children.

"Scores of families in the district are cast into misery by these gambling dens. The tears and pleas of these ruined families are smothered by the devilish might of the 'friends' of the underworld.

When Tears Reach the Surface.

"Only at times these tears come to the surface and the public gets a glimpse of the secret thread which unites the gamblers and their friends. Such an accidental uncovering or the gambling situation occurred last week when THE TRIBUNE sent its employés to get a report on a gambling place in the heart of the ghetto on Maxwell street near Halsted street.

"The keepers of gambling houses are criminal offenders and are no less harmful to society than the traffickers in women with whom these gamblers are closely connected. These two classes of criminals are designated as 'the underworld.' Gambling places, like houses of prostitution, are the nests of crime, the difference being that in the one innocent girls are lured and ruined, while in the other innocent young men—often the sole support of young wives and babies or of aged parents—are lured and ruined. These ruined families have to thank for their misfortunes the parasites who grow rich on the wages which foolish and misguided young men leave in their places.

"Alliances with Corrupt Politicians."

"In every large city in the country respectable citizens and the respectable press are continually warring on these underworld forces. The extinction of these gamblers and panders would have been easy if these criminals did not have alliances with corrupt politicians.

"There can be no question that THE TRIBUNE, in sending its reporters to expose the gambling places on the west side, as it has exposed gambling dens in other parts of the city, has done this with the best intentions and has earned the recognition of all right thinking persons.

"None but the gamblers and their friends can be dissatisfied with the activity of THE TRIBUNE. For the underworld light and publicity are like poison, and we need more of it. It is to be hoped that THE TRIBUNE will continue its good work in this direction."

"Parade Vice Openly."

The Jewish Record speaks in the same vein.

"There is not a shadow of a doubt," it says, "that there are gambling nests on the west side. There is not a shadow of doubt that there are many houses of prostitution on the west side. Some of these places parade vice openly, others secretly. The places are under the protection of the lowest sort of politicians."

The Record concludes with an appreciation of Mayor Harrison for promptly closing Frank Lerner's den and of THE TRIBUNE for the fearlessness with which it conducts its investigations, "which have resulted in the closing of houses of ill fame and gambling places in many parts of the city."

Dr. McFatrich Improving.

Dr. J. B. McFatrich of Chicago apparently is recovering from three severe attacks of heart trouble which caused his removal to Lake Geneva. Physicians say there is little doubt of his recovery, but that he probably will remain in bed for a month. He is at the Congress club of Geneva.

N. A. M. SOUGHT TO INFLUENCE TARIFF

Demand for Place on Taft Board Nearly Resulted In Exposure.

PARTY LEADERS IN FEAR.

Foraker, Cannon, and Sherman Fought Against Move as Bad Politics.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 18.—[Special.]—Pouring out hundreds of thousands of dollars to elect and defeat members of congress, manipulating legislation, and intriguing in presidential politics, the National Association of Manufacturers became so bold at one time that the "invisible government" almost became visible to the people.

Col. Martin M. Mulhall told the members of the senate lobby investigating committee today that the efforts of the association to have one or two of its officers placed on the tariff board during the Taft administration awoke the apprehension of the Republican old guard, with which it was in league. Senator Foraker, Speaker Cannon, and James S. Sherman, said Mulhall, thought the association was "playing very bad politics," and sought to put the soft pedal on its operations in this direction.

Letters Show Work of N. A. M.

Several hundred more letters were identified by Mulhall and read into the record. This correspondence disclosed:

That former Senator Foraker of Ohio, who has denied receiving assistance from Mulhall, wrote the lobbyist in the 1908 campaign asking him to call and thanked him for favors.

That the National Council for Industrial Defense, an unincorporated organization composed of officers and members of the manufacturers' association, was formed as a medium for the assembling of political funds in evasion of the law prohibiting corporations from contributing to campaign funds.

That President Van Cleave feared to violate the law by asking Indiana corporations for contributions, but Vice President Parry told Mulhall that he and other big manufacturers were "jumping the law" to aid James E. Watson, candidate for governor, with funds.

That while Watson was running for governor on a "dry" platform, Mulhall with Watson's knowledge was dickering with the brewers for financial support for Watson's campaign.

Hearing Adjourned to Monday.

So great has been the strain Mulhall has undergone in explaining the hundreds of documents that he was excused by the committee until next Monday and there will be no session tomorrow. The committee held a session this evening, however, to hear the testimony of W. McClave, Republican candidate in a New Jersey by-election for congress next Tuesday. Mulhall testified yesterday that he paid all of McClave's expenses in a previous campaign.

McClave Confirms Testimony.

Mr. McClave, in his testimony tonight, admitted that he had written letters to Mulhall urging him to pay bills for printing and posting placards, but declared that this literature, which was antagonistic to William Hughes, was gotten out over his protests. He stated that Mulhall had come to him with offers of assistance, that letters from Representative Sherman, then chairman of the national congressional committee, had inspired confidence; that the national, congressional, state, and county committees had refused him assistance, and that he was willing to accept assistance from any proper source.

He knew that Mulhall represented the National Association of Manufactures, and thought that as that organization was naturally interested in protection, and that as he was running on a protection platform, it was only natural that they should be willing to support him.

Denies Mulhall Paid Bills.

Replying to Mulhall's statement that he had bought McClave nearly all his meals during the campaign, McClave said:

"If my recollection serves me right, Col. Mulhall never bought me a meal during the campaign. I do not believe that I saw him more than six or seven times.

"If the committee please, I think Col. Mulhall has perjured himself before this committee. He says he spent about $4,400 for me in the campaign. As far as my recollection serves me, Col. Mulhall did not collect or spend a cent for me during the campaign with the exception of rent for two rooms in a hotel in Patterson which he insisted I should have for headquarters and which I did not visit more than three or four times, as far as I can remember."

Mulhall Roiled During Hearing.

Mulhall furnished diversion for the roomful of spectators twice during the afternoon session. He became explosive when Attorney McCarter, special counsel for the N. A. M., tried to ask him a question, and he went into a long explanation of his reasons for keeping copies of his correspondence. On both occasions the committee was ready to proceed some time before Col. Mulhall was.

The colonel also gave an interesting recital of his connection with the alleged attempt to buy President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor.

Senator Reed asked Mulhall if it was not true that the National Council for Industrial Defense had been organized principally with a view to evading the campaign contributions law.

"Yes, sir, it was," replied Mulhall.

"How do you know that if you were not present at their councils?" asked McCarter.

Mulhall and N. A. M. Men Clash.

Mulhall turned around and glared at McCarter and Senator Reed warned the N. A. M. attorney against interrogating the witness. McCarter then asked the committee to ask the question and Senator Walsh framed it.

"Because the general manager and the other officers of the N. A. M. told me so," replied Mulhall. Then he turned on McCarter, Emery, and other N. A. M. officials, who were seated to his right at a little table facing the witness chair.

"It's a contemptible trick for you to sit there staring at me," he cried, shaking his fist at Emery. "These men here, officers and ex-officers of the N. A. M., have been here ever since I came trying to intimidate me here in the room and outside. I will give that gentleman [turning to Emery again] a chance to examine me here or in the courts. I'm Irish and hot spirited."

"Well, don't show your Irish here," urged Senator Overman, good naturedly.

Senator Overman read the following passage from a letter to Mulhall from Dr. Crockett of Thomaston:

"Tallyrand said that one should never write or destroy a letter. I have always considered myself safe with you, knowing that you appreciate my position. Not that the letters contain anything, but that my position demonstrates some gratitude, some respect for people who try to use one right."

Mulhall caught the inference at once.

"Well, senator," he said, "when you're working with a bunch like I have been working with for the last ten years you have to save the letters."

Telling of his connection with the alleged attempt to bribe Gompers, Mulhall said he had been instructed by Van Cleave and Schwedtman at a conference at the Waldorf, New York, in September, 1907, to report to Atherton Brownell, of whom he had never heard before.

Tells Plan to Bribe Gompers.

He went to Brownell's office, 1 Madison avenue, and was introduced by Brownell to Allen Sangry, a newspaper writer, and a Mr. Lewis, also a member of Brownell's staff. Brownell wanted to know if Mulhall was acquainted with labor people. Mulhall said he was.

"He said that he had Brandenburg following Gompers in Georgia," Mulhall testified. "I asked him for what purpose. He said they were going to bribe Gompers to come their way. They had a story Gompers was going to sign, after which he was to be given his price and a mission of some kind abroad.

"I said it was simply ridiculous; that I had known Gompers slightly for a good many years and I thought he had better be careful, that the labor people were pretty foxy, and that if Brownell and his friends were not careful they would get their fingers burned.

"Brownell said he was sure of his prey."

Mulhall said that Brownell, as head of this publicity bureau publishing the official magazine, had $40,000, but he did not know whether it was for the purpose of bribery or not.

Brownell Laughed at Warning.

"Brownell said he was going after Gompers and other labor leaders and was sure to make a go of it. He pooh-poohed my warnings and said he had asked for advice on other labor leaders, but that if I was going to talk against the plan he could not use me.

"A couple of days afterward Mr. Van Cleave left the Waldorf and New York in a hurry. I asked him why, and he said that he had pretty nearly fallen into a trap, but was given a tip not to go to a meeting that had been prepared for him with Gompers after Gompers had refused to meet Mr. Van Cleave at the latter's hotel. He said he thought Brownell had more brains than to go into a thing of that kind.

"The statements in this respect that I made under oath when my statement was first printed and the story told by Mr. Gompers of the part he played in the deal make the story as complete as possible."

Foraker Sought N. A. M. Aid.

In September, while Mulhall was in Cincinnati for conferences with Arthur Vorys and other Taft leaders, Senator Foraker sent for him, according to his report to Schwedtman, and asked the support of Van Cleave and his organization in his forthcoming campaign for the senate. He told Mulhall that he had been informed that John Kirby Jr. of the Kirby Manufacturing company of Dayton had given out a statement against him. Later Kirby in a letter to Schwedtman denied this as strongly as he could.

"So far as I am concerned," wrote Kirby to Schwedtman, "Senator Foraker's nomination at Chicago would have pleased me quite as well as Mr. Taft's. Senator Foraker may rest assured that I am for him, first, last, and all the time to be his own successor in the United States senate."

Mulhall and Foraker in Touch.

Concerning this denial, Mulhall wrote Schwedtman:

"I feel that the denial to Senator Foraker will make us many friends in the Ohio delegation next winter."

Later Kirby wrote:

"I believe the senator has cleared himself on Hearst's charges."

From Cincinnati, O., Sept. 18, Senator Foraker wrote Mulhall at Indianapolis:

"Dear Sir: You told me to write you if anything developed in connection with which you could be of help. I do not know of anything special, but there are some things of a general nature which it might be helpful to have done. If you are coming to Cincinnati again soon, kindly let me know. You need not come on this special account."

N. A. M. Aided Taft Campaign.

Work in their congressional districts for Speaker Cannon, Representatives Denby of Michigan, Coudrey of Missouri, Jenkins of Wisconsin, and a number of Ohio districts, during the campaign of 1908, was described in letters read to the committee today. A large part of the correspondence related to the tireless efforts of Col. Mulhall and other N. A. M. workers to elect James E. Watson governor of Indiana in 1908.

The relations between the N. A. M. and the Taft campaign were closer than ever following the nomination of Taft. In a letter to Schwedtman in June, Mulhall tells of a conference with Arthur Vorys in Cincinnati:

"I gave Vorys plainly to understand that there was a large membership of our organization who would vote the Democratic ticket who are not active for the ticket," Mulhall wrote, "and this was caused in a large measure by President Roosevelt's work on congress last winter in seeking class legislation for the labor unions and for the discourtesy shown to the leaders of our organization at Chicago.

Says Vorys Sought Support.

"Vorys was an entirely different man to what he was in Chicago. He was more than anxious for some of our people to see Judge Taft and to get our people actively at work in the state.

"I convinced Mr. Vorys that we would do all we possibly could for the Republican organization in Indiana and that we were also actively interested in a number of congressional districts in other states, and if he wished to get a large percentage of our organization busy he had better get Judge Taft to get into communication with Mr. Van Cleave and other leaders of our organization. This he claimed he would bring about in the near future and wanted me to aid him in doing so.

"He said he would send me a list of the different districts he wished me to work in."

Watson Spurs N. A. M. to Action.

James E. Watson also, as was the case with Judge Jenkins of Wisconsin, became impatient and alarmed during the early fall of 1908 over the condition of Indiana politics and spurred the N. A. M. into a more vigorous campaign than it yet had undertaken for or against any political candidate.

Matters were considerably complicated there by the action of Gov. Hanley, Republican, in calling a special session of the legislature that summer to deal with the liquor question. This threw the liquor interests directly against Watson, though Mulhall had been working and conferring assiduously for weeks in an effort to draw the breweries quietly behind Watson. In this he was materially aided by Vice President Parry, who was giving all his time to Watson's campaign and was seeking appointment to the speakers' list of the national campaign committee.

Mulhall had arranged for a quiet conference with representatives of the brewers, but Senator Hemenway, Speaker Cannon, and Vice President Fairbanks heard about it and called the conference off, according to Mulhall.

The colonel did not stay called off, however, and a little while after that he wrote Schwedtman:

"I positively feel that we will come out all right with the brewers in this state, and in the near future instead of having them our enemies we will have them offering contributions to our campaign."

"Were you doing this with the full knowledge of Mr. Watson?" the witness was asked.

"Yes, sir, he gave me my instructions."

When Hanley mussed up the whole agreement by calling the legislature into special session Mulhall wrote:

"A great many of the leaders here think that the Hanley-Beveridge faction is conspiring to beat the state ticket. This at least seems to be the general feeling at the present time."

Watson Forces For Option Bill.

Following a conference the Watson forces decided to make the best of a bad situation and support the Hanley county option bill. Both Watson and Mulhall felt that the campaign was not being pushed speedily enough and Mulhall, urging action upon Schwedtman, wrote that he was keeping away from Watson in order not to hear his tale of woe.

"Up to this time we have not raised any funds in this state to help him out," he wrote. "It is absolutely necessary that this be done as soon as possible, for we will be compelled to put more workers here from this time on. The Indiana manufacturers have not contributed a dollar to this campaign up to the present time. All the money that has been spent has been drawn from the association."

Gov. Hanley Angers N. A. M.

Schwedtman heartily joined the leaders in condemning Hanley for his course. In a letter to Mulhall he wrote:

"I wish Gov. Hanley would get the worst spanking from his friends that he ever has had. A man that is selfish enough to sacrifice his party and his friends for the sake of some fanatical temperance ideas deserves no consideration whatsoever."

On Sept. 16 Mulhall wrote Schwedtman:

"In relation to the collection of funds in this state I feel that we can get from $20,000 to $25,000. . . . We have started a finance committee consisting of the prominent business men of the city (Indianapolis) and also for the purpose of furnishing money to the state organization of this state, and for the first four hours that we have started out, being able to give but two hours each day, we have been pledged $2,100."

Van Cleave Sends Mulhall Out.

President Van Cleave already had given Mulhall letters of introduction to more than fifty manufacturers in about thirty Indiana cities, saying in these letters that Mulhall was on a "very important mission." With these Mulhall started out to collect funds, but did not meet the success he anticipated.

Then he urged President Van Cleave to write personally to Indiana manufacturers urging them to contribute. This request Van Cleave refused, acting on advice from attorneys for the N. A. M., through fear of coming in conflict with the national law against campaign contributions by corporations and through fear, in addition, that the charter of the N. A. M., which is incorporated in New York state, would be revoked.

"It would not only make us liable to having our charter revoked," wrote Schwedtman, "but it would place Mr. Van Cleave or anybody else who is in the association's employ liable to criminal prosecution.

Calls Mulhall "Practical" Man.

"I am well aware that the above statement is not going to impress you very much, because as a practical man you think that there ought to be a way of getting around the laws for the purpose of helping our friends."

Mulhall was not particularly impressed with this statement of the case. Writing Schwedtman on Sept. 26, he inclosed a list of "certified" Republicans in Indiana and New Jersey, asking Van Cleave to make personal appeals to them for financial assistance.

"In an interview I had with Mr. Parry and other large business men of this section," Mulhall wrote, "they clearly stated that they were jumping the law as far as corporations were concerned, and I am positive and sure that the politicians in this section do not give us any credit for saying that we cannot subscribe on account of the so-called laws.

Telling of a trip to South Bend in search of funds with Peter Kline, deputy state factory inspector, Mulhall wrote Schwedtman that he had received pledges from Clement Studebaker, $1,000, Singer Manufacturing company, $1,000, and others.

Hines and Allies Defeated.

Other correspondence told of the closing weeks and final defeat of the N. A. M.-Edward Hines-brewery combination fight to procure the renomination of Judge Jenkins in the Eleventh Wisconsin district.

Although Hines professed to be a member of the N. A. M. and declared he was interesting himself in Jenkins' campaign solely because of this, a letter to Mulhall from Schwedtman declares that the latter had looked through all the association's membership records and could not find that Edward Hines was ever enrolled.

When Lenroot finally won the Republican nomination in September, Schwedtman wrote Mulhall:

"I am afraid that Mr. Jenkins' defeat is going to hurst us more in Washington next winter than anything else that could have happened."

Edward Hines was taking a most active interest in the Jenkins campaign up to the last. In August he wired Mulhall: "Advices West Superior, Wis., saying necessary to have some money insure election of Judge Jenkins. How can you send it here? Will see it reaches West Superior proper hands. Answer."

At that time Hines also wrote N. A. M. headquarters in New York urging that $1,000 be shipped on to him for Jenkins at the earliest possible day.

Denby of Michigan Helped.

The aid given Representative Denby of the First Michigan district grew out of a request by C. B. Anthony, vice president of the N. A. M. for Michigan, who wrote President Van Cleave on Sept. 1 stating that Denby had been faithful to the interests of the manufacturers and asking that something be done for him.

To this Van Cleave replied:

"We must, of course, do all that is in our power for Mr. Denby. Just how much we can do is problematic and depending to a great extent upon conditions."

Denby was opposed by a man named Mahon, president of the Street Railway Employés' association. Van Cleave wrote that Mahon was "especially dangerous." He said he was at the bottom of the street railway strike in St. Louis ten years before. Mulhall was told to look into the situation and he wrote Anthony that he would get busy as soon as possible.

VORYS ISSUES REPLY.

Columbus, O., July 18.—Upon his return here today from a vacation trip in Canada Arthur I. Vorys, who managed the Taft campaign in 1908, issued a statement denying assertions made by Martin M. Mulhall before the senate investigating committee at Washington.

"I remember that Mulhall came to headquarters," said Mr. Vorys, "uninvited and unexpected. He assured me that the manufacturers' association was not being given proper recognition and he wanted me to invite a committee of its members to Washington. I refused to do this. There was no question about the manufacturers being for Taft. It was the labor vote that you had to look out for.

"I never promised the association or any one else that President Taft would name any person to a cabinet position. I regarded Mulhall in the same light I would thousands of such characters who swarm around political headquarters in a presidential year."

EACH HAS HER SAY AT THIS MEETING

Oratory Marks Session of the Illinois Woman's Democratic League.

CHAIRMAN SMITH BUSIED.

Motion to Open Permanent Headquarters Stirs Up Lively Debate.

Dr. Julia Holmes Smith rapped for order and implored the women to speak only on the question before the house. It was at the meeting yesterday of the Illinois Woman's Democratic league meeting at the Hotel La Salle.

Mrs. Susan Peck interrupted the speech of Mrs. Charles J. Trainor.

"I would like to answer that speech," she cried. She had been "answering" every speech delivered and so Mrs. Trainor took it as a matter of course and sat down.

Mrs. Peck Declares Herself.

"I want you to know I stand for the integrity of Democratic women," continued Mrs. Peck, rolling up her sleeves, and banging unmercifully on the table.

"I have given my time from the work by which I earn my daily bread to this organization, but I am ready to step out at any time any one starts impeding the progress of the work. The women are not going to be imposed upon or bulldozed by the men."

"But what has that got to do with the question before the house?" asked Dr. Smith.

"I was chairman when Julia Holmes Smith was nominated for Champaign university trustee at the Palmer house so many years ago I don't remember." It was a new speaker —Mrs. John Higgins.

Mrs. Higgins Has an Inning.

"I tell you there are a number of women in here who are wives of politicians," continued Mrs. Higgins. "I have paid my dues and I am a registered member of this organization, so I guess I have a right to speak. I tell you my husband, or my son, or any other man could not force me to vote or influence me to vote any other way than I want. I am a watcher for the Twenty-third ward and I am for the further extension of women in that ward. I—"

"Will the house please come to order," implored Dr. Smith.

"I just want to answer that speech from this unknown," said Mrs. Peck.

"When we had rooms in the La Salle hotel once we were shunted out to the Sherman and then to the Auditorium and then into the street when some other convention came along. I am for having headquarters apart from the Democratic men's headquarters, so we won't be under any obligations to them."

Mrs. Trainor Again to Fore.

"I was in the Seventh ward when these women from Mrs. Rhodus' organization did their work," broke in Mrs. Trainor. "They turned out to be having a Moose meeting. Now we are going to organize for nonpartisan votes."

"I just want to answer that speech," chimed in Mrs. Peck again.

"But let the woman finish," cautioned Dr. Smith.

"This is a Susie Peck league and not a Democratic Woman's league," said one woman as she swept out of the room.

"I tell you, we have got to show what kind of stuff we are made of," continued Mrs. Peck above the others. "I say we can't do anything unless we have headquarters open every day. I say let us each contribute some money and open up in a place exclusive from the men."

Offers Banner Motion.

"I move that we have a big banner of our organization hung outside our headquarters," said one woman.

"I would just like to answer that speech," said Mrs. Peck.

After two hours and and a half of deliberation it was agreed by a majority vote that permanent headquarters should be established. Mrs. M. Padden, Mrs. George P. Vosbrink, Mrs. Linda Prussing Azemar, Miss Sarah Gleason, and Mrs. Trainor were appointed a committee to look into the matter.

DIXON ON ENGLISH SUFFRAGETS.

The Rev. A. C. Dixon, pastor of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London, declared himself strongly on the militant suffrage movement in England upon his arrival in Chicago yesterday.

"The militants have destroyed their cause —at least for this generation," he said. "Lloyd-George, who is in favor of votes for women, said no one would now have the temerity to lead the cause in parliament. Certainly the public mind is much opposed.

Dr. Dixon will preach tomorrow and next Sunday at the Moody church. He will sail for England late in August.

According to the attendants at the hospital, Mrs. Walters struck a match to be sure that the corners had been cleaned out and the fumes exploded. She was in flames before aid could be summoned, and, although taken immediately to the hospital, had no chance to recover. She lived at 521 East Thirty-fifth street.

Patrolman Michael Hurley twisted the weapon out of his hands and shipped him to Twenty-second street station for examination into his sanity.

WIVES HELP MEN LIVE LONGER

Medical Journal Credits Supervision as Secret of Longevity.

WIDOWERS DIE OFF FAST.

More Suicides Among Heads of Families than Bachelors.

Supervision by wives as a possible reason for the greater longevity of married men than of bachelors is discussed by the Journal of the American Medical Association in its editorial discussion of the recently published statistics on this point. There is no remark on the accompanying statistics of more suicides among married men than bachelors.

The Journal has dug up further information indicating that, careful as the married men may be, with restraint once removed through the death or divorce of the wife, widowers and grass widowers leap into indiscretions and are lopped off more rapidly than either those still in the wedded state or those who escaped matrimony.

Regularity Helps Married Men.

"Undoubtedly the lower death rate among married men is partly due to the fact that, as a rule, those who are in good health are readier to marry, while those with more delicate health, especially if suffering from any definite ailment, are not willing to assume the burden and responsibility of a family," says the Journal. "Another factor quite as surely is that married men live much more regular lives as a rule and consequently avoid many of the dangers of irregular living.

Divorced Men, Beware!

"This view would seem to be corroborated by the statistics as to the mortality among married men who have lost their wives either by death or divorce. The death rate among these 'unmarried men' is considerably higher than that of husbands of the same age, and even as a rule it is higher than that of the bachelors of the same age.

"The death rate, for instance, of widowers and divorced men between 20 and 30 is nearly double that of single men. From 30 to 40 it is only as 14.1 to 12.9, while from 40 to 50 the mortality of divorced and widowers is slightly less than that of single men of the same age. From 50 to 60, however, it is slightly higher once more.

"At all these ages the mortality rate among widowers and the divorced is at least nearly and sometimes double that of married men of the same age."

Discover "Dementia Telephonica."

The current number of the Journal also reports a new aberration in Germany, and known as "dementia telephonica." A Berlin attorney was convicted of abusing the postoffice administration, through his round denunciation of the telephone service it controls.

It appears he characterized as "sheep" and "camels" the operators who told him nine times in rapid succession his line was busy. He finally learned from the chief operator he had been deceived, and exploded. That explosion cost him $65, for while the medical experts testified to the existence of the mental disease known as telephonic vexation, it was held the unhappy attorney had not yet passed the stage of legal responsibility.

CHARGED WITH ATTACK ON GIRL.

Isadore Rosen Held as Result of Occurrence in the Athenæum Building.

Isadore Rosen, 19 years old, who says he is a printer and lives at 1218 South Kedzie avenue, is under arrest on a charge of attacking Miss Margaret Richardson, a stenographer in the offices of the Cummings Teaming company, Athenæum building, 162 North Dearborn street.

RUSH ORDERS BREAKING CODE

Aldermen "Put Over" 23 Requests for Illegal Permits.

OPPOSITION BOWLED DOWN.

Disapproval of City Health Department Is Ignored.

Twenty-three council orders for permits for buildings violating the municipal code were hurried through the committee on buildings yesterday. Only thirteen requests for special privileges were placed on file.

The "flood" was caused by the desire of the proponents of the numerous orders to get them through the council before it adjourns for the summer vacation. Ald. George Pretzel and Ald. Hiram Vanderbilt were the only members to oppose the rapid action. Ald John Powers was at the helm in urging adoption for most of the orders.

Health Recommendations Ignored.

A number were passed in spite of the opposition of the health department or the building department, or both. Both departments reported against an order that had been presented by Ald. E. M. Cross. This gave E. S. M. Peterson permission to occupy a three story brick building at 2953 East Ninety-second street. The building is twenty-five feet wide and had been moved on a twenty-five foot lot, although the code requires open spaces at the sides of residence buildings.

Ald. Cross also fathered an order to permit the maintenance of a frame addition 18 feet by 21 feet on a building at 8319 Buffalo avenue, which had been raised three feet without a permit.

Ald. John Haderlein put over one permitting the maintenance of a building owned by Peter Johnson, at 1326 School street, which had been converted into a tenement although the building department permit authorized only a renewal of the posts under it.

Carr and Martin Make Requests.

Ald. Patrick J. Carr and Ald. Charles Martin of the Fifth ward united in obtaining sanction for a building that had been raised so that a basement flat could be used. The work was done without a permit. It is at 3305 South Claremont avenue, and is owned by Joseph Havel. The same aldermen backed an order for a 16 by 45 addition to the packing house of J. R. Biersdorf, although it lies within the fire limits.

LILLIAN LORRAINE, ACTRESS, SUES HUSBAND FOR DIVORCE.

Alleges Frederick M. Greisheimer Concealed from Her His True Character —Calls Him Dishonest.

New York, July 18.—Lillian Lorraine, the actress, today began action through her attorney, Herman L. Roth, for the annulment of her marriage to Frederick M. Greisheimer on the ground of fraud and deceit.

The papers are served by publication, since it is alleged that the husband has left the woman, taking with him, she avers, a valuable ring. Incidentally, Mr. Roth declared tonight that the grand jury had indicted him for alleged grand larceny.

According to the plaintiff's affidavit, she was married to Greisheimer on April 25, 1913, in Hoboken. She alleges that he "falsely and fraudulently represented to the plaintiff that he was a respectable, honest, law abiding, and honorable man, and concealed from the plaintiff his true character."

"Upon information and belief," it is declared, "the defendant is and was a man of very bad repute."

FINED FOR VISITING DOCTOR.

Wife of Dr. I. N. Albright Objects to Widow's Call and Prosecutes the Woman.

Mrs. Harriet Arnold, said to be a wealthy widow from New York, was fined $25 and costs by Municipal Judge Hopkins yesterday. She was accused by the wife of Dr. I. N. Albright of 623 South Campbell avenue.

The wife testified she pretended to leave town on a vacation and then suddenly returned home and caught Mrs. Arnold with her husband.

HERE'S THE STORY OF BUSTER BROWN

Little Lost Boy Adopted by Banker Paulsen Again Becomes an "Orphan."

Chauffeur "Joe" Proves the Only Good Fairy for Deserted Family.

Once upon a time, just as the story books have it, there was a little boy and a little girl. They were orphans. They didn't know anybody in the world. They didn't know each other.

Then there was a man who ran a bank and who had a beautiful wife who had been on the stage. The banker and his wife had money and automobiles and lots of things, but no children.

Something happened in the bank one day, and they took the banker away and locked him in prison. The banker's wife was alone then in their big house. It was lonesome because the banker was gone and there were no little children.

So the banker's wife went to Washington, D. C., and told the president of the United States how lonely she was without her husband and without children. The president wrote his name on a sealed paper and the wife thanked him, and soon the banker and his wife were living again in the big house.

Buster Brown Comes to the Scene.

One day a big policeman found a little boy in a Buster Brown suit, wandering down town. He was lost. He stayed a week at the police station. His pictures were published in the papers and many persons went to see him but no one claimed him. The banker one day saw "Buster." He took the little boy back to the wife who wanted to play mother to a child in the lonely big house.

Then Buster wanted a playmate and the banker's wife went to a big home and found the little girl. Her name was Mary and she used to play every day with Buster, whose real name is John.

The banker and his wife were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Paulsen and up to three years ago they occupied apartments in the Leiter flat building, at 1550 Jackson Park terrace, in which Mr. Paulsen had an interest. Buster and Mary were there, and the banker was there, and the banker's pretty wife was happy. Everybody was happy then.

Here Is Where Joe Comes In.

"Joe" used to drive the banker's big limousine. "Joe" was just a smallish sort of a fellow. Buster and Mary used to sit with him in the front seat every afternoon when Mrs. Paulsen would drive downtown for Mr. Paulsen. And sometimes they would stop and go through the shops and when they came out "Joe" would be waiting at the curb and they would climb in beside him and tell him all about the pretty things they had seen.

Then the trouble came. The Paulsens separated. Each said the other was to blame. But the husband finally was turned against the wife, who had secured his freedom from the president.

The wife was left without funds. She said Mr. Paulsen had taken $30,000 of her own money and lost it. Mr. Paulsen said he could not get along with her. She was asked to move out of the big apartment. Then there was a notice served and Mrs. Paulsen and Buster and Mary were put out.

Confides Her Woes to "Joe."

"Joe" didn't know what to do about it. Mr. Paulsen had taken the automobile. There was nothing for Joe to do in the garage. He couldn't take Buster and Mary riding every day. Mrs. Paulsen didn't know what to do. She asked "Joe." She told him she was penniless and without friends. She asked "Joe" how she was going to take care of Buster and Mary and herself.

"Joe" went to work on the north side. He worked as chauffeur in another family. Every week he sent most of his money to Mrs. Paulsen. Every week on his night off he would go out to see Buster and Mary and bring them candy. Mrs. Paulsen became ill from worry over the separation. A year ago she rented the first floor of a small frame house at 362 East Thirtieth street.

"Joe" went there to room. He wanted to be with Buster and Mary and some one had to be bringing in money. So "Joe" went to work in the Twentieth Century garage at Forty-seventh street and Grand boulevard. He gets $14 a week. Every cent of it has been going into the little home at 362 East Thirtieth street. "Joe"—formerly the liveried chauffeur for the banker's family—had become its chief support.

Mrs. Paulsen Goes to Hospital.

Yesterday the ambulance backed up in front of the building and took Mrs. Paulsen to the county hospital. The nervous strain and the use of opiates has made her a wreck. Buster and Mary are being cared for upstairs during the night time, because "Joe" works at night. But in the daytime they come downstairs and play with him.

"Joe's" last name is Gonder, and he is 26 years old.

W. A. Paulsen, who ran the bank that failed, who was pardoned by the president, and who separated from his wife, has offices in a lawyer's suite on Dearborn street.

That's the story of "Buster and Mary" and "Joe."

HOORAY FOR DIRTY-FACED BOYS!

Judge Sullivan Denies Divorced Mother Plea That Father Was Negligent Because Sons' Noses Were Soiled.

The recital of Mrs. Lena Kimball-Powers, divorced wife of Carl Kimball, Evanston lumberman, of the dirty condition of her young sons now in their father's custody did not impress Judge Sullivan yesterday. She mentioned their dirty faces as evidence they were not properly cared for. Judge Sullivan responded he would not have a 9 year old boy that didn't get dirty often, and left the boys with their father. A year after the divorce the mother married the man named as co-respondent.

WANT SCHOOL JOB AT $6,000

Trustees Urge Selection of Chief Engineer for the Board.

PLACE OPEN SINCE 1910.

Two Examinations Held Disclose No One Qualified.

Trustees of the board of education complained yesterday of the situation resulting from the failure of the civil service commission to fill the position of chief engineer of the board, which pays $6,000 a year.

The trustees learned during the day that two examinations have been held for the position—one promotional and one original entrance—and that every applicant has failed to pass.

The position of chief engineer has been vacant since Dec. 5, 1910. N. L. Patterson, assistant chief engineer, has been the acting chief since. One year ago the buildings and grounds committee indorsed John L. McNamara, engineer of the Harper school, for the position. The board failed to confirm him because of an attack he made upon Herbert Fleming, then secretary of the Civil Service Reform association.

As a result of the outcome of the civil service examinations several board members are demanding that a sixty days' appointee be selected and held over until a permanent appointment can be made.

At a meeting of the buildings and grounds committee during the day Trustee John C. Harding objected to a recommendation of Supt. Ella Flagg Young that all high school pupils be required to deposit 25 cents for locker keys. The recommendation was adopted after Secretary Larson explained that 75 per cent of the keys are lost or never returned.

PATROLMAN SOLVES MYSTERY WHILE DETECTIVES PUZZLE.

Thinks to Look in Directory and Locates Place Where Girl Who Was Reported Missing Had Gone.

Detectives familiar with mysterious foreign societies were called into conference yesterday afternoon to solve the mystery of a missing girl, Miss Anna Joenson of Ironwood, Mich. She came to town, showed a taxicab driver a slip of paper with the strange name, "Eelu Aalio," and asked to be taken to 125 West Van Buren street.

Arriving there she found a building in course of demolition and disappeared. The driver reported to the police. He suspected she had been kidnaped by the unknown Eelu Aalio. The experienced detectives agreed with him and scratched their heads.

Then a plain, ordinary patrolman, whose inexperience had kept him out of the detectives' conference, peeked cautiously into a city directory. He banged the book shut.

"Here," he said, haughtily. "Use your eyes. Eelu runs an employment agency at 2014 Osgood street. He used to be at Van Buren."

The mortified detectives sent out to Osgood street. There they found Miss Joensen, who had been struck with the same bright thought as the patrolman. She had come to town to look for a job.

BOXBOARD SUED FOR $1,500,000

Bondholders' Committee Claims Difference in Mortgage Sale.

NAMES PRESENT COMPANY.

Climax in Series of Difficulties Since Reorganizations.

More trouble for the United Boxboard company, which has seen little except trouble since its reorganizations—and before them—came yesterday when the bondholders' committee of the old United Boxboard and Paper company filed suit for $1,500,000 in the Superior court.

The suit is directed at the present company and its officers and directors ex-officio. The committee is headed by O. C. Barber, former president of the Diamond Match company and active in the affairs of the American Strawboard company, for a long time the subsidiary which carried the load of the $14,500,000 parent company. The others are C. H. Palmer, vice president of Strawboard, and L. D. Brown, cashier of the Second and Third National bank of Akron, O. Capital is largely that of Akron people.

The old properties were sold under foreclosure of the general mortgage a short time ago, and the contention of the bondholders' committee is that they should have the difference between the realized amount and the price they paid. This is better than $1,000,000, and the suit was made for the entire amount of the issue.

ASSERTS TELEPHONE MEN "RAIDED" HIS DRUG STORE.

M. W. Rankin Tells "The Tribune" Workers Took Out Two Bell Instruments on "Divine Right" Basis.

Montrose W. Rankin of Rankin & White, druggists at East Thirty-sixth and State streets, yesterday telephoned THE TRIBUNE the following:

"A wrecking crew from the Chicago Telephone company this morning backed a wagon up in front of our store. They then proceeded to demolish part of our walls in removing the two Bell telephones and booths we have been using. I protested, and they told me the Chicago Telephone company had a 'divine right to telephone service in Chicago.' They made a lot of unnecessary noise and took the booths away, leaving an ugly hole in the wall.

"Ten days ago I received a letter from the company stating that if I did not take out the Automatic telephone I am using the Bell telephones would be disconnected. I did not think they would dare do such a thing and paid no attention to their request. It is an outrage. There was absolutely no reason for their removing the telephones except that I also used the Automatic."

Establishment of the new telephone complaint bureau was practically assured when the council finance committee last night voted to appropriate $3,000 for its maintenance for the remainder of the year. The appropriation will provide for a commissioner, an investigator, and a clerk.

WOMEN ASK CITY LODGING HOUSE

Sarah Hackett Stevenson Board Hears Plea Based on New Right to Vote.

WANT PLACE LIKE MEN'S.

Mrs. L. Brackett Bishop Voices Demand That Municipality Aid Charity.

Mrs. L. Brackett Bishop "revolted" yesterday. And by revolting she set the members of the executive board of the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial Lodging House association upon a brand new idea accruing from the woman's suffrage bill. As a result of that idea the women are going to campaign for a woman's municipal lodging house.

At the meeting of the board in the Fine Arts building ways and means were discussed for the equipment and maintenance of the new woman's lodging house at 2012 and 2014 Prairie avenue, the gift of William McKinley, Republican campaign manager.

The interest on $10,000 from Mr. McKinley is to be spent toward the equipment and maintenance of the houses, but the money is not adequate for the present plans of the organization.

Discuss Money Plans.

"Now that we women are voters," said Mrs. Bishop, "I revolt against all this namby-pamby digging around to get money for the housing of the poor women and children of the city.

"We have asked for appropriations before, but the city council has always said that inasmuch as only men are municipal voters they alone are entitled to protection from the city. They have refused to establish municipal lodging houses for women because women were not voters. Now that we have the vote, or at least two-thirds of a vote, I think we should have at least two-thirds of a municipal lodging house for women."

Sixth Ward Women Organize.

Organization of the Sixth Ward Suffrage alliance was completed yesterday at a meeting at the residence of Mrs. B. L. Engelke, at 5231 Cornell avenue. Every precinct was put in charge of a chairman, who will at once begin work in educating every woman in her territory in the use of the ballot. Five vice chairmen of the alliance were appointed—Mrs. Frederick Bently, 4750 Kenwood avenue; Miss Elvora Cabell, 5516 Washington avenue; Mrs. E. A. Eulass, 5722 Madison avenue; Miss Emma Jacobson, 4838 Langley avenue; Mrs. Martha E. Abt, 5301 Indiana avenue.

Mrs. P. Mentzer was elected secretary and Mrs. Marie B. Smith treasurer. The alliance will hold another meeting next Friday afternoon to hear reports on progress.

Hysterical over the prospect of being sent to a training school as a result of her leaving home with an unidentified youth, 17 year old Anna Schumiski of 2517 North Ashland avenue in the Juvenile court yesterday raised a vial to her lips. Courtroom attendants shouted and ran for her, but before they arrived she was moaning on the floor. She was rushed to Practitioners' hospital. Treatment was so prompt that the poison she had taken was out before it had time to cause fatal injury. Late at night it was thought she would recover. The girl ran away two weeks ago.

OLD TARIFF CUT 27.64 PER CENT

New Measure, Completed, Expected to Yield Surplus of $2,020,000 in 1914.

4.22 UNDER HOUSE BILL.

Free Imports Listed in New Schedules at $147,367,000; Debate Is Delayed.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—An average reduction of 27.64 par cent under the rates of the existing Payne-Aldrich tariff law is proposed by the Democratic Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, upon which the senate began general debate today, according to the report of the finance committee majority submitted by the chairman, Senator F. M. Simmons.

Owing to a death in his family, the second within a few weeks, Senator Simmons did not make his opening speech for the majority as he had planned, but will speak tomorrow.

The report shows that the bill as reported to the senate provides rates 4.22 per cent lower than the Underwood bill as it passed the house and that from it, together with other government receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, there will be an estimated surplus in the government treasury of $2,020,000.

Great Increase in Free Imports.

A salient feature of this bill, it is pointed out, is the large increase of imports to be admitted free of duty. Under the house bill the value of free listed imports, on the basis of 1912 importations, was $103,000,000, whereas the Democrats of the senate in caucus, by sweeping changes, propose to free list imports valued at $147,367,000, an increase in undutiable imports over the house bill of $48,367,000.

Upon the basis of ten months for the coming fiscal year, the report estimates that the total customs receipts under the new bill will be $266,730,000; from income tax for ten months, $58,330,000; corporation tax, $37,000,000; internal revenue, including tax on cotton futures, $207,000,000, and that the revenue from all other sources will bring the total for the fiscal year to $996,810,000. With disbursements, estimated for the committee by treasury experts at $904,790,000, a balance is shown in favor of the government of $2,020,000.

Emphasize Retaliation Clause.

In analyzing its changes in the house administrative features of the bill, the committee "deemed the amendments of the house entirely too drastic," particularly those authorizing examination of books of foreign manufacturers, a 5 per cent tariff discount on imports in American ships, and other like features, which were stricken out. Particular attention is called to the senate provision "designated to furnish the president with power to impose tariff duties of a retaliatory character upon all articles comprised in a specified list," which includes many agricultural products.

"For some years," says the report in referring to this retaliatory provision, "there has been a development of maximum and minimum tariffs, and in not a few instances the government of the United States has been compelled to see its citizens subjected to harsh and discriminating tariff treatment abroad without being able under the law to afford relief.

Will Exact Fair Treatment.

"The provision recommended will, it is believed, place in the hands of the president powers which, though extensive in their sphere, are sufficiently circumscribed to permit of their being exerted within the limits assigned them without disturbing the general fiscal system of the United States. Wise use of the retaliatory power will, it is expected, bring about equitable arrangements with those countries which do not now afford us fair treatment."

Of another important feature added by the senate committee, a tax of 1-10 of 1 cent a pound on cotton sold through stock exchanges for future delivery, the report says:

"The committee believes the subject matter to be one fit for the imposition of a proper tax.

"If the effect of the proposed tax is to eliminate gambling and to leave intact that part of the dealings resorted to for hedging purposes the revenue derived from this tax should amount to about $7,000,000 a year, and if its imposition does not have the effect of eliminating the gambling or speculative end of the business the revenue derived therefrom will be enormously in excess of this amount."

Income Tax Exemption $3,000.

Reduction of the basis exemption from income tax from $4,000, as in the house bill, to $3,000 for unmarried persons, and the consequent rearrangement of this, the report comments upon as follows:

"Your committee reduces the amount of exemption of net income to $3,000 and allows on account of marriage an additional exemption of $1,000 to either the husband or wife where they are living together, but not to both. In the case of a minor child or children living with and dependent upon the parent, such parent is allowed an additional exemption of $500 for one minor child and up to $1,000 on account of minor children, except where both parents are taxable, in which case no exemption is allowable on account of children. By the amendment the lowest possible exemption to any one person would be $3,000 and the highest possible exemption to any one person $5,000.

"While the amendment may make no wide difference in the volume of revenue derivable from the tax, it is deemed equitable as recognizing the added obligations on account of marriage and children, and salutary as emphasizing the family as the unit in our social structure."

Farm Implements Free.

The changes in all the schedules are dealt with at length in the report. Of agricultural products, many of which were transferred to the free list, in addition to those put there by the house, the committee has this to say:

"The house bill and amendments made by the committee on finance fully recognized the paramount interests of our agricultural population by placing agricultural implements of every description, fence and baling wire, cotton bagging and ties, low priced blankets, boots and shoes, cement, nails, lumber, coal, harness, saddles, cotton gins, wagons, carts, bagging for grain, wool, and other bags, sewing machines, and many other products of daily utility on the free list.

Hits at Steel Trust.

The sugar and wool schedules are left unchanged as to free sugar and free raw wool, but reductions by the senate committee in wool tops and yarns are explained and sweeping reductions in the metal schedule are treated in the report with considerable comment. Pig iron, ferromanganese, and other products were placed on the free list by the committee and the report says:

"The house bill places iron ore upon the free list mainly because it was found that the domestic supply of iron ore was largely controlled by the United States Steel corporation and for the purpose of aiding the independent iron and steel manufacturers in their competition with this monopoly."

ENTER RACE TO SUCCEED HAND

Craig of Galesburg and Bergland of Galva New Candidates.

FOR SUPREME COURT POST.

Thompson Leaves Puterbaugh Only Republican in Field.

Two Democratic candidates for the Supreme court vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Justice John P. Hand came into the open yesterday.

Charles C. Craig of Galesburg, who was the Democratic nominee against Justice Hand in 1909, let it become known that he will again be in the running, and Judge Albert E. Bergland of Galva, Henry county, declared himself a candidate "unless the Democrats of the district unite on some other man in the interest of party success."

At the same time the news reached Chicago that Judge Leslie D. Puterbaugh of Peoria is likely to have a clear field for the Republican nomination. Judge George W. Thompson of Galesburg, Knox county, has figured strongly in all of the predictions, and politicians were surprised when it was learned he had telegraphed from Charlevoix, Mich., that he would not be a candidate if the Peoria jurist expected to be entered in the primary contest.

Leaders of the Progressive state organization are understood to be warming up some possibilities, the most formidable suggested yesterday being Congressman William H. Hinebaugh of Ottawa.

MERIT SYSTEM SET ASIDE; "PULL" LANDS ECUADOR POST.

Nomination of Charles S. Hartman of Montana Over Efficient Secretary Shows Administration's Attitude.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—[Special.]—The nomination of Charles S. Hartman of Montana as minister to Ecuador, which was sent to the senate this afternoon, was regarded here today as final, conclusive evidence that the merit system in the diplomatic corps is to be ruthlessly disregarded by the new administration.

The reason for this significance, which is attached to the Hartman nomination, lies in the fact that he displaces a young man, Montgomery S. Schuyler, who has never been in politics, who went into the lowest grade of the diplomatic service upon the completion of his extensive education, and who by his exceptionally efficient service rose through all the grades until last year he was promoted from the secretaryship of the embassy at Mexico City to be minister to Ecuador.

SENATE SEETHES IN BRYAN DEBATE

Exchange Bitter Personalities After Voting Down Bristow's Resolution.

ASSAIL EVEN WILSON.

Boomerang Hits Ashurst After Reply to Excoriation of Nebraskan.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—[Special.]—Rarely in the history of the United States senate have such bitter personalities been exchanged as was the case today following the tabling of the Bristow resolution condemning William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state, for his Chautauqua speechmaking program.

The resolution was disposed of finally by a vote of 41 to 29, all the Democrats and Senator Borah of Idaho, Republican, and Senator Poindexter, Progressive, joining in its defeat.

The tabling of the resolution proved only the curtain raiser, however, for the stormy scene that held the attention of the senators and spectators throughout the afternoon.

The Probable Results.

The upshot of the debate today will be:

That the attention of the country will be centered upon the Bryan incident—a condition the Republicans were anxious to bring about.

That public officials, including senators and member of the house, will be more careful to devote themselves hereafter to public business and decline opportunities to make money through speechmaking, the practice of law, or otherwise, which might interfere with observance of their official duties.

That a reform will be inaugurated so as to compel senators to differentiate between public and private telegraph messages, and thus save the government thousands of dollars annually.

Bristow Assails Ashurst.

Senator Bristow, in tones vibrant with anger, charged Senator Ashurst of Arizona with using public funds for private telegrams costing in a single day as much as $100.

This charge followed the reading by Mr. Ashurst of a letter written by Senator Bristow in 1906 asking the then Senator Long of Kansas to arrange for his appointment as a member of the Isthmian canal commission, which would give him ample time for political and other work at home.

Senator Lewis of Illinois, who made his maiden speech, upheld Mr. Bryan and quizzed Senator Townsend of Michigan, who had attacked the secretary, with reference to whether the Michigan statesman had practiced law while holding public office.

Cancels One Engagement.

Mr. Bryan was excoriated for leaving his office for private gain when important questions of state were pressing for consideration. Mr. Bryan answered this criticism by announcing today, following his return from a speechmaking trip to Mountain Lake Park, Md., that he had determined to cancel a Chautauqua address in order to be in Washington next week to discuss Mexican affairs with Ambassador Wilson.

Mr. Bryan told the correspondents that he had made $250 and expenses at Mountain Lake Park; that he would tell the public the profits of his forthcoming tour, which last summer averaged "something" over $250 for each speech delivered for hire.

The usual arrangement, according to Mr. Bryan, is that he takes the first $250 brought into the gate, the Chautauqua association taking the next $250 paid in, and then he and the association split even on all the rest. He denied that he was using a connection with the Winona conference and assembly of Winona, Ind., to further his own business of lecturing.

Assail Wilson and Taft.

President Wilson was assailed in the senate debate for permitting the secretary of state to neglect his official duties in order to swell his pocketbook.

Former President Taft was attacked for spending the public moneys in payment of his traveling expenses during the last campaign.

Former Secretary of State Knox was charged with absence from Washington when the business of state required his presence here.

In short, it was a field day for personalities in the senate. The rule of the chamber that "no senator in debate shall, directly or indirectly, by any form of words impute to another senator or to other senators any conduct or motive unworthy or unbecoming a senator" was completely disregarded.

The most sensational feature of the debate occurred when Senator Ashurst, in order to minimize the effect of Senator Bristow's condemnation of Bryan, read the Bristow letter to Long, asking for a $7,500 appointment on the Isthmian canal commission, which would require his presence on the canal only once in every three months.

Admits Authorship of Letter.

"I could hold it and live in Kansas," the letter concluded, "being there at least half my time, and when the fight got hot I could resign."

Senator Bristow promptly admitted he was the author of the letter and said that during his last campaign it had been hawked about the state, with the result that he was nominated by a majority of the Republicans and elected by a majority of the people of the state. Then, shaking his finger at Ashurst, he countered on the Arizonian in these words:

"Since I have been a member of the senate I have not expended $100 a day of the funds of the United States to carry telegrams to my constituents, as has the senator from Arizona, many of which should have been paid for by himself. I have not at public expense carried on a private correspondence by telegraph."

Senator Ashurst vehemently denied any improper use of the telegraph or letter frank. He "dared" Mr. Bristow to prove his charge.

Bristow Loaded for Bear.

Apparently Ashurst failed to realize that he had precipitated himself against a buzzsaw whirling at a rapid rate. Bristow is a member of the committee on contingent expenses of the senate, which passes upon all such matters as telegraph bills. When this committee met a few days ago it was advised that on one day Ashurst had sent telegrams costing $102. The committee seriously discussed, on Bristow's motion, the necessity of establishing a rule to distinguish between public and private messages. Consideration of the matter was postponed in order to give the committee an opportunity to sound the sentiment of the senate.

So the Kansas senator was "loaded for bear." As the debate went on Mr. Ashurst, repeating his denial, urged Bristow to concede that in his anger he had lost his head and heart, but the Kansan insisted he would produce the evidence which would substantiate his charge.

James Hamilton Lewis Stars.

The speeches attacking Mr. Bryan were made principally by Senators Bristow and Townsend, while his defenders were Senators Lewis, Stone, Ashurst, James, Shafroth, and others. The Democrats largely contented themselves with endeavoring to show that it was a case of the "pot calling the kettle black." A few of them sought to defend the propriety of Mr. Bryan's conduct.

The star in this connection easily was James Hamilton Lewis. With that ease and grace which have distinguished his utterances in Illinois, in Washington, and in the house of representatives, he declaimed his admiration of Mr. Bryan. When the junior senator from Illinois finished his face was wearing a smile of real appreciation at what he had done.

Now Comes the Second Week —the Dollar-and-a-Half-Off Week

LAST week we said we'd clear a lot of shoes; 1913 spring and summer styles; oxfords and high shoes; all leathers; all sizes, with an extra good assortment for men with small feet.

The plan was: The first week $1.00 off the price; that's over. The second week, $1.50 off the price; that's now. Third week, $2.00 off the price; that's coming.

Here's the way we put it:

First Week—July 11th to 18th $1.00 off. Any man or boy who buys next week can take first choice of the goods at $1.00 off the price.

That's gone now; we sold a lot of shoes; some men wanted us to hold shoes for them; couldn't do it; first come, first served. If they're here yet you're welcome to them; $1.50 off.

Second Week—July 19th to 25th $1.50 off. If you wait another week till the first comers have picked, take your choice of what's left, $1.50 off.

That's the way it stands now; you can buy $5.00 shoes for $3.50; $4.00 shoes for $2.50; $3.00 shoes for $1.50; for one week, beginning today.

Third Week—July 26th to Aug. 1st, $2.00 off. The third week, after two weeks' picking has been done, $2.00 off.

If you want to take a chance on the third week you can wait; we don't advise it.

You'll find a good many patent colt oxfords among them; the correct and dressy shoes for fall wear; they're certainly a big bargain at such prices. You'll save $1.50 on them this week.

ECZEMA SPREAD ALL OVER BODY

Began on Cheeks With Pimples. Itched Badly. Caused Disfigurement. Had to Put Mittens on Him. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Eczema Left Him.

Roxbury, Ohio. — "When my little boy was two weeks old he began breaking out on his cheeks. The eczema began just with pimples and they seemed to itch so badly he would scratch his face and cause a matter to run. Wherever that matter would touch, it would cause another pimple until it spread all over his body. It caused disfigurement while it lasted. He had fifteen places on one arm and his head had several. The deepest places on his cheeks were as large as a silver dollar on each side. He was so restless at night we had to put mittens on him to keep him from scratching them with his finger nails. He could not sleep because I put those mittens on which would not allow him to scratch and then he would wake up and be cross. If he got a little too warm at night it seemed to hurt badly.

"We tried a treatment and he didn't get any better. He had the eczema about three weeks when we began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed him at night with the Cuticura Soap and spread the Cuticura Ointment on and the eczema left." (Signed) Mrs. John White, Mar. 19, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold everywhere. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

BULGARIAN QUEEN SUES FOR PEACE

Elizabeth Appeals to Roumania's Consort to Check Invasion.

GETS DOUBTFUL REPLY.

Carmen Sylva Says Troops Will Advance but with "Great Consideration."

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, July 19, 3 a. m.—The most interesting happening of the war in the Balkans is the telegraphic appeal of Queen Eleonore of Bulgaria to Queen Elizabeth ["Carmen Sylva"] of Roumania asking that the advance of the Roumanian troop into Bulgaria be stopped. To this Queen Elizabeth replied that the Roumanian soldiers would continue to advance, "but with the greatest consideration."

Telegrams from Salonica say the Roumanian, Greek and Servian armies will march on Sofia and dictate terms of peace at the Bulgarian capital. On the other hand a Bucharest dispatch to the Daily Mail states that although the Roumanian army continues to advance on Sofia the Roumanian government has not yet definitely decided to occupy the Bulgarian capital.

The Daily Express says that King Charles of Roumania has answered the message of King Ferdinand of Bulgaria in reference to the basis on which he is prepared to restore relations of friendship between the two countries.

Roumania Stands by Allies.

Although the reply is not published, it is understood that its tenor is to the effect that it is necessary in making peace with Roumania also to make peace with Servia and Greece, and that the Roumanian monarch is carrying on negotiations towards this end.

A dispatch from Bucharest to the Morning Post says that King Charles refers the Bulgarian monarch to the last Roumanian note on this subject. This formulates a demand for the territory within the Turtukai-Dobritch-Balchik line, the participation of Roumania in the regularization of the Balkan situation and the maintenance of the equilibrium in the Balkans.

According to a Servian official report, the main Bulgarian army is now massed between Kustendil and Dubnitza, about forty miles south of Sofia, and here the Bulgarians will make their last stand if the allies attempt to march on the capital. It is said, however, that the Bulgarians are wholly unprepared to resist any attempted invasion of Sofia, and should the Roumanians push on they could enter the city at any time.

New Bulgarian Cabinet Formed.

M. Malinoff, the Democratic leader, abandoned his efforts to form a new Bulgarian cabinet and M. Radoslavoff, the Liberal leader, accepted the premiership today and immediately formed a cabinet.

The charges in regard to massacres and outrages of various kinds are repeated from Bulgarian and Greek and Servian sources. The Bulgarian general in charge of the army operating against the Greeks charges the Greek troops with deliberately raking with their cannon fire the hospital at Demir-Hissar, notwithstanding the fact that the Red Cross flag was flying over the building. All the nurses who did not flee and the patients were killed and a few of the sick and wounded who had managed to crawl out from the ruins of the hospital were shot down by Greek soldiers. It is also charged that the Greek troops massacred the entire population of Kilkish.

Massacre Charged to Bulgars.

The Greeks are hurrying to the town of Xanthi in Macedonia to protect the inhabitants from a massacre which has been threatened by the Bulgarians, who are retreating from Drama to Xanthi.

An official Greek statement charges that the Bulgarians destroyed the city of Serres and massacred many people. The ruins are filled with mutilated bodies of aged men and women as well as children. It is also charged that the Bulgarians massacred people and committeed outrages at Derran. The town of Doxato is said to be nothing but a shambles and only 150 of its 3,500 inhabitants remain.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF SURGERY TO HONOR DR. J. B. MURPHY.

Chicagoan Will Be Elected a Fellow of London Institution in Recognition of His Operations and Discoveries.

Friends of Dr. John B. Murphy learned yesterday that he is soon to be elected a fellow of the Royal College of Surgery of London. This distinction has been conferred upon few American physicians.

Dr. Murphy, accompanied by Mrs. Murphy, will depart on Sunday for London, primarily to attend the International Congress of Medicine, before which he will deliver an address.

Dr. Murphy is particularly famous for the invention of the so-called Murphy button, now used universally in intestinal operations. Chicago physicians, however, believe he is to be honored abroad for his more recent achievements in bone surgery which have attracted worldwide attention. His success in simplifying the intricacies of appendicitis operations also has earned the approval of surgeons everywhere, it is declared. He is credited with being a pioneer in this work.

The collapsing of the lungs as a means of treating tuberculosis, originated by Dr. Murphy fifteen years ago, also is being extensively used now, it is said, particularly in

After the London congress Dr. and Mrs. Murphy will go to Carlsbad, where they expect to remain for two months.

HEAT WAVE LIGHTENS GRIP AS TWENTY-ONE VICTIMS FLEE.

Missouri and Kansas Get Relief with Rains, but Louisville and Indiana Cities Swelter.

The heat wave lightened its grip on the middle west yesterday, although the list of victims grew greater. Twenty-one deaths were reported. Twelve died at Louisville, where the maximum temperature was 104; six in Indiana and three at St. Louis, where the mercury was above 100. Scores were prostrated in these as well as other cities sweltering in the wave. Five drownings were reported in Indiana.

Showers brought relief to Kansas and Missouri, although the heat there continued to be intense. At Joplin, Mo., 106 degrees was recorded. Arkansas City, Kas., reported 104 degrees. The hot winds, however, have abated.

At Clinton, Ia., the mercury yesterday dropped thirty degrees. Heavy hail storms damaged crops.

Lightning at Hutchinson, Kas., last night destroyed an elevator. Great damage also was reported at other near by cities.

A report from Meeker, Colo., says Thursday night the temperature was 98 degrees, but in the morning there was a heavy frost.

Taken When They Fought Side by Side; One Now "Monster," Other "Falsifier."

Greek Soldier. Bulgarian Soldier.

This photograph of a Greek and a Bulgarian soldier was taken at Saloniki, Turkey, during the joint occupation of that city by the Greek and Bulgarian troops. King Constantine continues to inform the world of instances of atrocities committed by the Bulgarians in the war between the former allies now in progress, and in reply the Bulgarian government says the Greeks are trying to poison the minds of the world against Bulgaria.

NEW HAVEN SEEKS PRESIDENT

Directors Name Committee to Pick Mellen's Successor.

WILL MEET NEXT WEEK.

Retiring Head Cites "Disquiet" as Reason for Withdrawal.

New York, July 18.—[Special.]—A committee of six New Haven railroad directors instructed to find a successor to President Charles S. Mellen, whose resignation was accepted today, will meet next week, probably on Wednesday, to discuss informally the qualifications of possible candidates whom members of the committee will be ready to suggest at that time.

The committeemen are J. P. Morgan, Theodore N. Vail, Samuel Rea, William Skinner, Edward Milligan, and Robert W. Taft.

Committee to Take Time.

"The subcommittee," said a director, "will probably need a good deal of time in making a selection for the consideration of the board. Each member will be expected to canvass the field himself and to lay his opinions before the other members at next week's conference.

"As to Mr. Mellen, the board is sorry that he felt compelled to resign and it did not want him to go. The matter of his resignation never came up in a board meeting until it was received from him on Thursday."

Mellen's Reasons for Retiring.

This report of the meeting, with Mr. Mellen's reason for resigning, was supplied by Edward G. Riggs, executive assistant.

"In a conference between a committee of the board and Mr. Mellen (the same committee already named), Mr. Mellen stated that in his opinion a condition existed that was full of disquieting possibilities for the New Haven railroad and its allied property; that it was useless to discuss the reasons for or the causes of that condition; that it had to be met, and the only way it could be met, having proper consideration for the property, was by his resignation; that he felt that everything he had done was and would be in time justified, but that there was a question whether, if he remained to work the problem to that justification, it would not be still further embarrassed. Therefore he resigned."

CHILE FAVORS U. S. PEACE PLAN

Twenty-second Nation Indorses Bryan Policy in Principle; Seventeen Yet Silent.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—Chile today announced its willingness to consider the details of Secretary Bryan's peace plan, becoming the twenty-second nation to indorse the project in principle. Details of the plan have been forwarded to all of these twenty-two nations, as well as to the seventeen that have not yet replied to the preliminary announcement.

WOMAN "RAIL RIDE" VICTIM THREATENS TO PROSECUTE.

Mrs. John H. Richardson of Volo Blames Her Troubles on Narrow Mindedness of Village Residents.

Mrs. John H. Richardson of Volo., Ill., victim of a rail ride inflicted on her by infuriated women residents of Volo, was found in Chicago yesterday. She was at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Frederick Geiger, 3340 Southport avenue.

The harsh treatment was meted out to her by the women as a result of her alleged undue friendship for her brother-in-law, Will Dunnill, the village stone mason. She blamed the "narrow minded ideas" of the women of the village for her troubles and added that she will prosecute the ringleaders.

"I know who most of the women are," said Mrs. Richardson. "They were led by three women who are jealous of me. One of these is Mrs. Peter Stadtsfield, wife of the village blacksmith, and another is Mrs. Dunnill, with whose husband the village gossips have connected my name.

"My brother, George Kibler of Palatine, will go to Volo and take out warrants for their arrest. It was all because they are narrow minded and envious. All those women have to do is to go to card parties and talk about others. I refused to join their parties and that aroused their jealousy."

Mrs. Richardson said she never will go back to Volo, and added that her husband also will leave the town and join her in Chicago. She "didn't know whether he would."

ARMED NEGRO AMUCK ON BOARD.

Old Coatroom Attendant Suddenly Becomes Violently Insane, but Is Overpowered by Policeman.

William Woody, a negro attendant in the coat room of the board of trade for years, became violently insane yesterday. Flourishing a loaded revolver, Woody sought revenge for fancied injuries, but quickly was disarmed by James Sheeren, board of trade policeman, and taken to Detention hospital.

HOPED TO DELAY MEXICAN ACTION

Publicity Believed to Have Stirred President to Recall Wilson.

BRYAN NOT ON THE JOB?

Rumored He Did Not Consult Consular Reports and Data Already on File.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—[Special.]—Ambassador Wilson has notified the state department that he sailed from Vera Cruz yesterday afternoon, and it is expected that he will be in Washington by the middle or latter part of next week to present a report on the Mexican situation. The ambassador is coming by commercial steamer to Havana, thence to Key West, and from there to Washington by train.

Meantime the attitude of the United States regarding the Mexican situation will continue as it has been. The president has no intention of making the slightest change at present in the course of the administration on this subject. Mr. Bryan will leave town tomorrow night on his lecture tour and will not return until Ambassador Wilson arrives.

Publicity Expedited Action.

It has become more apparent in the last day or two that it was the intention of the administration to ignore the Mexican situation during the summer. It was plainly indicated today that had it not been for the publicity given to the fact that the diplomatic corps in Mexico City had informed their several governments in identical notes that they felt the United States was contributing to the increasing disorder in Mexico, and the publication of the fact that such representations had been made by one of the powers, the president would not, in all probability, have taken the action he did.

Not Sure of Real Facts.

It is apparent that the administration feels uncertain as to the real conditions in Mexico. Not only have Ambassador Wilson's reports left President Wilson and Mr. Bryan in doubt, but reports which the president has received from other sources, chiefly from his friend, William Bayard Hale, who is now in Mexico, are confusing. The administration apparently feels considerably befuddled as to what is really taking place in the southern republic, and for that reason has summoned Ambassador Wilson to Washington.

In regard to this feeling of doubt and uncertainty the criticism was heard in Washington today that Secretary Bryan had not availed himself of the reliable information that is already on file in the state department in regard to Mexico.

New British Envoy to Mexico.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, July 18.—Sir Lionel Edward Gresley Carden, who arranged the Guatemalan debt matter, and who is at present British minister to the Central American states, today was appointed British minister to Mexico in place of Francis W. Strong. Sir Lionel will leave for his new post in September.

MEDILL M'CORMICK TO STUDY STATE OF OREGON'S POLITICS.

Chicagoan Interested in Movement in the Pacific Northwestern Commonwealth to Abolish Upper Chamber.

Portland, Ore., July 18.—Medill McCormick of Chicago, who has been on a vacation fishing in Montana, arrived at Portland, today, to judge at first hand of political conditions in Oregon.

"Oregon" said he, "is the political laboratory of the nation. He is particularly interested in the two movements, one which would put the government of the state under a commission administration, and the other which proposes the abolishing of the senate.

"I am opposed to commission government for states and in favor of a single-chamber legislature," the Chicagoan said. "I am at one with those who believe there should not be double-chambered government for any but the thickley settled, industrial states, such as Illinois and New York.

"I am not sure that two chambers of the legislature are useful even there," he qualified.

ROADS' STAND MEANS PEACE?

New Decision to Abide by Mediators Stills Strike Threats.

WORKERS WARY BUT FIRM.

Union Heads Warn Men to Be Ready Despite Apparent Victory.

New York, July 18.—[Special.]—A new angle in the threatened rail strike of 100,000 men on eastern roads indicates peace will not be as hopeless as thought at one time today.

The roads tonight came to an agreement to abandon their demand for arbitration of "all questions of pay and working conditions" to the new federal board of mediation and conciliation, thereby lessening the possibility of a strike while the trainmen were still threatening in the afternoon.

As the workers have practically agreed to submit their case to the arbitration board and abide by the result, it is believed with the new attitude of the roads, all danger of a strike has passed.

Trainmen Threaten Strike.

The trainmen, however, declare unless the roads sign a stipulation before the first meeting of the mediation board to waive all demands for arbitration except those incident to the present situation they will order a strike within twenty-four hours.

William Lea Chambers, the new commissioner of mediation, is expected here tomorrow, with Judge Martin A. Knapp and W. W. Hangar, assistant, to plan for the first board meeting.

Meantime all the trainmen and conductors in the eastern territory were in receipt of a bulletin from the presidents of their respective organizations today notifying them that unless the roads withdraw their propositions the fixing of the hour for the strike will follow.

Low Induces Attitude.

The action of the roads tonight followed a conference this afternoon between the managers' committee and Seth Low, head of the Civic Federation. Mr. Low had urged the board to withdraw its demand for additional arbitration.

William Lea Chambers, head of the new federal board, at Washington today said the board expects to hear the rail case as early next week as possible. The board will organize tomorrow at the capital.

28,000 SHIPBUILDERS STRIKE.

KIEL, Germany, July 18.—Eight thousand workmen in the shipbuilding yards here joined today in the strike started by 20,000 men at Hamburg on July 14. Indications point to the strike spreading to other shipbuilding yards on the Baltic sea.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS SMOTHER PLAN TO AIR CAMINETTI CASE.

Vote Down Representative Kahn's Resolution, 132 to 84—Congressman Mann Scores Byrns.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—[Special.]—While the senate Democrats were striving unsuccessfully to hush up the discussion of the Bryan affair their colleagues in the house entirely squelched the efforts of the Republicans to air the Caminetti case.

Led by Representative Byrns of Tennessee the Democrats tabled Representative Kahn's resolution to investigate the Caminetti affair by a vote of 132 to 84.

After the house adjourned Republican Leader Mann in an interview charged Attorney General McReynolds with instigating the action of Byrns in shutting off consideration of the resolution.

In his interview Representative Mann said:

"The almost unprecedented action of the Democrats in the house today of laying the Kahn resolution of inquiry in the Caminetti case on the table shows how desperately afraid the Democrats are of having the truth known. The movement was led by Mr. Byrns of Tennessee, the state from which the attorney general comes, and it is understood that Mr. Byrns is acting at the instigation of the attorney general. Mr. Byrns has twice prevented Mr. Kahn making his speech on the question.

"That the attorney general does not want the truth known is not surprising. He did not send all the papers to the judiciary committee."

Drowns from a Handcar.

A man supposed to be George Miller, a block signal maintainer for the St. Paul railroad, was drowned yesterday when a handcar he was propelling across the bridge on West Thirty-third street was struck by a freight train and he and the car thrown into the river.

SATURDAY, JULY 19, 1913.

NUMBER TWO

The private bank of Alexander Pate in Iroquois county has failed. Mr. Pate was not in favor of state regulation. The excuse might be put forward for him that he was very old. The methods he had used were satisfactory to him, and he might not be appreciative of the full extent to which they were not satisfactory to the state.

Mr. Pate's bank, unregulated and unsupervised, has failed, and the legislators who a short time ago surrendered to the private bankers and prevented the passage of the private bank bill may mark up two failures on their score cards.

We'd advise the members of the assembly to keep the score. It is not maintained that regulation is an absolute preventive of bank failure, but when an unregulated bank closes its doors the state can feel that whatever could be contributed by the remissness of legislators has in that case been contributed.

THE PRESIDENT UNCONVINCED.

President Wilson is said to have found no reason in any representations that have been made to him for a change in the policy adopted with regard to the Huerta government in Mexico. His determination to consider this as a moral question is admirable.

It is hard to believe that other nations have sought to force the administration into another course, and it is said in Washington that reports of pressure brought to bear have been greatly exaggerated. It would be, indeed, a fine piece of presumption for any country to represent to the United States that refusal to recognize the existing government in Mexico was ground for complaint.

Ambassador Wilson, when he reaches Washington, may be depended upon to endeavor to persuade the president that interest urges and honor permits the recognition of Huerta. Mr. Wilson was promptness itself in representing to Washington the wisdom of such procedure. Madero was not laid out for burial before a recommendation of Huerta's government from Mr. Wilson was laid before the secretary of state. It was hardly less enthusiastic than the recommendation Huerta submitted of himself.

Mr. Wilson may be persuaded of the wisdom of his opinion, but the viewpoint of the American resident in Mexico City is not one which embraces the issue nationally. It is purely local, even if not purely selfish.

The United States can confer no benefit on Mexico and obtain none for itself in recognizing as a government one erected by duplicity, treachery, and assassination.

DISEASE UP TO DATE.

"New times, new songs," says an old proverb. To bring this proverb to date one would have to paraphrase it to "new times, new diseases."

From Washington comes the warning that the automatic cigar cutter in the corner store where you buy your after dinner smoke is not as innocent as it looks. Instead, it is a virulent agency for the spread of disease. How? Well here it is: When you pick out a cigar the first thing you do is to place it between your lips so as to let your hand free to fish out some change from your pocket. After you have paid for the weed you make a dive for the automatic cutter in the corner. The moment the cigar has been between your lips it has absorbed some secretions. When you put the end of the cigar in the cutter you transmit the secretions to the machine. It in turn will transmit them to the next cigar and its owner.

Some will find this warning of the United States health service against the cigar cutter a bit far fetched, if not altogether fanciful. Yet it merits the greatest consideration. There are scores of industrial ailments which, like lead poisoning and phosphorus poisoning, attain their highest virulency in the mouth and in the jaw. The cigar cutter may become a terrible agency for the spread of such disease through medium of secretions left upon it by the cigar which came from the lips of a victim of the disease. New times, new conditions have brought with them new diseases and new carriers of these diseases.

A NATION ON TRIAL.

The indictment of Bulgaria by the King of Greece is not to be set aside by the answer from Sofia that the charges are the invention of Greek liars. Tales of the horrible are apt to spring up in the path of an army, but they do not often get authority from the signature of the head of a nation. It demands that they be accepted as responsible, if not in all details accurate.

Bulgaria is a nation on trial, even if the procedure of prosecution be imperfect. That country could be held accountable before the nations and given a punishment, if the facts were sustained as related by the King of Greece, which would be a deterrent wherever it was known and remembered.

Servia was made to suffer mildly in consequence of the slaughter of Alexander and Draga, although that punishment was merely one inflicted by monarchical institutions which objected to the highly irregular method adopted to abolish the Servian monarchical nuisance.

It was, however, a punishment given by the mere pressure of adverse opinion, and Servia was humiliated by it. The offense of the Bulgarians, if proved, is an offense against all humanity, and the expression of humanity's resentment can be made destructive.

In a large measure Bulgaria can be outlawed from the association of nations. The community of nations is not helpless, and the necessities of the case do not require war. Punishment does not need troops.

A country responsible for such atrocities as described in the Greek statement can be marked unfit and made to feel the weight of international opinion.

A more direct physical punishment can be administered by the Greeks if the Bulgarians personally responsible come into their hands, but punishment the nations can inflict will fall on the nation itself, where it belongs if guilt be proved.

THE FALL OF A PROCONSUL.

The retirement of Charles S. Mellen from the presidency of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railway, and in all likelihood from conspicuous if not active participation in the railroading world of America, marks more than the end of a career. It marks or is one of the many marks of the end of an epoch.

Mr. Mellen, at the late J. P. Morgan's behest, went to New England ostensibly to build up a great railroad property. In reality he was a proconsul for the Morgan imperium, and his purpose was the conquest of a province. The consolidation of the entire transportation agencies of New England was his ambition and that of the financial imperialists who were the power behind him.

In this campaign he did some notable feats of real railroading and some notable feats of combination. Unfortunately, he encountered a swiftly swelling tide of public policy, fought it fiercely after the manner of man he was, and now, before its overwhelming power, has sunk in its current. Greater than Morgan and Morganism, greater than the power of milliards of money and the imperial wills of rulers not to be despised, has been the will of the American people to put a check upon the great concentrations of organized capital which the genius and ambition of American finance have been at work upon.

Mr. Mellen was a good soldier. He had the faults of his type, but he ought not to be made to bear the whole burden of public disfavor, for he was an agent, after all. His ethics did not square with the newer conscience of today. His and his backers' methods and influence in politics were not conducive to the well being of a free commonwealth. He was also dictatorial and unconciliatory. He could not retreat gracefully. Doubtless that is why his employers were ready to retire him.

But unless we misread conditions the sacrifice of Mellen will not deceive or satisfy the organized opposition to the monopolistic powers he served. The problem for the victors, on the other hand, is becoming beneficently constructive rather than beneficently destructive, as it has been hitherto. They have not merely to break up a monopoly but to retain such of the benefits of combination as are inherent in this as in most other projects of the American organizing genius. The future is with combination, not disintegration, and the problem is regulation and control in the common interest, not a miraculous and undesirable reconstruction of a past of small things. False "high finance" which was low finance will pay less and less, but high finance in the best sense, that is, the large management of vast capital for the accomplishment of great enterprises, will continue until America begins to degenerate and her tale in the history of nations is told. Great combinations of capital legitimately assembled and honestly employed are as much a part of our time as the Mauretania, the wireless, or electricity. On their huge shoulders the material progress of man goes forward. To see they serve the common good more fully and reliably is our problem, not to destroy them.

CERTIFIED MILK.

CERTIFIED milk as a grade of milk is twenty-one years old, having been launched in Newark, N. J., in 1892. Soon thereafter milkmen began to cheat by claiming that their ordinary market milk was certified. Says Dr. Cort:

"It was found that local milkmen were surreptitiously placing it (the word certified) on their milk wagons. It became necessary to seek some protection."

The first certifying commission was organized in 1893 and June 14, 1893, the first milk bearing the official stamp "certified" was sold.

Certified milk is milk produced under circumstances certified to by some milk commission. That the production of milk from cow to consumer needs to be watched, everybody recognizes. The most natural watcher for baby milk is the mother of the baby—but she has her baby to watch. Besides the cows may be miles away. Not being argus-eyed, she must have help.

Milk commissions are for the purpose of helping her watch. These commissions license men to produce certified milk. They will not license a producer until he signs a contract. In that contract he agrees to build proper barns, to keep none but healthy cows, to employ none but healthy milkers, to use none but the cleanest methods, to sell no milk except it be clean, cold, and fresh.

The contract is in detail, it is legal, and it is binding. That these requirements shall be lived up to, the contract specifies that the commission shall hire veterinarians, sanitary inspectors, contagious disease inspectors, milk inspectors, bacteriologists, and chemists. These inspectors are paid by and report to the commission. Such expenses as the commission incurs for inspector service is prorated among the producers on the basis of the number of cows kept.

The supervision is of the product as well as the method of production. Certified milk must contain twelve parts solids, 3.5 to 5.5 parts butter fat, must be free from visible dirt, must contain less than 10,000 bacteria, must be less than twenty-four hours old, a little under 50 degrees Fahrenheit, and free from tuberculosis, typhoid, diphtheria, and all other forms of infection.

In order to meet these requirements, production is more expensive than is that of market milk. Whittaker tells us that to raise the dairy score from 40 to 70 will cost enough money, so that, when it is divided by the product of a fifteen cow dairy, the expense is found to be increased about 2 cents a quart. To increase the dairy score from seventy to ninety or over entails additional expense.

Certified milk always sells for considerably more than does market milk. It has cost more to produce and more to market. From the consumer's standpoint the values are greater. It saves sickness. The food values of fresh, cold, clean milk are as the cow made them. They have not been changed by bacteria, dirt, and heat.

GIVES BUTTERMILK FORMULA.

G. M. S. writes: Will you please give me a formula for the proper preparation of soured milk, to be used for the prevention of intestinal putrefaction?

REPLY.

The method of making culture milk is as follows: Take one quart of skimmed milk without preservatives. Heat it until it begins to simmer, put bottle in cold water, add one-sixth quart hot water. When the temperature of the mixture is about milkwarm, add one lactone of culture tablet, cover it up and let it ferment at room temperature for thirty-six hours, then keep cold until it is used up. Shake before using it. If you wish to make a buttermilk out of the home milk instead of the skimmed, use one-third quart of hot water instead of one-sixth. Note that skim milk and not buttermilk is used.

TREATMENT OF FEET.

S. F. J. writes: "I have suffered for years from excessive perspiration and mattering between the toes. I have tried everything that has been suggested by friends, but to no avail. I consulted a chiropodist and he called the condition 'hoof rot,' and merely prescribed walking bare footed as much as possible. Will you give me the benefit of your advice?"

REPLY.

Walking barefoot is good enough, but it cannot be made use of by many. Try the following: Wash the feet night and morning with soap and water and rinse. Then apply freely a solution of alcohol and salicylic acid in the proportion of one quart of alcohol to one tablespoonful of salicylic acid.

WAIT THREE WEEKS.

German writes: "I am a married woman, 25 years old. For the last week I have noticed a tender spot on my left breast. There is no mark or bruise there, and I don't remember ever having hurt it. But it feels sore when touched, and there seems to be no swelling. Do you think this may be a cancer? Should I go to a doctor at once, or wait awhile to see if it goes away? Will you please describe symptoms of cancer of the breast? I have a good appetite and I am in good health otherwise. Will the taking of a preventive medicine finally weaken the female organs or cause a tumor later on?"

REPLY.

1. Yes, cancers cause pain when small—small enough to be overlooked. The chances are that you have not cancer.

2. I judge the pain is but slight. You are justified in waiting three weeks more.

3. Any tumor of the breast should be examined and then reëxamined at intervals if it is not operated on at once. Generally cancers grow more rapidly than other tumors. Pain, especially a sharp, shooting pain, is suggestive. Kernels come under the arms, the nipple retracts, and sores form, but those are late symptoms. The breast should never be left long enough for these three symptoms to develop.

4. No.

SHOULD GIVE INSTRUCTIONS.

W. R. G. writes: "Please tell whether the intense heat subjected suddenly to a body in cremation would be likely to restore conscious life. The question is one asked by an individual who has no fear of the usual death, but has, perhaps, an unreasonable dread of being buried [or cremated] while in a comatose state."

REPLY.

No; let the person give instructions that neither cremation, burial, nor embalming is to be done until decomposition is advanced enough to prove death beyond question.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1913: By the Brentwood Company.]

LORD NEWTON has made the sensational assertion in the house of lords that one of its members is the owner of perhaps the leading professional usury concern in London. And he added that it would not be long before the name of the peer in question would be revealed.

Lord Newton is one of the ablest and most respected members of the upper chamber of the national legislature, is renowned for his independence of character and for his habit of going straight to the point in his utterances. He does not talk recklessly and every one who heard his statement about the usurer peer felt that he had ample foundation for the accusation.

It was made during the course of the recent debate on his bill compelling usurers to disclose their real as well as their professional name, and he was led to initiate the measure, owing to the receipt by his young unmarried daughter of a letter offering to lend her $200,000 in banknotes, unknown to her parents, from a money lender who traded as Harmsworth, Limited, but who turned out to be a man of the name of Solomon Levine.

Lord Newton's measure is strongly supported by the lord high chancellor, and naturally also by Lord Northcliffe with all his newspapers, for he naturally resents the usurpation of his patronymic of Harmsworth by a stranger for purposes of usury.

There has been no opposition to the bill in the house of lords; not even by the peer alluded to by Lord Newton, and whose name cannot fail to be revealed when the measure becomes law, and the managers and clerks of his usury concern are compelled to make clear the identity of their employer.

"It may possibly be a consolation," declares Lord Newton, "to some unfortunate young man when paying 150 per cent to discover that instead of paying this exorbitant interest to some Semite plebeian, he is really in debt to some patrician of distinguished and ancient lineage."

It may be recalled that when the late Sam Lewis died, about six or seven years ago, celebrated, or rather infamous, as the most successful usurer of the United Kingdom, and as such responsible for the ruin of more houses of the British aristocracy than any other member of his calling, it was a matter of current gossip that if he had been enabled to amass an enormous fortune it was due to the fact that he had been associated in his business with a peer of the realm and with a well known sporting baronet of considerable prominence on the turf.

Lord Newton, although only the second peer of his line, is the head of the ancient and very wealthy house of Legh, in Lancashire, which has been in possession of its estate of Lyme park since the reign of Edward I. Indeed, the bedstead on which Edward the Black Prince slept when he stayed at Lyme as the guest of Sir Peter Legh, who distinguished himself at the battle of Poictiers, figures among the relics of the place; while the bedsteads used in turn by Queen Elizabeth, Mary Queen of Scots, Charles I., and James II., when visiting Lyme, still form part and parcel of the furniture of the mansion.

Lord Newton, who was for a time in the diplomatic service and also in the house of commons, is a clever writer, and at present is engaged on a biography of his former chief, Lord Lyons, England's representative at Washington during the civil war and afterwards ambassador at Paris. He is a popular member of the Jockey club and has sometimes been described as the Labouchere of the house of lords, owing to the sparkle, the unconventionality, and the breeziness of his clever speeches. It was he who immortalized his friend, Lord Rosebery, by describing him as "a sort of political prima donna."

None of the obituaries of old Henri Rochefort mention the comparatively little known fact that until 1870 he was in the pay of the fourth Marquis of Hertford as a purchaser of paintings and art treasures. In fact, a large number of the fine paintings and old masterpieces that figure in the so-called Wallace collection at the National Hertford House museum in London were selected and purchased for Lord Hertford, not, as generally supposed, by Sir Richard Wallace, but by Henri Rochefort.

And it is curious that, although the fourth Marquis of Hertford was one of the closest friends of Napoleon III., he should have had in his employ for the last fifteen years of his life the one man whose lampoons and satirical writings contributed more than anything else to destroy whatever prestige the emperor enjoyed and to bring about the overthrow of his dynasty. It is said that the acquaintance of Lord Hertford with Henri Rochefort began through the latter's preventing him from concluding the purchase of a picture which, although pronounced authentic by other experts, turned out to be a forgery.

Nor has any one drawn attention to the fact that the Château de Valençay, now owned by the Comte Boson de Talleyrand-Perigord (who styles himself the Duc de Valençay, and who was divorced by Levi P. Morton's daughter, Helen), belonged up to the time of the great revolution to Henri Rochefort's ancestors, the Marquesses de Rochefort-Lucay. Henri's grandfather was among the nobles who emigrated along with the Comte de Provence (afterwards Louis XVII.) at the beginning of the revolution, and while living at Coblenz, in attendance upon that prince, was forced to raise money at ruinous rates on his vast lands in Berri.

Partly through foreclosure of mortgages and partly through confiscation, he was divested of all of them, including the château and park of Valençay, which nad been the home of the De Rochefort-Lucays for three centuries. It was then that the great Talleyrand purchased it at about one-twentieth of its real value.

The son of the Marquis de Rochefort-Lucay was appointed by Charles X. governor of the Isle de Bourbon. He was the father of Henri Rochefort, and his sister was the Comtesse de St. Maur. The Comte de St. Maur, uncle, therefore, of Henri Rochefort, was with his brother-in-law, the Duc de Rivière, French ambassador at Constantinople, when the statue of the Venus of Milo was first unearthed at Milo.

The duke and the Comte de St. Maur purchased the statue jointly for a mere song, and, instead of retaining it themselves, presented it to King Louis XVIII.

The father of Henri Rochefort treated his wife very badly. She was of obscure parentage, and it was because he was so embittered against his father than Henri adopted such violent anti-monarchical doctrines.

It is curious that, although he always regarded the Talleyrand-Perigords as the despoilers of his family, yet his most intimate friend and crony should be the Marquis de Talleyrand-Perigord, Duc de Dino, who enjoys the questionable distinction of having married two American women in turn and of having been divorced by each of them. One of these ladies still continues to use the title of Marquise de Talleyrand-Perigord.

His second wife assumed, in accordance with the French law of the present day, her maiden name after her divorce, and died in Paris as Mrs. Adele Sampson.

The case of the Duc de Dino and of the late Henri Rochefort was similar in many respects. The duke is quite as foreign to all domesticity as was Rochefort, and, like the latter, in spite of his lineage and certain patrician mannerisms and prejudices, is radical in politics to the extent of socialism. They each possessed a most extraordinary knowledge and experience of everything relating to art and archæology.

The Friend of the People.

"GRAND RIGHT AND LEFT."

Chicago, July 16.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I would ask that some changes be made on the Indiana car line between Prairie and Grand boulevard in Fifty-first street. Double tracks have been laid running to Grand boulevard, which I infer would mean the south bound Indiana avenue cars should terminate their route at Fifty-first street and Grand boulevard, instead of which passengers are told "all out" at Calumet avenue or at the elevated station, making it necessary for a patron to walk from one and one-half to two and one-half extra blocks, and as the densely populated residential district east of Grand boulevard is dependent upon this service we feel it would be a great help to be spared the unnecessary walk.

As to the danger of this crossing I would only ask that some inspector be sent to investigate the congestion of autos and street cars. Grand right and left in a dance is jolly fun, but when the manner of driving an auto car in this fashion is used some dire catastrophe will happen.

FANNIE O. BAKER,
4935 Vincennes avenue.

Grand boulevard is the eastern terminal of the Fifty-first street line. A part of the Indiana avenue cars are operated south to Fifty-first street and thence east to Grand boulevard. These cars are operated to the eastern terminal or as near the eastern terminal as practical. There can be no reasonable ground for complaint with reference to this service.

CHICAGO CITY RAILWAY COMPANY.

IN THE INTEREST OF SLEEP.

Chicago, July 10.—[To the Friend of the People.]—You will do an act that will be appreciated not only by my family and myself, but by every one that may be troubled from the outrageous nuisance. Every morning from 4 o'clock there is a terrible noise from the James Quigley milk establishment, 1237 West Madison street. They make a terrible noise with a steam hose turned into a vat of water, never done until 7 a. m. They have a powerful machine for cleaning milk cans and the throwing of milk cans while handling them and the yelling is almost driving people mad. We are unable to sleep after 4 a. m. and my child cannot sleep any longer when that machine gets going, together with the noise of the cans and the yelling. Is there no way of putting this kind of nuisance to an end? Your attention to this matter will be apreciated. X.

Regarding the above we shall order our men to eliminate all unnecessary noise.

MAY REVOKE RESTAURANT'S LICENSE.

Chicago, July 14.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Our record shows with respect to the complaint on 9213 Commercial avenue that frequent notices have been served on the vari- ants in this location, and that some repairs have been made by reason of these demands of the department. A new notice was issued July 14 upon the owner and the tenant, and a recommendation will be made that the restaurant license be revoked unless these receive prompt attention.

HUMBOLDT AVENUE ASSESSMENT.

Chicago, July 15.—[To the Friend of the People.]—In reply to the inquiry of Mrs. H. C. Martin concerning a special assessment for a system of sidewalks known as the Humboldt avenue system, I beg to advise you that at the time this assessment was spread, the cost of constructing a sidewalk along the side of a lot was, under the law, distributed as follows:

Fifty per cent was levied upon the lot and 50 per cent upon other property in the same half block.

Under the above assessment lot 1 in north part of block 1 in Castello's subdivision of section 35-40-13, which fronts on Castello avenue, is assessed for 50 per cent of the cost of the sidewalk to be laid along its side on Fortieth avenue. The resulting 50 per cent loss in siding is apportioned upon the properties on the south side of Castello avenue between Fortieth avenue and the C., M. & St. P. railroad.

If there were a subway under the latter at Castello avenue this apportionment would be made upon property within one-half block of Fortieth avenue only, but as Castello avenue is blocked at the railroad tracks and hence the sidewalk above mentioned must be used by all persons living between Fortieth avenue and the railroad tracks who may wish to go south, all property between these points on Castello avenue is assessed. The same principle is followed on the north side of the street.

Every lot on Dickens avenue between Fortieth avenue and the C., M. & St. P. railroad was assessed for this improvement and notice of the filing of the assessment roll in court was sent to the persons who paid the general taxes there on the last preceding year.

Each twenty-five foot lot on either side of Castello avenue between Fortieth avenue and the railroad tracks is assessed $4.75. The property of Mrs. H. C. Martin is composed of the east half of lot 8 (12½ feet) assessed at $2.38, and lot 9 (25 feet) assessed at $4.75, the west fifty feet of that part of the north half of block 1 not in subdivision (fifty feet assessed at $9.50; that part east and adjoining the west fifty feet of that part of the north half of block 1 not in subdivision (a piece of land having a frontage on Castello avenue of 1.8 feet, but being forty-seven feet in width at its south end) assessed at $1.90. QUESTION OF INHERITANCE.

Kansas City, Mo., July 15.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Mrs. B. died in Chicago January, 1910, leaving four daughters and a husband. One daughter, Mrs. P., died in June, 1910, leaving two children and a husband. Under the laws of Illinois to what share of Mrs. B.'s estate are Mrs. P.'s two children and husband entitled? E. T. P.

In the event that Mrs. B. left no will, Mrs. P. was entitled to one-fourth of Mrs. B.'s estate after Mrs. B.'s husband had received one-third of her personal property and dower (a one-third interest for his life) in her real estate. If Mrs. P. left no will her share goes in equal shares to her children after her husband takes one-third of the personal property and dower in the real estate.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

OLEO AND BUTTER.

Chicago, July 9.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The letter of Mr. N. H. Warren of St. Charles, Ill., with regard to butter and oleomargarine is hardly fair to either product. It is unfair to oleomargarine because it misrepresents oleomargarine; it is unfair to butter because as a confessed dairyman Mr. Warren by the tone and wording of his letter admits the strength of the competition of oleomargarine with butter, and this, in the opinion of the average dairyman, is the height of injustice to butter.

The fact remains that extremely high prices have ruled on butter during the last two years, and there is a large part of the population unable to pay these prices. This class is entitled to consideration and no restrictions should be placed on their buying oleomargarine for what it is, and for oleomargarine prices, in its most attractive form, if they so desire. If they want their butter colored yellow, they should have the same privilege with their oleomargarine, provided it is sold for oleomargarine at oleomargarine prices.

Mr. Warren says butter is almost a necessity of civilized life and that its natural color in May and June is yellow, but the other months it is colored to look like June butter. In other words, the consumer has been educated to consider yellow as a standard of color in butter, and, therefore, demands that all butter be that color. Why, then, cannot oleomargarine be colored to please the consumer without the consumer having to paying an exorbitant tax for this privilege?

MR. COLE'S SORE TOE.

Chicago, July 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In connection with the Mulhall exposé of the National Association of Manufacturers, in last Friday's TRIBUNE, you print an item under the head of "One Sore Toe Located," in which one E. C. Cole, a manufacturer of stoves and ranges, says a few things about "muck raking," and cancels his subscription to THE TRIBUNE.

Apparently Mr. Cole does not believe in exposing and bringing to time crooks and boodlers.

Mr. Cole is not in sympathy with THE TRIBUNE'S "muck raking," and cancels his subscription. For myself, I think THE TRIBUNE is performing its public duty by exposing this rotten outfit, and I am not the least in sympathy with the methods of the N. A. M., which Mr. Cole seems to approve.

Mr. Cole cancels his subscription. That is his right if he feels like doing so. I am in the market for goods in Mr. Cole's line of manufacture, but there is an old saying that "it is a very poor game that two can't play."

THE SWIFT PATRIARCHS.

Kingston, Okla., July 10.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The other day I read in the Oklahoman a clipping from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE which interested me vastly. It was an article which stated that "Scientific research abroad" had made the discovery that the "years" mentioned in the early chapters of the Bible relating particularly to the age of the early patriarchs, were divisions of time marked by the lunar cycle. In reality Methusejah was only in his 81st year when he "shuffled off this mortal coil." He had only lived 969 months. Then (Gen. v., 6) Seth, the son of Adam, was 8 years and 9 months of age when his son Enos was born; Enos (Gen. v., 9) was 6½ years of age when his son Cainan was born; and Cainan (Gen. v., 12) was 5 years and 10 months of age at the time of the birth of his son Mahalaleel; Mahalaleel had attained the ripe age of 5¼ years at the birth of his son Jared, and Enoch, the father of the aforementioned Methuselah, had also reached the same mature age of 5¼ years when his illustrious son was ushered into his record breaking career of 81 years.

They were a swift set—those old boys! Talk about the swiftness of the modern Chicago and Oklahoma City chaps; why, they are only going at a snail's pace! They should get busy and imitate the accelerated gait of their early ancestors!

How truly wonderful are the discoveries of "science!" A little while longer and we will find that the children of those ancient worthies were born before their fathers were! And by and by we may be able to discover that they were not born at all, but, like Topsy, they "just growed!"

EXPERT AID FOR TAX CLERK SIFT

Bureau of Public Efficiency Asked to Help County Finance Committee.

PFAELZER APPROVES TEST

Says Investigation Will Settle Issue of Incompetency of Political Appointees.

The Chicago bureau of public efficiency will be invited to aid the finance committee of the county board in investigating the clerical orce of the board of assessors, the competency of which has been attacked by Assessor David M. Pfaelzer. Ellsworth M. Board, chairman of the finance committee, made the announcement. The county civil service commission also will be asked to cooperate.

Assessor Pfaelzer indorses the efficiency test plan

"It would serve to settle the matter once and for all," he said.

In order that there may be no question as to its ability to examine the assessing staff, the civil service commission, through President Robert M. Catherwood, has asked the public efficiency bureau to turn its investigators loose in the office of the commission. Every facility to aid a speedy test will be offered, Mr. Catherwood stated.

Slap at Commissioner Maloney.

Mr. Catherwood's proposal also is viewed as a slap at Commissioner John E. Maloney and other members of the county board who far alleged personal reasons have been grilling the civil service force.

President McCormick of the county board said he approved of the efficiency bureau investigating all departments of the county government, particularly the board of assessors.

"Cook county is bankrupt. If it were a private corporation it would be in the hands of a receiver," said Mr. McCormick. The system of spending revenues before they reach the treasury, he explained, was responsible for the county's embarrassment.

Bartzen Letter Figures.

Mr. McCormick and other members of the county board and concerned as to where they may expect to get the money required to finish the new county hospital. There is said to be a possibility that the building cannot be made habitable until another bond issue can be authorized by the next legislature.

It developed during the day that Commissioner Bartzen, who was at the head of the board when the hospital contract was let, corresponded with Representative John J. McLaughlin in regard to the contract. In his reply to McLaughlin Bartzen wrote that he did not consider the lowest bid "a dollar too low." A few days later he voted to give the contract to a higher bidder.

INJURED GIRL, REPORTED DEAD, RALLIES BRAVELY AND LIVES.

Miss Grace Halpin's Chances of Recovery, However, Are Considered Slight.

Miss Grace Halpin of 128 Ashland boulevard, who was reported dead yesterday as a result of the automobile accident in which her mother was killed, rallied after a sinking spell and at a late hour was still alive at the West Side hospital. Her chances for recovery are slight.

The inquest into the death of the mother, Mrs. Mary Halpin, was continued ten days. Meanwhile the driver of the Pilsen Screen company truck, Joseph Hevrdjs, 1742 West Eighteenth street, and R. Fronke, a salesman who was riding with him, are held at Lake street station. The accident happened in Ogden avenue, near Harrison street.

Seven year old Robert Schoenbeck, 4312 South State street, escaped with only a few bruises when run down by the car of F. Sherwood, 3345 Butler street.

The West Chicago avenue police are looking for racing automobilists who ran down a pedestrian at Milwaukee avenue and Halsted street and fled so rapidly that Patrolman Tings, who commandeered a motorcycle and clove them at a speed once reaching sixty per an hour, could not catch them. Felix Sokowiz, 3016 Waterloo court, the victim, not badly hurt.

CORONER CALLS WOMEN JURORS BUT FINDS ACTION ILLEGAL.

Jan Addams and Five Others Willing t Serve at Inquest Are Told They Cannot.

Six women were bitterly disappointed yesterday. They had been selected to serve on a coroner's jury, had consented, and had prepared to come to the office of Coroner Hoffman at 1.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Then at the last minute the bubble burst. The coroner was told that it would be illegal to have women on his jury, that in fact he could not do so. Therefore the women who were to have comprised the first women's jury in Illinois were told that the coroner was sorry.

The women are Miss Jane Addams, Miss Jessie F. W. Johnson, treasurer Illinois Equal Suffrage association, Mrs. L. Brackett Bates, Miss Lois Hobson, Mrs. Walter A. Washburne, and Miss Margaret E. McNamara, cashier of the Catholic Church Extension society.

They were to have held an inquest over the body of Mrs. Mary Halpin who was killed Thursday afternoon by an automobile.

Mrs. Britton as Examiner Staggers with Question as to Social Evil Cause.

Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton of the Juvenile Protective league was one of the oral examiners in the city civil service test yesterday for the new post of inspector of moral conditions under the police reorganization ordinance.

"What, to your mind, is the cause of the social evil?" was her favorite question to the thirty applicants for the place.

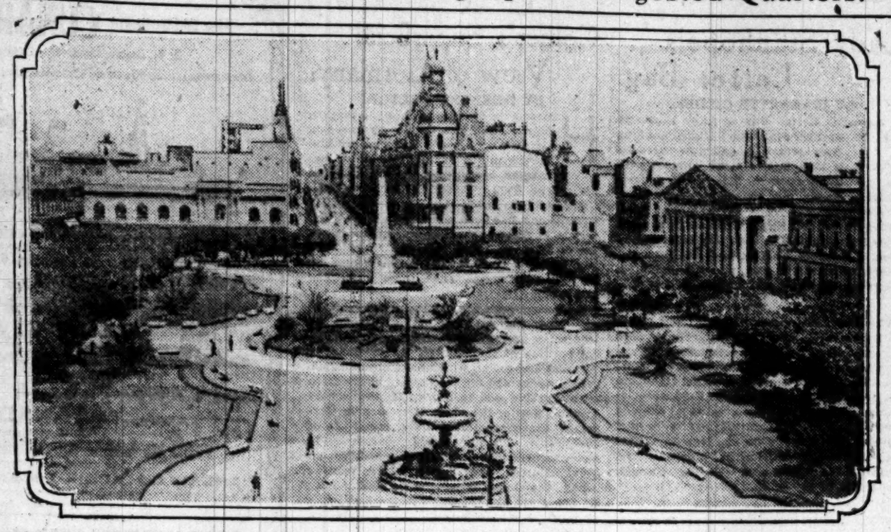

This was said to have proved a hard nut for some of the private detectives seeking the $3,000 salary. But Sergt. Jeremiah O'Connor, head of the moving picture bureau, began a long address that it was difficult to shut off.

SUICIDE BLAMED ON "GHOST"

Coroner's Jury Holds Kossuth Bell Was Temporarily Insane.

WIDOW DESCRIBES HIS LIFE.

Says Husband Had Hallucination Masons Pursued Him.

A verdict of suicide while temporarily insane followed the testimony yesterday of the widow of Kossuth H. Bell, retired packer, who killed himself south of Jackson park a week ago. Mrs. Bell told of a persistent hallucination of her husband that he was being pursued by lodge brothers, headed by his wife. She said he had attempted suicide before.

The widow appeared satisfied with the verdict of the coroner's jury. The will filed for probate two days ago gave her the dower right in the $95,000 estate, the bulk of the property going to a daughter. The housekeeper, "Mrs. A. Evans," was not mentioned in the testament.

There was an attempt to get "Mrs. Evans" to appear at the inquest, but she could not be found.

Believed Masons Pursued Him.

"The hallucination that a crowd of Masons were following him to do him harm caused him a great deal of worry and seemed to prey on his mind at all times," Mrs. Bell said. "He imagined that I was the leader of his enemies.

"We separated about three years ago and I had started separate maintenance proceedings, which were pending.

"The last time I saw my husband was when he passed me in his automobile while I was riding in my machine about four months ago. About two months ago he called me up on the telephone at my home and said: 'Are you satisfied that the gang is still after you?' I said there was no gang after me and then he hung up the receiver before I could say any more.

"My husband once told me he had had some trouble with a Mason, but never said what it was about. He seemed to be worrying about this all the time.

Refused to Use Napkin.

"For a long time before we separated he would never let me raise the window shades in our home. When he would sit down to dinner he would never accept a napkin. He said his enemies used a napkin to wave at him through the windows. I often told him it was just imagination, and then he would accuse me of being at the head of the supposed gang of enemies.

"He had been acting very strangely. Sometimes he would stay in the basement of our home all night, and when he would come up to breakfast in the morning his face would be pale and his eyes bulging. Once he remarked at the breakfast table: 'Well, I tried to do it again, but I couldn't do it.'"

BIRTHDAY PARTY DRAWS 20,000; HOST IGNORES DOCTOR'S ADVICE

Atchison, Kas., Magnate, Seriously Ill, Denies Himself Relief to Parade with Boys and Girls.

Atchison, Kas., July 18.—[Special.]—More than 20,000 visitors, mostly children, attended the largest birthday party ever held in the United States today. The children were from all parts of northeastern Kansas. The host was B. P. Waggener, 67 years old, a wealthy resident of Atchison. This was the thirteenth birthday party of this kind he has given.

Waggener leaves on Sunday for Rochester, Minn., where the Drs. Mayo will perform their third operation on him in three years. Surgeons advised an operation two weeks ago, but he refused to miss the picnic today.

Waggener started the neighborhood picnics for his grandchildren. They have grown each year until now practically every child in this neighborhood attends.

GUARD FORCES WAIT "BATTLE."

Illinois "Army" in Maneuvers Frustrates Efforts to Cut It Off from Base of Supplies.

Springfield, Ill., July 18.—[Special.]—First and second battalions of the Second regiment are encamped northwest of Camp Lincoln tonight, near Sangamon river, awaiting attack from the third battalion, which is to form an aggressive force in tomorrow's maneuvers. They are under command of Maj. Bauder.

In maneuvers today, the "army" in the field had two clashes with imaginary forces after it left camp. In both instances the fights were successfully handled, and efforts to cut the "army" off from its base of supplies were frustrated.

The next encounter will be a sham battle. This, it is believed, will be early in the morning. The regiment will leave for Chicago tomorrow night. Detail for tomorrow is:

Officer of the day, Capt. James E. Brady; officer of the guard, Lieut. Jensen; supernumerary officer of the guard, Lieut. Mudra.

BUENOS AIRES SEES RAPID PROGRESS

during certain hours of the day wheeled traffic is entirely forbidden and from curb to curb the pavement is filled with the gay procession of shoppers and idlers on foot.

NOT more than thirty years ago the streets of Buenos Aires were simply dirt roads. On rainy days the pleasure loving people were accustomed to keep an eye on the flag pole on the top of the beautiful opera house. If, toward evening, a red flag was run up to the peak, it was a signal to all the city that there would be no performance that evening, because, in the judgment of the authorities, the streets were too deep in mud to allow safe and comfortable travel.

Today almost all the streets are well paved and are kept clean, in spite of a traffic said to be as heavy as that in Chicago. Only a few months ago bonds to the amount of $9,000,000 were authorized, the proceeds to be spent in laying down new pavements and making other street improvements.

BUENOS AIRES is a city of trees. Lacking any natural advantages in the way of hills and mountains to add beauty and a touch of the picturesque to its site, the Argentine metropolis has determined to make itself attractive with long lines of shade trees.

All the avenues and boulevards are lined with green, and the city forester has sufficient funds at his command to enable him to replant wherever a tree dies, to give careful attention to every standing tree, and to set out hundreds of new saplings every year.

Buenos Aires claims the proud title of "the Paris of America," and, as one way of making good its boast, it is garbing itself in green.

LOCATED on a flat plain, the problem of sewage disposal for the city was for years hard to solve. As the population of the city grew, the dangers of disease epidemics grew with it.

More than ten years ago a system of modern sewers was installed, and, as a result, the death rate was cut squarely in half.

At present Buenos Aires ranks among the most healthy large cities in the world. Three years ago a bond issue of $8,000,000 was made to improve the sanitary system and to build a new outlet tunnel for the discharge of the sewage.

AS a plan for encouraging the erection of commercial buildings of good architectural effect and artistic finish, the municipal government of Buenos Aires offers a series of handsome annual prizes for the most beautiful buildings. These prizes are awarded by a committee of distinguished architects and artists, with one or two prominent business men and a member of the city administration as lay members.

The discussions and publicity following these awards are said to have had a most valuable educational effect in teaching the public to appreciate the best architecture and applied art.

Doubtless the Municipal Art league would be delighted to have placed in its hands an endowment sufficient to provide for the annual award of such prizes in Chicago.

PEOPLE who believe that "manana" is the motto of Latin America may be interested to learn what happened when, three years ago, Buenos Aires celebrated the centennial of Argentine independence.

Delegates from all the republics of the two Americas had been invited to attend the festival, and it was naturally desired to make as good an impression as possible.

The newly completed national capitol, which cost $11,000,000, was one of the great attractions of the city in an architectural way. Three months before the opening of the centennial celebration it was decided that to get the best effect from this splendid palace it would be necessary to clear away the smaller buildings which crowded in upon it and to open a spacious plaza on which it should space.

So swiftly was the work done that within ninety days all the necessary legal steps were taken, more than 500 small structures torn down, and, in their stead, fountains, trees, and shrubbery installed, so that the incoming delegates were surprised and delighted at the parklike setting of the national capitol.

THE people of Buenos Aires are rich and pleasure loving. Their foreign trade is great and constantly growing. Probably the most generally known and appreciated of their recent exports to Chicago is the Argentine tango.

MAYOR STIRS UP GARBAGE ACTION

Takes Hand in Negotiating Renewal of Reduction Contract Ending Aug. 31.

RICHERT MAKES REPORT.

Executive's Move Third in Week Spurring Aldermen to Do Something.

Mayor Harrison has taken a hand in negotiations for a renewal of the city's garbage reduction contract which expires Aug. 31. This gives him a record for the week of taking direct action in three important matters pending before the council. In the previous instances he insisted something be done toward harbor construction and the planning of subways.

The mayor's latest activity was told to the finance committee yesterday by Chairman John A. Richert in reporting the status of the garbage reduction problem.

"In answer to the message of this committee submitting a proposition for the city to lease the plant of the Chicago Reduction company," he said, "I received a letter yesterday from the attorneys for the company saying it could not consider such a deal.

Mayor Prompt to Act.

"I immediately consulted the mayor and he dictated a letter to the company. He asked for a statement of its position on a proposition for a two years' renewal of the present contract, the city to pay for the installation of the necessary machinery and the installation to be made under the supervision of the city."

"Was there anything said about the cost of the machinery?" asked Ald. Lewis D. Sitts, "was there any mention of the $125,000 the company says the machinery would cost?"

"Yes," said Richert, "that was mentioned as the maximum cost."

The committee agreed to wait for a reply to this letter, but there were two other communications before it on the same general subject. Corporation Counsel Sexton gave an opinion that the city could not use its police powers to take possession of the company's plant. Dr. J. M. Hirsh asked an opportunity to demonstrate a process of garbage reduction through the use of liquid filled tanks.

City Treasurer's Bond.

Corporation Counsel Sexton argued at length in favor of City Controller Traeger's recommendation that the bond of City Treasurer Flynn be increased from $2,000,000 to $10,000,000 because of his manner of handling the school funds.

The end of lobbying tactics in violation of the civil service law by employés seeking payment of their salaries during the time they were laid off during 1912 was written in an opinion of the law department sent to the committee. It was held that the council's voting salaries for periods during which no work was performed would constitute giving employés gratuities, a thing forbidden by the statutes.

FEAR OF BEING SEPARATED CAUSES NUNS TO RUN AWAY.

Two Sisters of Belleville, Ill., Hospital Disappear, but Return to Order When Given Neighboring Posts.

Belleville, Ill., July 18.—The strange disappearance of two Franciscan nuns from St. Elizabeth's hospital, in Belleville, which is conducted by the Franciscan order, has been explained.

The facts of the mystery were learned today from the mother superior at the hospital, a Belleville physician, and from two women who were on the train on which the nuns fled. They reveal, it is said, that the strong friendship between the two nuns caused them to run away.

The older one of the runaways was Sister Regina, 38 years old. The younger was Sister Virginia, 25 years old.

They ran away from the hospital when they learned that the mother superior was preparing to transfer Sister Virginia to the mother house of the order at Springfield, Ill.

They were persuaded again to enter the order and were transferred to Wisconsin, where they will be near each other.

CALL BILLBOARDS AIDS TO CRIME

Letter Writers Attack Signs Behind Which Youths Drink and Gamble.

ILLEGAL PLACARDS CITED

One in Sheridan Road Between Belmont and Barry Exposed by Property Owner.

The billboard as an accessory to crime came before the City club's municipal art committee yesterday. A letter writer cited a case in South State street just south of Fifty-first street which apparently keeps the police busy, and impotently so. The illegality of the billboard is not questioned, but police efficacy is.

"I wish you would investigate a billboard on a vacant lot on State street just south of Fifty-first street," the letter reads. "The next building north is a pool hall. The young men get back of this board, drink beer and shoot craps, and it is a dark, dangerous place at night. The police are continually chasing these roughs, but it does no good. It would certainly be a good thing to remove this board."

Attack Illegal Boards.

Two specific complaints against alleged illegal billboards were made by one writer, a property holder on both south and north sides of the city.

"I represent a majority of the frontage on the east side of Sheridan road between Belmont and Barry avenues," said this complainant, "and have never given my consent to the erection of sign boards on this block or anywhere else. In spite of this fact there is a large board at the south end of the block and it is even seven feet on my property. I have notified the American Posting Service several times to remove the part of the sign on my property, but it still remains."

The same writer also calls attention to a large board fronting the Illinois Central right of way between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh streets, on a lot running from the railroad to Lake avenue. His consent was never asked for this board, he states, though a property holder in the block.

Called "Inciters to Crime."

Two large boards are reported at Irving Park boulevard and West Fortieth avenue by adjacent property owners. They are attacked as inciters to crime as well as unsightly and illegal, and the communication says an attempt to erect a Chinese laundry on the corner was frustrated.

Charles L. Hutchinson, president of the Art Institute and south park commissioner, did a little investigating during the day regarding the forty-seven billboards which deface the Illinois Central right of way on the lake front. He took up the matter with President Markham and learned the railroad could not tear down the boards until Jan. 1, 1914.

At the time of the adoption of the supplemental agreement between the park board and railroad the road had a contract with the Thomas Cusack company. When President Markham sought to remove the billboards he was enjoined, the court holding the contract must be observed. He promised Mr. Hutchinson the boards would come down on Jan. 1.

Electric Signboard Attacked.

The electric signboard came in for denunciation at the hands of a north side woman residing on Belden avenue. She complained of an advertising sign at North Clark street and Anita terrace, which she says also has a reflector on top which burns to a late hour and destroys the privacy of sleeping porches. On the same lot, the letter states, is an iron pole, about thirty feet in height, once used to hang signs upon but long dismantled.

"It has a gibbetlike aspect that adds materially to the forlorn appearance of upper Clark street," the writer adds.

"EASIER TO BUY 'DOPE' IN JAIL THAN IN OPEN CITY," USER SAYS

Prisoner Tells Judge Wade He Purchased Morphine from "Trusty" at $2 an Order.

"It is easier to buy morphine in the county jail than it is to buy it in the open city," asserted Daniel Navarre in Municipal Judge Wade's court yesterday.

Navarre and George Richards confessed they were morphine users and both asked that they be sent to the bridewell to get cured. They were arrested on the complaint of George H. Peambeck, 6128 North Paulina street. They were taken to the county jail, where they say they bought morphine at $2 an order from the barber's assistant. The assistant, the police say, is Charles Brown, a "trusty" who is serving time for burglary. Brown denies the statement. Will T. Davies, the jailer, says the thing that is troubling him is how they are able to smuggle anything in the jail.

Navarre produced the articles which he had stolen from his employer. These consisted of a revolver and two gold rings and $10. Both of the men were working for and boarding with George Peambeck at the time they were arrested.

The case was continued until Monday.

HELD IN ACQUES MURDER CASE

Thomas Gorilles in Custody Pending Investigation of Connection with Suspects.

Thomas Gorilles of 4825 Armour avenue, employed by the Erie railroad, was taken into custody yesterday in connection with the murder of James Acques.

Lieut. John Hogan ordered that Gorilles, who is 17 years old, be taken to the station because he was seen in the company of Nicholas Desamone and the latter's brother, Antonio Desamone, the day Acques was killed. The Desamones are sought by the police.

Gorilles denied he knows anything about the murder. He is held pending further investigation.

Season's Offering of New Books

Drama of an Amateur Tolstoy and Other Books

BY ELIA W. PEATTIE.

"THIS GENERATION," by S. M. Fox is a play with contemporary England for its scene, and a frustrated idealist for its hero. George Tremayne—the hero—is a cigarette manufacturer of wealth. He is married to a devoted woman of conventional and sensible mind. But notwithstanding this Tory influence—has not some one said that all women are Tories by instinct—he is beset by the idea of Christian Socialism. He gives over the making of cigarettes, leaves his conventional and well to do life, and moves into a little shop. Laura, his wife, unused to manual toil, does the housework, and they subsist, barely on the proceeds of a shop at which neither tobacco nor any sort of pernicious literature is sold. As the public is addicted to tobacco and pernicious literature the Tremaynes did not flourish, and when Laura found her son and daughter acquiring bad language and vermin from their attendance at the board school, she took thm eout and precipitated a breach between her husband and herself.

In time Laura's father dies and she is left with a handsome fortune. She has persuaded her husband, little by little, to adopt the conventional life. The last act finds them living among rich neighbors, themselves supplied with a butler, a houseman, numerous other servants, and an automobile, while the son is at Eton and is looking forward to entering the guards. As his father is a passionate advocate of peace as well as democracy this procedure is in violent opposition to his principles, although the thing has been effected with the smiling insistence of the affectional Laura. George makes a few last ineffective attempts to regain domination of himself and his ideas, but he cannot free himself without causing Laura desperate distress. He finally sees the last door close, and himself confined within the relentless prison of fashionable life. His son and daughter are to do the usual thing. He himself must become a landed proprietor with hunting and fishing. His dreams have been strangled, his principles flouted, his extravagant idealism put out as if it had been an incendiary fire. None of the characters is lovable. Prosperity is made to seem hateful; and the road of abnegation appears impossible. The little amateur Tolstoy capitulates and the reader, having finished the play, is at a loss to make out what life is good for anyway. [Duffield].

In "THE DRIFT OF ROMANTICISM"—the eighth series of the Shelburne Essays—Mr. Paul Elmer More has demonstrated the maturity of his philosophic principles and literary taste as he has not quite done in any previous volume. In undertaking to sum up th ework, correlatively, of such contributers to the romantic movement as William Beckford, Cardinal Newman, Walter Pater, Fiona Macleod, Nietzsche, and Huxley, Mr. More has at least been able to present all phases of the question.

The book concludes with a treatise on Dualism in which Mr. More has made his definitions of thought, emotion, and the impulse toward good in a manner both scholarly and original. In this he has again confessed to that essential sobriety and wistful spirituality which is often to be noticed in his work. No reader of Mr. More can be unaware of his deep appreciation of mysticism and of those ideas which have been embodied in the eastern religions. Yet, fascinated by the idea though he is, he fights it, and puts himself upon the side of sane philosophy and trustful spirituality. Gravity, quietness, and a judiciousness not untempered by sadness, are the characteristics recently discernible in Mr. More's work. (Houghton, Mifflin Co.)

Two reminders of the scholarly activity of Mr. Martin Schutze are at hand. One is an interesting monograph, "Gustav Freytag: Theorist of the Drama and Playwright," reprinted from "The Drama" of February, 1913; the other is the preparation of Franz Grillparzer's "Des Meeres und der Liebe" for study. To this Mr. Schutze has added a brief but brilliant biography of the distinguished playwright and a criticism of his work. The notes appended to the book, though not too extended, appear to be precisely what the adventurer on the altitudinous paths of fine and poetic German would require. The latter book is published by Henry Holt & Co.

Mr. George Hamlin Fitch, a genial reviewer and a writer on many subjects, has a book of impressions made during a journey which he calls "THE CRITIC IN THE ORIENT." Mr. Fitch has the intelligent inquisitiveness of the accomplished traveler, he is singularly free from prejudices, and has a habit of respect for all men of good will, which makes his book well worth the attention of whoever wishes to know more about this good round world and the men who live on it. "One of the best results of foreign travel," he writes, "is that it makes one revise his estimate of the alien races." He thinks his own ideas required revison to some extent. If so, the reader has the benefit of that revision in a liberal and picturesque account of what Mr. Fitch saw and felt in Japan, China, India, and Egypt. The book is profusely illustrated. (Paul Elder & Co., San Francisco).

Mr. George Santayana, who, to the distress of poetry lovers, eschewed the writing of verse, shows himself in "WINDS OF DOCTRINE" so brilliant a commentary upon philosophic and polemic matters that one is inclined to say that the intellectual abstraction is really more in his line than was the lyric impulse of poetry. The essays which he has gathered together were first offered as lectures to student or other audiences. They are six in number, entitled "The Intellectual Temper of the Age," "Modernism and Christianity," "The Philosophy of M. Henri Bergson," "The Philosophy of Mr. Bertrand Russell," "Shelley, or the Poetic Value of Revolutionary Principles," and "The Genteel Tradition in American Philosophy." Perhaps the most astute and subtle of these essays is "Modernism and Christianity," in which Mr. Santayana has not only reviewed the liberal revolt in the Catholic ranks but has focused the theories of all idealist and restless minds which are passing from the old dispensation into the unfenced fields of spiritual surmise. The concluding lecture in the book "The Genteel Tradition in American Philosophy" is exceedingly penetrating and may well be read with respect by those who marvel at the lack of greatness in American literature and art. (Scribners.)

Frederick McCormick
Author of "The Flowery Republic."

Mr. Frederick McCormick, whose book, "The Flowery Republic," was recently reviewed, writes from first hand information, as he was war correspondent in China and personally made the acquaintance of the leading actors in the drama which ended the imperial reign.

"THE PSYCHOLOGY OF LAUGHTER," though it bears the name of Boris Sidis upon its title page, is a rather unsatisfactory attempt to classify the causes and effects of laughter and to record its place in the more or less vagrant science of psychology. It would be impossible for Prof. Sidis to write a worthless book, but it must be confessed that his observations and conclusions in the present case seem perfunctory and that the book—written, avowedly for popular approval—has fallen beneath the mark. A great mass of amusing incidents, jokes, bon mots, and blunders is offered, with which the reader may regale himself. Even these are not up to the best standard, and many a jest which Prof. Sidis has quoted with obvious respect for its laughter making powers would fall flat in those gatherings where spontaneous wit is usual. It would indeed be a depressed audience which undertook to digest the jokes which this distinguished man has found worthy to illustrate his meanings. One is obliged to say he has not added to his reputation by the publication of this volume. (D. Appleton & Co.)

A new edition of Mr. John Masefield's "The Story of a Round House" appears from the Macmillan press. From this Mr. Masefield has made a number of excisions as well as adding to it certain supplementary and emphasizing stanzas. In addition to the long poem there follow, as in the pervious edition, many short poems.

Dudley Sturrock's "THE DISTANT DRUM" (John Lane company) will not repay the reader for the time spent in reading it. It purports to reflect the gay life of New York and Long Island, and whether or not the reflection is accurate, it is certainly far from edifying, and will not be interesting to the person who prizes the precious moments of the day. The characters are taken from among those who have too much time and money, and the plot is provided by the attempt of Bunny Thorne to win for wife a gay divorcee. He is an Englishman and a daring aviator, who makes a thrilling flight for the benefit of those who demand up to the minute thrills, no matter how inappropriate the surroundings.

Grace L. H. Lutz has worked over a well worn plot in "LO, MICHAEL!" (Lippincott). A ragged newsboy, Michael, receives the bullet intended for the beautiful and beloved little daughter of a defaulting bank president. Out of gratitude the latter virtually adopts him, educates him and establishes him in business. But the girl, whom Michael has idealized and loved all through his college course, is inclined to snub him on his return to New York because of his unknown origin, although in every way he is a credit to his benefactor. Of course, in the end she changes her attitude, sees Michael in the correct perspective, and the reader can guess the rest. The story is far from convincing and seems needlessly drawn out.

Lady Stanhope's Letter-Bag.

BY JEANNETTE GILDER.

"THE Letter Bag of Lady Elizabeth Spencer Stanhope" (Lane) has long been promised, and now the book is here in two stout volumes with illustrations. The papers from which these volumes are made cover a space of nearly seventy years, during a most interesting period of English national history. They form a sequel to that very entertaining book, "Coke of Norfolk and His Friends," which appeared in 1906, and "Annals of a Yorkshire House," which appeared in 1911.

The personal contribution of Lady Elizabeth Spencer-Stanhope to these volumes does not commence before the year 1822, when she became a member of the Stanhope family circle. Through these letters we get right into the heart of two generations of English social and political life, and the gossip that extends over half a century, has all the freshness of novelty. We see Wellington, Napoleon, Nelson, and Coke of Norfolk himself, "the peaceful English squire," flitting through the pages of this book.

We also see Nelson at close range in the letters of Lord Edward Collingwood. From his pen we have the description of the battle of Trafalgar from one who stood by Nelson's side in that conflict. In a letter to Sir Peter Parker, dated Nov. 1, 1805, Lord Collingwood writes:

> You will have seen from the public accounts that we have fought a great battle, and had it not been for the fall of our noble friend who was indeed the glory of England and the admiration of all who saw him in battle, your pleasure would have been perfect. . . . It was a severe action, no dodging or maneuvers. They formed their line with nicety and waited our attack with composure. They did not give a gun until we were close to them and we began first. Our ships were fought with a degree of gallantry which would have warmed your heart. Everybody exerted themselves and a glorious day they made of it. People who cannot comprehend how complicated an affair a battle is at sea and judge of an officer's conduct by the number of sufferers in his ship, often do him a wrong, and though there will appear great difference in the loss of men, all did admirably well; and the conclusion was good beyond description, eighteen hulks of the enemy lying amongst the British fleet without a stick standing, and the French Achilles burning. But we were close to the rocks of Trafalgar, and when I made the signal for anchoring many ships had their cable shot and not an anchor ready.
> Providence did for us what no human effort could have done—the wind shifted a few points and we drifted off the land. The next day bad weather began, and with great difficulty we got our captured ships towed off the land. The second, Gravina, who is wounded, made an effort to cut off some of the ships with a squadron of nine ships with which he retired. In the night the gale increased and two of his ships, the Mayo of 100 guns, and Indomitable of eighty, were dismasted. The Mayo anchored amongst our hulks and surrendered; the Indomitable lost on the shore, and I am told that every soul perished. Among such numbers it is difficult to ascertain what we have done, but I believe the truth is twenty-three sail of the line fell into our hands, of which three got in again in the gale of wind. . . .
>
> The storm being violent and many of our ships in most perilous situations, I found it necessary to order the captures—all without masts, some without rudders, and many half full of water—to be destroyed, except such as were in better plight, for my object was their ruin and not what might be made of them. As this filled our ships with prisoners and the wounded in a miserable condition, I sent a flag to the Marquis of Solana to offer him his wounded men, which was received with every demonstration of joy and gratitude, and two French frigates and a brig were sent out for them. In return he offered me his hospitals and the security of Spanish honor that our wounded should have every care and every comfort that Spain could afford, so you see, my dear sir, though we fight them, we are upon very good terms.
> But what most astonished them was our keeping the sea after such an action, with our injured masts and crippled ships, which I did the longer to let them see that no efforts of theirs could drive a British squadron from its station.

On another page we find a description of the fête at Carlton house when the son of George III., the then Prince of Wales, became king in all but name. In the worst possible taste he determined to celebrate the inauguration of his regency by a fête at Carlton house which should surpass all previous entertainments given by him in magnificence. His selfishness made him absolutely indifferent to the condition of his father upon the date of the old king's birthday to hold a "public rejoicing at the incapacity of the unfortunate monarch." While all the members of the world of fashion criticised what the Prince of Wales was doing, they none the less attended the fête.

Collier's Superficial View of Germany.

BY HERBERT CAXTON.

HIS decided leaning toward the English which Mr. Price Collier displayed in his first book and which stamped him in the minds of many as an anglomaniac, is still further accentuated in his recent work, "GERMANY AND THE GERMANS" (Scribner's). Mr. Collier writes fluently and has keen powers of observation, and he is no stranger in Germany, for he received a part of his education there, but there is a note of prejudice in this book and his cocksureness seems even more sure than usual.

Beginning with a historical survey of the genesis of Germany as a nation, he proceeds to discuss present day conditions, the political position of the country, the movements, political and social, which have brought Germany where she is; the kaiser, his relation to his people and to the world, the school system, Berlin, the place of women in Germany, the characteristics and social life of the people. He sums up his conclusions in two chapters, one of which is called "From Envy, Hatred, and Malice"—after reading which the Germans will be excused if they do not grant him the Order of the Red Eagle or some other decoration. The chapter on the kaiser is sheer impertinence.

The best in the book is his description of the German educational system. There alone he appears to speak with real knowledge, without prejudice of the subject, and, critical though he is of the methods employed, he favors the militarism of the country, believing it to be necessary, besides furnishing a fine medium of education and training. Speaking of the army, he says:

"It is the best all round democratic university in the world; it is a necessary antidote for the physical lethargy of the German race; it is essential to discipline; it is a cement for holding Germany together; it gives a much worried and many times beaten people confidence; the poverty of the great bulk of its officers keeps the level of social expenditure on a sensible scale; it offers a brilliant example, in a material age, of men scorning ease for the service of their country; it keeps the peace in Europe; and, until there is a second coming of a Christ of pity and patience and peace, it is as good a substitute for that far off divine event as puzzled man has to offer."

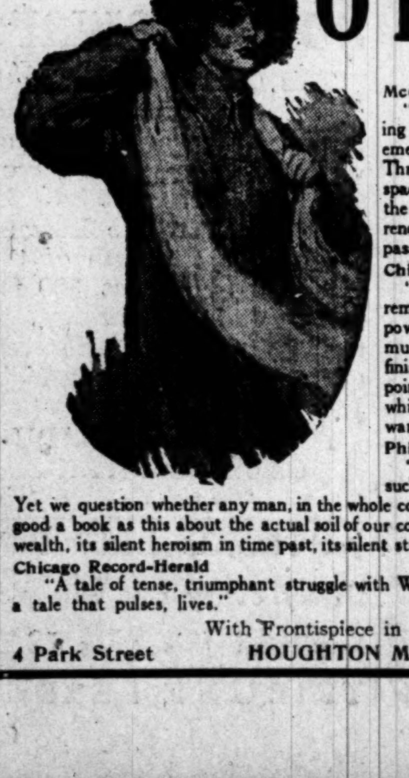

Berlin he regards as a city of boors. The manners of the average inhabitant are repulsive in restaurants and rude upon the streets. Surly malice of speech characterizes the working classes. There are few well dressed men there, and the clothes of the women he says are grotesque in dowdiness. The food is the best and cheapest in the world; the streets are good, but the traffic is poorly handled. The public art is atrocious. Women are treated with rudeness. The ubiquitous signs "Verboten" are justified because the people are so recently emancipated that, in their ignorance, they continually do things which they shouldn't. The "bucolic naïveté" of the Berliners is shown in the public demonstrations of affection between the sexes.

The book is amusing, but superficial and misleading.

The many sons and daughters of Norway in this country will be glad to know of a little book which pleasantly recalls the fatherland. It is named "Paragraphs of a Pedestrian," and it is an account of a walking trip through parts of Norway made by N. Tjernagel, a stock raiser of Story City, Ia. The beauties of his native land made a strong appeal to the author, and he has written these sketches of the mountains, the fjords, and the valleys with a loving spirit. A number of photographs illustrate the book.

Quite different from the other travel books in the same series is Frankfort Sommerville's "THE SPIRIT OF PARIS" (Macmillan), as indeed the subject is different from those of the other volumes. The author, who knows his Paris well, has really caught the spirit of the place, and he proves the most delightful and informative of guides. All that is good and some of that which might be otherwise denominated which Paris has to offer the stranger he writes of with understanding and charm. If one can see Paris as Mr. Sommerville shows it to us he will indeed have caught the spirit of the town. The sketches are often written in story form with dialogue running through them, and are, he assures us, real studies from life, not fancies. There are twenty splendid illustrations in color by French artists.

A New Woman! A New Country! A New Idea!

O Pioneers!
By Willa Sibert Cather
McClure's Magazine
"A great romantic novel, written with striking brilliancy and power, in which one sees emerge a new country and a new people . . . . Throughout the story one has the sense of great spaces; of the soil dominating everything, even the human drama that takes place upon it; renewing itself while the generations come and pass away."
Chicago Tribune
"The book is beautiful. Its simplicity is remarkable. There are pictures so serene, so powerful, so completely characteristic that they must long live in the memory . . . . The most finished piece of work, speaking from a literary point of view, of the many Nebraska stories which have been written. It is human and warm as well, and faithful to the facts."
Philadelphia Press
"One seldom finds such perfect restraint, or such a sense of form, in the writing of a woman. Yet we question whether any man, in the whole course of American literature, has produced as good a book as this about the actual soil of our country, out of which has sprung the nation's wealth, its silent heroism in time past, its silent strength today."
Chicago Record-Herald
"A tale of tense, triumphant struggle with Western farming conditions of a by-gone era; a tale that pulses, lives."

Harvard Athlete Wins Stenographer Bride.

Boston, Mass., July 18.—How a giant guard's valiant work in the preliminary games at Cambridge and later at New Haven in the final games of the year captivated a pretty Cambridge stenographer became known today when a marriage application was filed with the Cambridge city clerk by Percival Howard Keays, star lineman of the Harvard 1911 eleven, and Miss Olive May Kelley of North Cambridge. The marriage is expected to take place in a few weeks.

Keays is the son of Charles Henry Keays of Chicago, but he prepared for Harvard in the Rindge Manual Training school at Cambridge. At the time Miss Kelley was a student at Cambridge Latin school, just across the street, and although the embryo football warrior often saw her, it was not until after he had entered Harvard that they were introduced.

Miss Kelley was a spectator at all the Harvard games that fall, and it was after the game at New Haven, which ended in a scoreless tie, that they met.

Miss Kelley is the daughter of John E. Kelley, a Cambridge business man, and is popular in the social set here.

Refrigeration Men to Meet.

One of the most important gatherings ever held in Chicago will take place on Sept. 17 to Oct. 1, when the third International Congress of Refrigeration will assemble for its triennial conclave. Over 5,000 manufacturers, scientists, consulting and erecting engineers, warehousemen, ice producers, and dealers in produce, butter, eggs, cheese, fruits, etc., will assemble to listen to the reading of papers and to discussions over the numerous problems arising in the manufacture, the handling, and the transportation of products in which refrigeration forms an element.

The first opening of the congress will take place in Washington, D. C., Sept. 15. Secretary of Agriculture Houston, honorary president of the congress, is expected to preside, and President Wilson, patron of the congress, to welcome the delegates who were invited by his predecessor, President Taft, to this country.

Men Picked to Initiate New Federal Game Law.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 18.—[Special.]—Fifteen men who have distinguished themselves for their interest in the protection of wild life have been appointed by Secretary of Agriculture Houston to initiate the operation of the new federal law prohibiting the slaughter of migratory birds.

Among the experts selected are Maj. Bluford Wilson of Springfield, Ill.; former Representative John F. Lacey of Iowa, author of the Lacey act regulating interstate commerce in game; John B. Burnham of New York, president of the American Game Protective and Propagation association; Dr. William T. Hornaday, director of the New York zoo; and Prof. L. L. Dyche, fish and game warden of Kansas.

The proposed regulations, in the final adoption of which and in the hearings on which these experts will act in an advisory capacity to the department, and which do not go into effect before Oct. 1, 1913, are designed to secure the following results:

Uniformity in protection of migratory game and insectivorous birds in the several states.

Protection of birds in spring while en route to their nesting grounds and while mating.

Uniformity in protection of migratory birds at night.

Establishment of protected migration routes along three great rivers in the central United States.

Complete protection for five years for the smaller shore birds and other species which have become greatly reduced in numbers.

Reduction of the open season of migratory game birds, but in most cases not more than 25 to 50 per cent.

The proposed regulations define the birds which come under the protection of the federal law as migratory birds to be:

Anatidæ, or water fowl, including brant, wild ducks, geese, and swans:

Gruidæ, or cranes, including little brown sandhills and whooping cranes.

Rallidæ, or rails, including coots, gallinules, and sora and other rails.

Limicolæ, or shore birds, including avocets, curley, dowitchers, godwits, knots, oyster catchers, phalaropes, plover, sandpipers, snipe, stilts, surf birds, turnstones, willet, woodcock, and yellow legs.

Columbidæ, or pigeons, including doves and wild pigeons.

The regulations consider the following as migratory insectivorous birds within the meaning of the act:

Bobolinks, catbirds, chickadees, cuckoos, flycatchers, grosbeaks, humming birds, kinglets, martins, meadow larks, night hawks or bull bats, nuthatches, orioles, robins, shrikes, swallows, swifts, tanagers, titmice, thrushes, vireos, warblers, waxwings, whippoorwills, woodpeckers, and wrens, and all other perching birds which feed entirely or chiefly on insects.

Among the provisions suggested by the proposed regulations is a daily closed season on all migratory game and insectivorous birds which will extend from sunset to sunrise and prevent night killing of birds. It also proposes an absolutely closed season on migratory insectivorous birds to continue to Dec. 31, 1913, and throughout each year thereafter from January to Dec. 31.

A five year closed season on certain game birds is provided, to continue until Sept. 1, 1918, which will include wood ducks in certain sections of the country, rails in California and Vermont, and woodcock in Illinois and Missouri.

A closed season is ordered between Jan. 1 and Oct. 31, inclusive, of each year on all migratory birds passing over or at rest on any of the waters of the main streams of the Mississippi river, between New Orleans and Minneapolis; the Ohio river, between its mouth and Pittsburgh; and the Missouri river, between its mouth and Bismarck.

The purpose is to allow water fowls a safe highway from winter feeding grounds to nesting grounds.

LONDON, July 18.—Queen Mother Alexandra received Walter H. Page, the American ambassador, in audience at Marlborough house today.

How to Earn Money at Home

Only the Earner Knows Real Joy of Spending.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

ARE you a spender or an earner?

It's fun being a spender, I know, but it's much more fun being an earner. Don't you think so, too?

Maybe you don't know because you haven't tried being an earner yet.

That's really too bad.

Because you'll never have the real joy of being a spender until you're the earner first.

Suppose that your husband's birthday will be next month.

Wouldn't it be twice as much fun to be able to buy him something with your very own money than it would be to ask him for some to go to the theater and then go to a store instead and buy him a new bill book?

Just think how proud you'd be when he opened the package and found a little card in it, "A happy birthday greeting—every bit of it from me," and what a long, interesting evening you'd have chatting about how you'd been able to do it.

And the very nicest thing about beginning to be an earner is that you can keep it up, and the longer you do it the easier it grows and the more successful earner you are.

Isn't that a fascinating situation?

Wouldn't you like to read this letter from a woman who has just begun to be an earner?

"All my life I have had all of the money that I needed to spend. At first father was the earner in the family for me, and then a year after I left school I was married and my husband made enough money to allow me to have the little luxuries that I felt that I needed. So I just never thought of trying to earn any money until last spring. We had a lot of bad luck. My husband was ill and there seemed to be a very dark future before us indeed.

"We were buying a home, and while it didn't tax us heavily when my husband was well, with the added expense of doctors' bills we couldn't help worrying a little bit. Then one morning when I was reading THE TRIBUNE I read your column. I'm ashamed to say that before that time I hadn't read any of it. To be sure, I didn't see the paper for very long in the morning, and I'd been brought up to read every bit of the current event news; we used to have to tell the class in school each morning something that we'd read, so I got into the habit of reading the news before I read anything else.

"This morning when I read the How to Earn Money at Home column I thought that it had been written just to me. You seemed to be talking to me all by myself. And you convinced me that I, too, who had never done anything in the world to make money could succeed if I tried.

"Well, I did try. I helped a good deal while my husband was ill, and after he recovered I kept on earning money just because it was such fun to be doing it. And now the very first thing in the morning when I bring the paper off the porch I snip out your little talk and the stories of the successful home workers, so that there's no possibility of its getting lost."

How happy it would make me to have you write a letter to me like that.

I'll be almost as happy if you'll write and tell me that you'd like to be able to succeed. Then we'll have a little chat with each other on paper.

Won't you, please?

And won't you let me send you the little booklet that tells of the ways that a hundred women have earned money at home?

It's the most fascinating little book!

I will say to you when you've read it, "They did. So can you."

And you can, you know.

Just your name and address and a request for the booklet will bring it to you post haste.

I'm going to look forward to having that request from each one of the readers of our column—yours and mine.

They Bought Her Cookies.

I wish to tell you how a friend of mine made money. She was a good cook and could make all kinds of pastries. Therefore she arranged with her grocer that every Saturday she should have a corner of one of the counters. One Friday she made hundreds of cookies and several large cakes and bright and early every Saturday morning she took her stand at her little counter and sold cookies at 10 cents a dozen and cakes at 40, 50 and 60 cents apiece, according to size. In a few weeks people flocked to buy her goods and by the end of two or three months she was taking and filling orders and making quite a nice little income, as the grocer charged only a small fee for the use of his counter.

Collects Delinquent Bills.

A woman in our town who had been successful as a collector of church funds in palmier days decided to use this talent when thrown on her own resources. While the children were in school she went to various merchants in the city, taking their delinquent bills on percentage. From the first she was successful and soon established a reputation in her work. She has now a regular business, having established a weekly rate of regular collections of running accounts for which she employs a high school boy with a wheel to assist her. Much of her work is done by mail, and as she already had a telephone and her husband left her a typewriter among his few assets, she has no expense save the boy's wage. It is work which requires infinite tact, courtesy, and persistence. She never allows her temper to be ruffled, whatever the provocation, and through her genial courtesy has secured much work which heretofore went to men. She has also kept her little flat and cared for three small children, although frail in body, while the out of door work has built up her nerves in spite of the annoyances which arise daily in her business.

Takes Orders for Stockings.

I have a friend whose spare time hung heavy on her hands and she answered an advertisement for a saleswoman to sell hose during her spare time. She sent for samples and showed them to her friends, who gladly gave her orders. Her success among her friends was great, so she went into it on a larger scale. She canvassed her home town and small towns adjoining and now she has a regular income and no idle time to worry over.

Helping at Entertainments.

For the woman who can and will go out into the world the problem of making her own living or adding something to the home coffer is as easily solved as if she were a man. One young woman, for instance, has hit upon a unique plan of earning her own living. She called upon several society women who did a good deal of entertaining and offered her services as "general helper" on such occasions. That meant she would arrive about an hour before the guests, place and number the tables, if the affair was a card party, pull down the shades, light the candles, and see that the drawing rooms were looking just right at the last minute. Then she would retire to the butler's pantry and take charge of the things there, serving the plates and seeing that the butler and waitresses took things out in the proper order. After the entertainment was over she remained to superintend the washing of silver, cut glass, and china and see that it was put away properly. For all this she charged $5 and the women to whom she first went, learning what relief it was to have a competent person behind the scenes, gladly recommended her to their friends; so that in a short time work was seeking her, and by the end of the season she had opened up a bank account of her own.

CARNEGIE PUTS ENGLISH FUND ENTIRELY IN BRITISH HANDS.

Ironmaster Scouts Theory That Money Was Not Wisely Spent from New York —Change Matter of Policy.

LONDON, July 18.—Andrew Carnegie has entrusted the Carnegie Dunfermline trust with the administration of the income from $10,000,000 of 5 per cent steel bonds heretofore administered by the Carnegie corporation of New York. In a letter today the iron master says:

"The transfer of administration from my wifeland to my motherland has not been made because the fund has not been wisely administered in New York, but because in the nature of things the conditions which have enabled me to keep closely in touch with the fund must soon change. It is my duty to consider the future."

Mr. Carnegie adds that the income of £500,000 hitherto has been devoted to public libraries and church organs in the United Kingdom, but the Dunfermline trust is to be given full power to devote the fund "into the most beneficent uses for the good of the masses of Great Britain and Ireland."

Thousands Given Free Outings.

Figures for the first month's activities in the summer outing department of the United Charities show that from June 15 to July 15 the society made arrangements for sending out over 5,000 mothers and children to country homes and camps and on day outings. The district offices of the organization are being flooded with applications of mothers and children for outings and it looks as if there would be a demand for 10,000 more.

The response from country towns which have been asked to take children for outings of two weeks has been very good. Pontiac, Ill., is in the lead, asking for 125; Cromwell, Ind., has taken sixty-six. At Streator, Ill., the citizens committee is outfitting the old Chautauqua camp grounds to take care of forty boys for two weeks. Mr. I. G. Thomas of Detroit, Mich., director of boys' camps and member of the Michigan National Guard, has just returned from Decatur, where he has made arrangements for a camp.

Wednesday the New York Central lines offered to give transportation for country outings. This has opened up territory in Michigan and considerable erritory in Indiana and eastern Illinois. The United Charities camp and TRIBUNE summer hospital for convalescents at Algonquin are full to overflowing, with many applicants on the waiting list.

Tapestry Exhibit at Institute.

There are on exhibition at the Art institute four remarkable designs of the skill of the sixteenth and seventeenth century Flemish weavers of tapestries. The largest of the three is Diana and Actacon. It illustrates clearly the manner and method of renaissance designers and weavers. On the wall facing this tapestry is Pomona, designed by L. Van Schoor and woven in Brussels at the end of the seventeenth century. The other two, both of the renaissance period, have full rich borders, still fresh in color. One of them is entitled "Warriors," the other a "Boating Scene." The tapestries will remain on exhibition today and tomorrow.

Eleanor Clubs to Aid Girls.

To keep young girls out of business women of the five Eleanor clubs, who know what it is to be out in the world alone, have planned to open an Eleanor club junior early in October for their "little sisters."

Here girls from 10 to 16 years old will have a home. A house mother from Boston has offered her free services as a "mother." She is expected to arrive soon. She will send the girls to school, teach them the ethics of manners, in short, see that each girl has her "chance" before starting out in the world.

The junior home is a voluntary gift from the women who had been benefited by the Eleanor clubs.

Second 'Quo Vadis' Show for Ice Fund on Monday.

THE second benefit production of "Quo Vadis," the gross receipts of which will be contributed to THE TRIBUNE free ice and hospital fund, will be held at the Imperial theater, West Madison street and Western avenue, on Monday night.

The films, produced by the George Kleine company in Rome, Italy, visualize the conditions of society in Rome as it existed under Nero. It gives a dramatic portrayal of the sufferings of the early Christians, including scenes in the arena and the catacombs. The combats of the gladiators, the chariot races, and the burning of Rome are produced in realistic detail.

The story of the love of Vinitius for Lygia, which turned him from a pagan to a faithful Christian, is the chief love plot, as in the novel by Sienkiewicz. The pictures show many characters who exercised their influence in history, notably the Roman general Tigellinus, Nero's favorite, who set fire to Rome to please the latter's vanity.

Seats are already on sale. The prices range from 25 cents to 75 cents. If all the seats are sold a total of $559.50 will be realized for THE TRIBUNE fund.

Already two managers in Paris have announced elaborate representations of the Bayreuth masterpiece. The Chicago Grand Opera company has secured the authentic score and prompt book. Manager Ulrich has arranged to caparison and surround the piece befittingly.

There will be Charles Dalmores as "Parsifal," Julia Claussen or Minnie Saltzman Stevens as Kundry, Clarence Whitehill as Amfortas, Henri Scott as Guernemanz, and Arnold Crabbe as Klingsor.

Swimming Match for Hawkeys.

The long distance swimming contest is a new feature of the program for the Iowa state picnic which will be held in Jackson park around the bandstand west of the German building tomorrow afternoon. This event was added to the program during a meeting of the picnic committee in the rooms of the Hawkeye Fellowship club yesterday. In addition to the guessing contest for the $144 round trip prize to the Panama exposition, San Francisco, in 1915, there will be racing for girls and boys, a 100 yard dash for fat men weighing over 200 pounds, and a standing hop, step, and jump contest. The daughter of Iowa, regardless of age or weight, who can make the best time carrying an egg in a spoon for 100 yards without breaking the egg also will win a prize.

Camp Meeting's Future Stirs Up Ministers.

HAS the old time Methodist camp meeting had its day and must it be abandoned or changed in character?

This question is agitating the ministers and many of the church members in attendance at the Desplaines camp meeting. A discussion has been scheduled for next Monday, which will be the closing day of the meeting.

The three district superintendents in charge, the Rev. William Macafee, the Rev. L. F. W. Lesemann, and the Rev. John Thompson, who have presided in turn at the daily meetings of the ministers, have urged that every Methodist preacher in Chicago and suburbs be present on Monday and speak out their minds on the subject of the camp meeting's future policy.

"For fifty-three years the Desplaines campmeeting has continued on the old line," said Dr. Thompson yesterday. "It has had a remarkable and commendable record, but many think a change is needed to bring the meeting in harmony with modern methods of work. A recreation hour was appointed this year, but it was largely ignored.

"Play is a wholesome instinct. Its lack stifled my childhood, and the church will be limited if it is ignored. Many on the campground want organized social enjoyments, the introduction of topics treating with different and varied phases of life, with Sunday school work, and informing lectures on questions of Bible research. There also is a clamor for the use of the campground for fresh air work and for other religious uses than the two weeks of campmeeting."

"You can't drive pleasure out of the world and I don't want to," said the Rev. J. Hastie Odgers, pastor of Epworth church, Edgewater, who gave the chief address before the preachers' meeting yesterday. "If I had money I would not build a church. I would put some churches out of business and I would combine other churches, but I would build a great pleasure house where as a minister I would be permitted to go with my family without the slightest taint that I was doing anything unlawful or unministerial."

Tesla's plan for using power from wireless electricity to get a stranded automobile up a hill was used by Dr. Lesemann, who preached the morning sermon, in describing the projecting influence of character in accomplishing results.

Boutroux Defines Science.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, July 18.—The principal address at today's meeting of the international congress on religious progress was made by Emile Boutroux of the Academy on "The Consiliation of Science and Religion." He defined science as not being something self-existent, complete, and finished for all eternity, which a man has only to discover as a hidden treasure is unearthed.

Science, said Prof. Boutroux, is not a thing, but an activity. It is human intelligence itself, shaping itself from concepts which are capable of indefinite degrees of perfection, by the aid of which it explains and foresees phenomena.

The essence of religion, from a philosophical viewpoint, said Dr. Boutroux, is the ensemble of characteristics common to all religions offered by history. Human life, united as intimately as possible to divine life, is the aim of the idea of religion. Religion, science, or nature, he said, ought to be considered compatible one with the other, not because they cannot meet but because they mutually penetrate each other and are inwardly related.

Religion, said Prof. Boutroux, must be spiritual and inspired solely by the idea of God and not the idea of any material interests, for religion is the affirmation of insufficiency of reality to realize perfection, and not of its sufficiency. Science must be considered to be the expression of nature's actual state, but not its eternal absolute form. No scientific formula ever claims the value of an adequate principle independent of facts. The absolute exists only in the spiritual domain, and there is one with liberty.

Ten Sets of Twins in One School.

Ten sets of twins are scholars at the Wawnestreet Council Infant school at Hull, England. Most of the children are in the fourth class and all about 5 years of age. A visitor spoke to Amy and Lily Dibnah, a happy pair of sisters with fair hair tied with pink ribbon. It was almost impossible to distinguish one from the other.

"Sometimes," said Mrs. Rea, the teacher, "when one only comes to school, I ask, 'Where is Lily?' and the answer I get is, 'I am Lily?'"

Herbert and Sidney Bacon are another pair of brothers, and then there filed past Kathleen and Mary Marshall, Violet and Arthur Welborne, Minnie and Eva Dicks—each pair practically indistinguishable.

"Are they ever punished by mistake?" the visitor asked.

"O, no, never," was the reply. "We always punish on the spot, and so there is no chance of making a mistake."

Where Vanilla Came From.

The history of vanilla is closely associated with that of cocoa and chocolate, for vanilla came with cocoa to Europe—in fact, these three highly important products of New Spain were introduced into Europe by Spaniards. In the year 1520 cocoa was first drunk at the court in Madrid, and with chocolate, also a Mexican product, was quickly adopted.

For commercial reasons the method of manufacturing chocolate was kept a strict secret and it was made almost exclusively in Mexico. In some manner, however, the carefully guarded secret reached Spain, and in 1540 the first chocolate factory was established at Barcelona.

In the production of a delicately flavored chocolate vanilla is a necessity, and we may, therefore, conclude that the first introduction into Europe of vanilla for commercial purposes dates back to about 1540.

The word vanilla is derived from the Spanish "vainilla," the diminutive of "vaina," a pod; consequently, vanilla means a "little pod."

How Rubber Was Discovered.

M. de la Condamine, a French savant, was traveling in 1743 in Ecuador, South America, with an expedition sent out to measure a degree of the meridian for scientific purposes. He kept a journal, and the following entry is dated July 11:

"In the forests of Quito there flows a kind of resin which is called 'cahuchu.' When fresh it can be molded into any form. It is impervious to rain."

He further describes how the natives used it for making a special kind of syringe, and in April, 1745, when he had retired from his journey he presented a sample of "cahuchu" to the Academy of Sciences in Paris. The French word for rubber—caoutchouc—is simply a corruption of this Indian name.

La Condamine treated the product as a mere vegetable curiosity. It was Fresneau, a French engineer, who first studied and utilized the substance. He embarked for Guiana with a model of the fruit and a sketch of the leaf. He rowed along the rivers, offered the natives drink and music, and when he had assured himself of their friendship by these and other gifts, showed his patterns and asked them to indicate the plant.

His efforts were finally successful and he obtained enough rubber to make a pair of boots, which he presented to M. de Maurepas, who went to court in them. The "electric milk" as it was termed, thus made its first entry into the royal presence.

MOTHER REARS BABY BY BOOK; HUMANE SOCIETY ORDERS HALT

Child of Des Moines, Ia., Parents Allowed to Cry at Will, Henceforth Will Get Baths When Nervous.

Des Moines, Ia., July 18.—The Iowa Humane society this morning had occasion to interfere with a young mother who is rearing her new baby according to rules of guidance laid down in a book on that subject. She is the wife of F. H. Stewart, an instructor in a Des Moines high school. The neighbors objected to the scientific treatment of the child.

According to the complaint, the baby was permitted to lie upon the bed for many hours with only its bottle for comfort, and to cry at will. The baby continued to cry for hours at a time, while the parents sat upon the front porch and enjoyed the evening hours.

Mrs. Belle Deming, assistant secretary of the society, changed the rules for the care of the baby, and henceforth on hot nights it will have a cooling bath of water and soda, and be cuddled in its mother's arms when tired and nervous

Short Weight Peddlers Fined.

TAX REVIEWERS FIND OASIS IN A "DESERT OF DECEPTION."

Samuel Harris & Co. Appeal for Raise in Assessment from $3,640 to $26,420—Clerk Had Blundered.

The board of review yesterday found what it called an "oasis in a desert of deception" in a complaint of Samuel Harris & Co., 114 North Clinton street. Mr. Harris asked that the assessment of the concern be raised from $3,640 to $26,420.

"I couldn't be so outrageously dishonest as to let that valuation stand," said Mr. Harris. "I filed a regular schedule with the board of assessors personally. I don't see how they did it. When I saw the printed list I wrote immediately to the board of review."

Investigation showed that the clerk who copied the assessment into the field book from which the printed list was made out had blundered.

The board will raise Mr. Harris' assessment when it reconvenes on Monday.

"I hope the honesty of this one corporation will shame some of the others into a semblance of honesty at least," said one of the reviewers. "A few more of this kind and we could lower the taxes instead of raising them."

PLANS FREE PUNCH AND JUDY FOR ALL THE "KIDS" OF BOSTON.

Mayor Fitzgerald to Have Old Time Show Given on Playgrounds of the Hub Every Day for Month.

Boston, Mass., July 18.—[Special.]—Finding that outdoor opera, such as a New York company gives in large parks, is too expensive, Mayor Fitzgerald has decided to go to the other extreme and amuse the children with an old time circus, sideshow stunt.

From the first of August until the schools open there will be something doing in the Punch and Judy business on the Boston playgrounds every day. The show will move from one point to another until every recreation center has been covered.

The show will be under the supervision of the music division of the park and recreation department and will be properly censured by the mayor before having its first presentation.

Punch and Judy will cost Boston taxpayers only $60 per week.

Sends $1,000 for Firemen's Fund.

Fire Marshal Seyferlich received a letter yesterday from the Shavings and Sawdust company, West Twenty-third street and South Western avenue, inclosing a check for $1,000 and thanking the department for work done in fighting a fire on June 10. The money will be turned over to the pension fund.

Economical Housekeeping

By Jane Eddington.

Cottage Cheese Custards.

HOUSEWIVES shy at taking much pains in making that supremely wholesome by-product, cottage cheese. Great cooks differ as to how it should be made. For instance, Miss Farmer says: "Heat one quart of milk to 100° F. and turn into a strainer lined with cheesecloth. Pour over one quart of hot water, and as soon as water has drained through pour over another quart; then repeat. Gather cheesecloth around the curd to form a bag and let hang until the curd is free from whey. Moisten with melted butter and heavy cream and add salt to taste. Shape into small balls."

Miss Farmer also calls something cottage cheese which she makes with sweet milk and a junket tablet.

The everyday cook does not use the hot water, but simply heats the milk and drains out the whey, which heating will separate from the curds. In "The Cook Book of Left-overs" this process is described as follows:

"COTTAGE CHEESE I.—Cook one pint of thick sour milk in a double boiler over simmering water until it begins to whey. Strain through a fine napkin, squeeze out the whey, and add three tablespoonfuls of cream, a little salt, and white pepper. Make into small balls."

The cottage cheese II. of these cooks is made by the hot water method, but the authors advise hot or boiling water, while Miss Anna Barrows says:

"Turn the thick milk (one quart) into a two-quart pan and fill with hot water. In twenty minutes drain the hot water off through a strainer that no curd need be lost, and pour on more hot water. Do this several times, until the curd loses its sour taste and has contracted, but do not allow it to become too hard. If boiling water is used the curd will become unpalatable and indigestible. Buttons have been made of sour milk treated by heat and pressure. Press as much water as possible from the curd, . . . combine with butter or thick cream, salt it, and shape in small balls or pack in cups."

Those who like cottage cheese do not like this water method, but other who will not eat this wholesome food might learn to like it if made in this way. The cloth through which it is drained should be of close weave. The amount of waste depends somewhat upon the degree of sourness which the milk has reached. When it is just clabbered it is in the most nearly ideal state.

CHEESE PUFFS.—Strain cheese curd from the whey and beat half a pint basin of it fine in a mortar with a spoonful and a half of flour, three eggs, but only one white, a spoonful of orange flower water, a quarter of a nutmeg, and sugar to make it pretty sweet. Lay a little of this paste in small round cakes on a tin plate. If the oven is hot a quarter of an hour will bake them. Serve with pudding sauce.

The oven must not be too hot. The orange flower water can be well spared. Unless the cheese is dry indeed and takes up the egg well it is best to bake these in muffin tins. They are really a custard sort of cake.

To make a real custard with this best part of the sour milk, however, requires with the sweet milk a little more care, for the reason that the latter must not be turned or curdled.

PLAIN SORT OF CHEESE CAKE.—Turn three quarts of milk to curd, break it, and drain the whey. When dry, break it in a pan with two ounces of butter till perfectly smooth. Put to it a pint and a half of thin cream or good milk and add sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg, and three ounces of currants.

Lillian Russell's Beauty Secrets.

By Lillian Russell

The Blessings of a Garden.

[Copyright: 1913: By Lillian Russell.]

WE who live in large cities know nothing of the pleasures of a garden. We are like cliff dwellers, just living in holes in the walls. We rarely have even the joy of stepping upon "God's green earth," with its healing qualities and its marvelous lessons of nature.

Thousands of people never have the opportunity to be in touch with mother earth until sickness overtakes them.

Nervous prostration is caused by too much work, too little work, too much pleasure, or none at all. In such cases get right down to earth, and it will cure you. Find a spot somewhere where you can grow something; plant it, water it, watch it spring up and please you.

I had a friend who had worked in an office for years, whose only recreation was a trip to Europe every year or so. One continual rush to do and see things. Naturally he became ill, forgot things; his brain cells were all worn out by continual thinking and plodding. He was sent home to rest, in a city house, with city noises all around him.

When I called to see him—it was in May—all blinds were lowered, all windows closed; darkness and quiet were supposed to be the necessary cure. He came towards me and mysteriously whispered to me that he had nervous prostration.

Naturally, being a stickler for fresh air, I was horrified, and unmercifully told him what I thought of those stifling rooms and ever present idea of illness. I told him to get out into the fresh air, where things were alive; to take a little place and grow things—radishes, lettuce, parsley, sweet peas, flowers of all kinds, morning glories and pansies. Plant the seeds, water them, watch them grow, tend them, cull them. Eat the vegetables and surround himself with flowers, give them to his friends, do anything with them; only get acquainted with nature in its primitive form.

He had enough faith in me to take my advice. He did raise a garden. He became as interested in every little sprout and bud as he had been in business. He became an enthusiast upon the subject of growing vegetables, and eating them the same day they were picked.

Of course, he was cured of his nervousness as soon as he got away from himself and attended to God's affairs. He discovered a real religion in the growth of flowers and vegetables, and now he has a farm and spends all of his summers there growing things of all kinds.

There is much to be learned in the study of gardening. It makes you ashamed to stand still and see those wonderful things developing for your use and pleasure.

You people who do not know how to spend your summer, take a little space of green earth and grow something. You will find more of God's creation in it than you can find in whole cities.

Remember: You can find exercise, health of mind and body, love of nature, and beauty in just growing a little garden.

Lillian Russell's Answers.

J. L.: More than half of the letters I receive are complaints of complexion ills. Many of these, of course, can be cured by external application alone, as in some forms of acne no defect of general health can be discovered. In some cases the disorder for long periods of time is limited to a few pores or a small area of the face and is undoubtedly of local origin. Many women through ignorance or lack of energy allow the mechanical plugging of sebaceous glands with dust and dirt, failing to remove the same with soap and water or cream, thus causing accumulations at the mouths of the pores. Then, again, some women use too strong soaps or cheap cosmetics. Contact with dyed veils and frequent fingering of the face tend to spread over its surface micro-organisms which are undoubtedly active factors in some, if not all, stages and varieties of disease.

MISS A. V. L.: I am so sorry, but it takes at least a week, and sometimes two weeks, before an answer to a query can be published in my columns. I have never heard of darkening the skin to get rid of freckles. Of course, if you would do this it would cover up the freckles, but I am sure you would not want a skin that looked as if it was covered with freckles. The best way to get rid of them is by bleaching them. I should be glad to send you a formula for a French bleach for freckles if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope. I cannot give you any information about the article you mention. Do not ruin the lovely color of your hair by trying to darken it. I think there is nothing more beautiful than red hair, and by changing the color you would ruin it, making it brittle and streaked, and causing it to break off at the ends. It would be difficult for you to keep your hair one shade, for in a few days it would turn light at the roots and get streaked, and what is more horrible than hair streaked with dye?

MISS C. M.: In the case of a double chin prevention is much easier than cure. High collars always form a double chin, and the habit of holding the head down is fatal. I am sure if you are persistent you can get rid of your double chin. A good exercise is to throw the head back as far as possible, putting all the muscles on the stretch; then throw it to the left, then to the right, still keeping the head back. Raise the head and repeat several times. Deep breathing also is good. The blowing exercise is another good one for rounding out the throat and getting rid of a double chin. Raise the head and take a deep breath, then blow as if blowing a whistle. Turn the head to one side and then to the other. If you will try this exercise in front of your mirror you will see how it rounds out your throat.

Marion Harland's Helping Hand.

By Marion Harland

Macaroon Pudding.

MAKE a custard of two cups milk, yolks of three eggs, one-quarter cup sugar, one-quarter pound macaroons, two teaspoons vanilla, four drops almond extract. When cold fold in the whites of the eggs, which have been well beaten. Pour into a buttered pan and bake in pan of water about one-half hour. Serve cold with whipped cream. I have served six people with this quantity. (Kindness of Mrs. J. B. S.)

Bar le Duc Conserve.

Take selected red or white currants of large size, one by one; carefully make an incision in the skin one-quarter of an inch deep with tiny embroidery scissors. Through this slip remove the seeds with the aid of a sharp needle; remove the seeds separately, preserving the shape of the fruit; take the weight of the currants in honey, and when this has been heated (great care must be exercised not to scorch the honey), and the currants. Let simmer for a minute or two and then seal as for jelly. The currants retain their shape, are of a beautiful color, and melt in the mouth. As the honey is a preservative, these preserves do not need to be kept airtight. (Kindness of L. A. B.)

Craves a Piano.

"My 10 year old daughter is fond of music and craves a piano day in and day out. I come to you and your glad Helping Hand. It seems to me I have read an article in your Corner about a certain firm burning up pianos on account of not having enough room for the surplus. If I could only get one from them I would try and scrape together enough money to pay expressage. Or maybe one of your readers knows of some one who is going away and would trust a worthy person with her piano. I cannot afford to keep the child in the sanitarium where she heard all nice music. I have hard work to make both ends meet. You will, I know, try your best to find a piano that is standing idle.

"MRS. C. S."

We gather from a sentence in your appeal that the music hungry child is an invalid. Her claim upon our sympathies is therefore the stronger than if she were a healthy girl who could seek diversion from her "craving" in occupations that engage the minds of her robust associates. There was a holocaust of obsolete patterns of pianos last year in the east. I have heard of none in any other territory. I do know, however, that the square piano is utterly out of date and that one would bring so little at an auction the owner would act more wisely in bestowing it upon some music lover who cannot buy even the old fashioned "rubbish." I hold the mother's address.

Help for Lila.

"I cannot wait another day, but inclose a letter from the 'Child of the Corner,' also the clipping that you and E. M. B. may know about Lila. I wrote to her that for the summer I was living on the outskirts or in the suburbs of my home town, and if she could possibly make arrangements after an operation to come out and enjoy God's sunshine on the green grass and listen to the birds sing, I would see that she returned home safely. Her letter speaks for itself and others can help her if we all band together. What can you suggest for the case? I hope E. M. B. will see Lila's letter as soon as possible. I shall send Lila a postal today. It is my busy day, but I shall do that to let her know her wish shall be gratified at once. Each heart has its own burden, and I shall try to pass the kindness on to others.

"GRACE R. S."

Readers will not forget the Child of the Corner of whom we spoke a week or two ago. The correspondence between her and the minister of mercy whose deeply interesting letter we have just read, forms a chapter in the history of the H. H. C. I am loath to withhold from my beloved constituency. Here is the communication to which allusion is made in the letter aforesaid:

"I have just received your letter. I was feeling very miserable before it came. Mother has been to the hospital and if she can arrange it we must have an operation soon. My leg pains me so that I could not stand it any longer. It hurts me terribly day and night! I should be glad to go and see you, but you know I do not walk unless the doctor fixes me up. If he makes that leg as good as the other I will surely come. Mother is doing all she can for me, but you know my father is dead and it is hard for mother to get along without him. I dread the hospital, but if it will help me, I must go and be operated upon. Do pray for me, Mrs. S.! I hope to hear from you often. Please excuse pencil! I am too nervous to use ink. My hand shakes badly.

"LILA W."

I join my wish to that of Lila's friend that E. M. B., another tender hearted benefactress, will read the pathetic little letter soon. And the trembling child may be sure other prayers will unite with those for which she asks, that she may be sustained in the dreaded ordeal. As we have read in former letters, she has had already one terrible siege under the surgeon's hands.

Thanks for Records.

"I have answered the letters you have sent me. Please send me the address of J. P. H. I want to thank him for the records he sent me.

"H. E. S."

The address has gone to you. I thank you for recognizing the duty of acknowledgment of the favor done to you.

Received the Cart.

"I received your letter in reference to the go-cart. I have been to see Mrs. J. and she gave me the cart. I am much obliged for it. I thank the Corner and you for sending me that letter! If I ever can do anything for the Corner I surely will do it.

"MRS. O. P."

Every act of kindness done for love's sake to friend or to stranger, every gentle word to the weary and heavy laden, is a help to our "small Corner." We are all bound by the ties of blood; all children of one Father and with faces turned toward one and the same home.

"Part of the host have crossed the flood,
And part are crossing now."

The time is short. The reward is sure. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these." Loving hearts and true will recall the rest and attest to the fidelity with which the promise is kept.

Laura Jean Libbey's Advice

By Laura Jean Libbey

People Drawn Together.

[Copyright: 1913: By Laura Jean Libbey.]

IT seems strange, when one comes to think about it, in what odd and unforeseen ways people who are intended for each other are brought together. Match making friends may with the best intention introduce a nice young man to a sweet girl; may plan dinners for them, or automobile parties, trolley picnics—in fact, many forms of entertainments, which will throw them into each other's society. But despite all of these aids to Cupid, if there is not that irresistible appeal, the one for the other, all of the planning to make a match by their friends, is time lost.

The girl in the case may be beautiful in face and form, dressed with exquisite taste, but that particular young man may have been born with a pronounced liking for girls who are plain of face, and gowns fashioned by their own fingers, and which did not bear the impress of fashion's modiste. He may be that sort of a young man, too, who believes in picking out his own girl companions.

Many a young man will fight shy of being introduced to a rich man's daughter, especially if he is not as well off as she is, having to work hard for his living, and not in a position to save much of his salary. The girl whose friends are so anxious for him to meet may be self-assertive, while he has a particular dislike for the girl who knows it all and won't let him get in a word edgewise.

When it comes to marrying he wants a wife who will look up to him, and not one who will consider her views superior to his own. He does not want a wife who has been used to every luxury, and would think herself certainly abused if it was necessary for her to broil a steak or to make a pan of biscuits for his supper.

He may be one of the class, too, who believes that the plum brought to his hand has not the flavor of the one which is difficult for him to secure. Many a man considers that some rich man's daughters are more ornamental in a parlor than as a helpmeet. With many a young man a little music, sentimental song, and poetry goes a very long ways.

He will never propose marriage to her unless he believes her to be sensible above all things; one who has his every interest at heart; who is of as saving a turn of mind as he is; whom he can confide his business perplexity to, if occasion should arise; whose judgment is well worth considering.

Every young man has an ideal. He will pass by an hundred maids if need be until he comes across one who is the nearest approach to the woman whom he has conjured up in his day dreams. When he comes across such an one he will let nothing daunt him in his endeavor to make her acquaintance, aye, and to make himself pleasing in her sight. He will woo her in persistency and eagerness that few would suspect him of being capable of. It will not require diplomacy or urging on the part of their mutual friends to bring them together.

It has been said that "the course of true love does not run smooth." But it has also been found that all of the combined forces in the world cannot keep two apart whom destiny intended for one another, to read life's meaning in each other's eyes.

It is well sometimes for the mutual friends to introduce young people, with the hope that they may take a liking for each other. But if one or the other shows a listlessness, in regard to being brought in contact a second time, and yet again, they should let it go at that.

The real true heart matches are made in heaven and not on earth. Most men naturally resent having their love affairs manipulated by others. If people who are brought together by friends, aye, and they wed, and there are rifts in love's lute, the friends will always be blamed for causing the unhappiness of two hearts.

Has Never Spoken of Marriage.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am 19, and have been keeping steady company with a young man two years my senior for the last three years. He has made me understand many times that he thinks an awful lot of me, yet he has never spoken of marriage, and is extremely jealous of me. Times being a little bad, he has been out of work for some time, and is talking of joining the navy. Do you think, if he really loved me as he makes me think he does, that he would leave me in this manner? And do you think his present financial condition is the cause of him not engaging himself to me? Also, would you advise me to waste any further time with him? I love him dearly, and yet I do not wish to waste any more time with him than possible. B."

He seems to be rather an unsteady proposition. For your future happiness, I think it just as well that he join the navy. Do not ask him to stay.

Goes Motorcyling.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am 21. I have frequently gone motorcycling with a young man of my acquaintance. There is another young man whom I have reason to believe is in love with me. He disapproves of girls riding on motorcycles, saying it is hard on a man's health, but much worse on a girl's. Does he say this out of jealousy, or do you think he has my welfare at heart? Do you approve of girls riding on motorcycles? E."

I quite agree with the man. A girl who rides on a motorcycle makes a great mistake. A motorcycle is no place for a woman.

SOU'EASTER HALTS CUBS AND BRAVES IN BOSTON TOWN

Rain Puts Baseball on 'Blink,' but a Battle May Be Staged Today.

MARANVILLE'S DAY IN HUB

Springfield Fans and Others to Do Honor to Shortstop of Stallings' Team.

DOUBLE HEADER SET FOR AUGUST 12

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Boston, Mass., July 18.—[Special.]—A regular Boston sou'easter which started blowing in the Atlantic last night put today's game between the Cubs and the descendants of Plymouth Rock on the blink.

It was raining real rain when the athletes woke up and it was threatening to rain more realistic stuff when they went to bed, but the weather sharks say it will be clear tomorrow.

Nevertheless, it will be only one game tomorrow, for the whole seating capacity of the south end grounds has been sold out for that game already, and it would be a baseball crime to put on a needless doubleheader. Tomorrow is the occasion of a celebration which rings in most of western Massachusetts, for it is Maranville day, and a large delegation of bugs from Springfield and environs is coming to town to do honor to the shortstop who has made their section of the map famous.

Huge Crowd to See Game.

Not less than 1,500 reservations already have been made for the denizens of Springfield, which boasts of being Walter Maranville's birthplace, and that crowd on top of the usual Saturday attendance is sure to swamp the cigar box plant in which the National league games continue to be played here. So there will be no double bill tomorrow, and the Boston club has put the playoff of today's game over until Aug. 12.

That date will be the opening of the Cubs' final series in Boston and will mark the start of their final eastern invasion. Owing to the new rule promulgated by Prexy Lynch, it would ordinarily be impossible for the Cubs to arrange to get the 5:30 p. m. train out of Chicago on Aug. 10 so as to avoid spending two nights on the road getting here, so it was forty on Manager Stallings' part to book the doubleheader after the double night on the train for the Cubs.

But Treasurer Williams of the Trojans immediately got busy with a flock of time tables and inside of thirty minutes after the Boston club notified him of its plans for playing off today's game the said Williams had it all figured out that the Cubs could leave Chicago on the night of Aug. 10 and avoid two nights on the road just as easy as a mouse crawls through a knothole. It is merely a case of arranging to have the Cubs' sleepers switched from one track to another in Cleveland. That's one advantage of traveling with a chaperon who can think.

Cub Cripples Soon May Play.

The Cub cripples are expected to round into playing form by the end of the trip so that all of Manager John's twenty-three athletes will be available by that time. Archer is due to be ready to catch by the time the team reaches Philadelphia at least. Bridwell could play tomorrow if necessary, but Corridon is doing so well at short that there is no need to hurry Bridwell until his knee is absolutely healed. The great Zim probably will not be available until the team returns home, except for the rôle of pinch hitter. Heine's wrenched ankle refuses to mend and he continues to limp perceptibly except when drawing one card to four of a kind.

This town is talking of little except the decapitation of Jake Stahl by President McAleer, and as far as can be ascertained the rank and file of the fans are with the man who piloted a second division team to the world's championship last season. In other words, Stahl is looked upon by Boston rooters much as Frenk Chance is by Chicago fans. The deals given both are held to be almost on a par and are taken as indicative of the waning prevalence of sentiment in modern commercialized baseball. Stahl himself has little to say, nothing reflecting on McAleer, but plans to spend a month at one of the shore resorts near Boston, then return to the private life of a banker in Chicago.

HAVENS FLIES INTO DETROIT; FINISHES TRIP OF 900 MILES.

Aeroyachtsman Completes Journey from Chicago Over Lake Route—Prize to Be Given to Aviator.

Detroit, Mich., July 18.—Beckwith Havens completed a flying boat trip from Chicago to Detroit about 4 o'clock this afternoon. He followed the route planned for the Chicago-Detroit aerial cruise and covered 900 miles.

Although it was announced that the cruise, which started from Chicago on July 8, had been called off because the private committee which raised the purse was reported to have withdrawn the prizes, E. P. Noel, steward of the Aero Club of America, said here this afternoon that the cruise would stand and that Havens would be declared the winner.

Although Havens reached Detroit shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon, he did not make his landing until 4:06:30. When he landed he had used up his last drop of gasoline in his flight from Port Huron. The last five miles were made practically on the water. J. B. Verplanck, owner of the flying boat, accompanied Havens as a passenger.

TRACERY TAKES $50,000 ROLL.

Belmont's Speeder, Favorite in Eclipse Stakes, Wins at Sandown Park, with Louvois Second.

SANDOWN PARK, England, July 18.—August Belmont's Tracery today won the Eclipse stakes of $50,000 for 3 and 4 year olds, over a course of one and one-quarter miles. Louvois was second and Bachelor's Wedding third. Seven ran.

The betting was 2 to 1 on Tracery, 6 to 1 against Louvois, and 100 to 6, against Bachelor's Wedding. Tracery was the horse thrown by the man Harold Hewitt while running for the Ascot gold cup on June 19. A. W. Hally, who rode Tracery today, was the same jockey who had the mount at Ascot when Tracery was thrown. Tracery recently was insured for $150,000.

C. WHITE SCORES A KNOCKOUT.

Chicago Boy Stops Jake Abel in Second Round of Fight in Atlanta, Ga., Ring.

Atlanta, Ga., July 18.—[Special.]—Charley White of Chicago stopped Jake Abel of Chattanooga in the second round of their scheduled ten round bout tonight. A straight left to the point of the jaw dropped Abel for the count of nine. A right swing sent him on his face for good. White had to assist him to his corner. There was no necessity of counting.

Umpire Byron Escapes Mob Under Protection of Rigler and Police.

RALLY NETS 5-3 VICTORY.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 18.—Exciting scenes were seen during and after a ninth inning batting rally which gave Cincinnati the victory today, 5 to 3.

In the ninth Manager Dooin and Moran were ordered to the club house by Umpire Byron. After the game a crowd of fans made a rush for Umpire Byron when he tried to reach the umpire's dressing room under the stand. Cushions were thrown and efforts were made to strike him, but under the protection of Umpire Rigler and policemen he reached his quarters safely. Score:

Seven Bases on Balls with Three Hits Score Seven Runs in Fifth, Easily Beating Dodgers.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 18.—Brooklyn's pitchers were wild and ineffective and Pittsburgh walked away with a 12 to 1 victory. Three pitchers figured in the fifth. Wagner and Hall giving seven bases on balls, which with three hits and an error sent seven runs across the plate. "Babe" Adams held Brooklyn to five hits and made four of Pittsburgh's twelve. Score:

St. Louis Players Fined $25 Each.

New York, July 18.—President Lynch of the National league today fined Fielder Cathers and Second Baseman Magee of the St. Louis club $25 each for their fist fight at the Polo grounds yesterday. Mr. Lynch announced the offense warranted suspension, but in view of the crippled condition of the St. Louis club at this time he would not impose the additional penalty.

AMERICANS TAKE TWO NET MATCHES

McLoughlin Defeats Powell of Canada in Davis Cup Preliminary.

WILLIAMS ALSO VICTOR.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 18.—Morris E. McLoughlin and R. Norris Williams of the American tennis team scored triumphs over their Canadian adversaries, R. B. Powell and B. P. Schwengers, today in the semi-final round to decide which team will meet the English net stars in the Davis cup play next week. With only one victory needed in the next three matches, the Americans are expected to carry off the semi-final honors. The doubles will be played tomorrow, and if necessary two single matches will be staged on Monday.

The Yankee experts scored their victories in straight sets. Williams took his match from Schwengers, 6–4, 6–2, 6–4. McLoughlin encountered stiffer opposition, but succeeded in defeating Powell, the star of the Canadian team, 10–8, 6–1, 6–4.

Harold H. Hackett and McLoughlin are favorites in the doubles match. They probably will be opposed by Powell and Schwengers.

Yankees Best When Pressed.

The American aspirants for the Davis cup played in convincing style. Although both exhibited what might be termed loose tennis at times, they always displayed their best game when hard pressed. This, however, was infrequent.

McLoughlin approached his usual form only in service and smashing. His side line game was not equal to that of his opponent, who won many points as the result of interchange of these smashes. Several games won by the American by the love route were due to his terrific service, which almost completely baffled the Canadian.

In their first set Williams clearly took advantage of the palpable nervousness of Schwengers. When once set the Canadian forced his opponent hard, but Williams, with his consistent game, never was in danger of defeat. Schwengers attempted to force his rival by wicked returns, but Williams always met these like a veteran.

Service Wins for McLoughlin.

In the protracted first set McLoughlin won several love games on his service. Powell allowed the terrific first ball from the Californian to slide off his racket every time. The Canadian attempted lobs, but they were met with killing smashes. Powell played a plugging game, but occasionally electrified the grand stand with telling drives to the corners of the court.

Powell kept up his plucky game in the second set, but without avail. The Californian was himself again and kept the spectators gasping at his daring shots. He won point after point by dropping the ball just over the net, while the Canadian nearly broke his back trying to reach it from the base line. Notwithstanding the onesided score of six games to one, this set was much better played than the first.

In the third and final set, McLoughlin's tennis was brilliant, but erratic. He fumbled a number of easy returns, but redeemed himself by sending back others which seemed almost impossible. Time after time he lured Powell from the base line to the net by short chops, then lobbed the Canadian's return just out of reach.

McLoughlin's smashing had been unexceptionable, but in this set he outdid himself by killing all Powell's offerings which crossed the net at a height of more than three feet. In attempting a difficult return in the sixth game, McLoughlin fell heavily on his face. He was badly shaken and took several minutes to recover. He lost a point, but finally won the game.

"LEAVE IT TO BAN."

The St. Louis heat went to Evans' head
And he mixed with a St. Louis fan,
But the club owners ordered another and said:
"Leave it to Ban."

The Yanks bawled in rage: "Commy handed to us
Two cripples for one healthy man."
But the club owners said: "We should worry and fuss.
Leave it to Ban."

The young Boston manager's friends made a howl
When Jim tied to Garland the can.
"Don't bother us, boys," said the mags with a scowl;
"Leave it to Ban."

Tom glanced at a bushel of kicks with a sob.
"This berth would be simply a cinch
If they'd only believe that this job is my job,
And leave it to Lynch."

Discovered, in the person of Pat Page, somebody who can beat the gas company.

Carl Morris of Oklahoma stopped Marty Cutler of Chicago and is therefore heavyweight champion of the south.

Since Joe Engel blanked the Browns and Joe Boehling copped nine straight, people are beginning to doubt the allegation that there is only one man on the Washington team.

A EPICK.

I.

I don't know what a epick is,
I've never met the bird,
But I promised I would write one, and
I must stick to my word.
As near as I can figure out,
This thing they call a epick
Must be some close relation to
A grateful epileptic.
(Just a start.)

We don't intend to pay a dollar for the following, and publish it merely because the contrib took the trouble to have it printed on a card: "Davenport, Ia., July 18.—[To the Wake Editor.]—An overheated Davenport fan let loose of this: 'Ty Cobb is the best pitcher in the National league.' This is the best play I ever heard.—G. D. R."

"Chappelle came from McCloskey, Ill., where he visited his mother and straightened up his affairs," says the Journal. Much like a guy preparing for the final trip across the dark river.

Chappelle may be a bright ball player, but if we'd been doing it, we wouldn't have postponed our debut until Bender and Plank were due to pitch.

The St. Louis Cards are likely to develop into classy scrappers if they fight among themselves every time one of them makes a bad play.

LONE RUN FOR CLEVELAND BEATS CHICAGO "FEDS," 1 TO 0.

Two Passes by Timmersman in First Round Enable Visitors to Score Only Tally of Contest.

One run was all "Cy" Young's Cleveland Federals needed to wrench their third straight victory from Keeley's Chicago team at De Paul field yesterday. The visitors scored the only run of the game in the opening stanza.

The game was the fastest played in the new league since it was launched, three months ago. It was a pitchers' battle between Timmersman and Blaser of Cleveland, and Timmersman's wildness at the start gave his opponent the verdict.

Timmersman gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth and Fisk finished. Potts, first up for Cleveland, drew a walk and took second on Kirby's sacrifice. Patten also strolled and the runners advanced when Timmersman made a wild heave. Latimore's hit to Farrell took a bad bound, and although he retired the runner, Potts scored. The same teams play today. Score:

SAM WELLERISMS.

A double header today, starting at 1:30 p. m., will wind up the combats with the Big Macks.

So far four games have been played in this series, and each side has won two. An even break on the six games now will satisfy both sides.

It is safe to say that more than a thousand persons attended yesterday just to pike at Larry Chappelle, so Comiskey has been handed back about $1,000 of the purchase money already.

Callahan is not as well equipped for pitchers today as his rival, for Mack has his old star, Eddie Plank, to send against us for one game, and Houck for the other. It is likely that Walsh and Cicotte will oppose them.

Walter Schang, the sensational young catcher for Mack, was on the job yesterday, and it must be admitted that he looked like a live one. Lord and Fournier tried to steal on him and he pegged both out. He looked like a hitter, too, and showed great activity on the bases.

Chappelle was placed at the top of the batting order and was given tremendous applause when he went to bat the first time. He finished that attempt with a line fly straight to Oldring. His second attempt was a long drive that made Walsh hustle to deep center in order to capture the ball.

Ray Schalk turned another swell play, that cut the Macks out of one run. Old Dan Murphy opened the seventh with a three base drive to right field. He stood on third when Barry died on a grounder to Weaver, then tried to score when Schang boosted to Collins. Shano pegged home in plenty of time, but his peg was at least ten feet behind the plate. Schalk leaned out, snatched the ball, then made a headlong dive to the base and tagged Murphy on the foot as he slid in. Ray was slightly spiked on the hand, but he got his man, where many a catcher would have passed up the chance.

NEW CATCHER FOR WHITE SOX.

Nick Allen, Secured from Minneapolis Team, Will Join Callahan's Squad at Once.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 18.—Catcher Nick Allen, last season a member of the Minneapolis team, but so far this season with the Northern league, has been sold to the Chicago Americans. The price was not made public. Allen will join the White Sox at once.

St. Louis, Mo., July 18.—Walter Johnson added another game to his long string of victories today when Washington scored four runs in the twelfth inning, winning the third successive game from St. Louis, 5 to 1.

During the four innings the speed marvel pitched only one man reached first base on an error by McBride. The visitors started the final inning with a base on balls to Milan. Gandil sacrificed, Moeller singled, and when Pratt fumbled Shanks' roller Milan tallied. McBride was retired at first, but Moeller scored. Ainsmith tripled, scoring Shanks, and the catcher counted when Johnson drove a single to center. Score:

DENIES TALK IN CHASE TRADE.

Ban Johnson Returns and Declares League Will Settle Matter if Yankees Enter Protest.

President B. B. Johnson of the American league returned last night from Adrian, Mich., where he attended the flag raising of the Southern Michigan league in company with President Navin of the Detroit club, who was born in Adrian.

Mr. Johnson disclaimed the interviews emanating from Detroit in which he was quoted as saying the national commission was likely to pass upon a reported protest of the New York club in regard to the Hal Chase trade.

"If the New York club makes any formal complaint, which I am not certain it will, the matter will be settled entirely within the league. No statements have been made by me in reference to the merits of the case or as to any contemplated action by the national commission."

BUNCH SWATS OFF RUSSELL

Three Clouts and Walk Net Three in Fourth, and Three More Yield One in Eighth.

ONLY ONE LOCAL MAN LEFT ON BASE

BY SAM WELLER.

Larry Chappelle joined the White Sox yesterday and played with them against Connie Mack's big team, but it did no good, for the top liners tore off a victory, 4 to 1. Larry didn't bring any luck and that was what the Sox needed in this particular contest.

Winning by straight ordinary athletic prowess was an impossibility, for the Big Macks put up a sturdy defense with the great Indian, Bender, doing the hurling. On the other hand, Tex Russell, with all his cunning and curves, couldn't suppress the clouting easterners, and only because of the continued sharp fielding by Comiskey's boys was the score held down to four tallies.

The introduction of Monsieur Chappelle was the day's feature anyway and he couldn't help it because it was "Ladies' day." About 2,000 of the fair fans were present. One might have imagined that the young French boy blushed before that gathering and perhaps he did, but it wasn't because of the presence of the women so much as because he fanned twice.

Smashes Two Hard Flies.

That was a horrible experience for an aspiring youth to have on his first day in the big league. However, there wasn't man or woman present who was discouraged. The boy at least fanned swinging at the ball and he wasn't swinging at bad ones. Then, besides, he caught a couple of them squarely and if the outfielders hadn't been stationed in the spots where he hit the ball they would have had merry chases to the fence.

Young Larry did well. When the game was over Charley Comiskey was smiling and rubbing his hands, and this in spite of the defeat. The "Old Roman" liked his new $18,000 beauty. He liked the way he stood in the batters' box and the judgment he showed in picking out the good ones. He liked the way he sprinted to first base and he liked the way he handled a fly ball in the outfield. He liked the whip the youngster displayed when he pegged from deep center field and cut off a daring base runner at the third corner. Considering all this, we may say that Young Larry Chappelle broke into the big league successfully and this in spite of the fact that he fanned twice.

Chief Bender Awful Tight.

There were no opportunities for the recruit to display his true worth in his first game. Chief Bender wouldn't permit openings. The boy never had a chance to hit when some one was on the bases. He didn't get on himself to show what he is capable of doing there, and only four times in the game did he get his hands on the ball. Once he took in a fly ball with no effort whatever, and once a base hit came to him when Jack Barry tried to leg it from first to third. Larry shot the ball low and fast to Weaver at third and Barry was cut down. Two other singles went out in his territory, but he wasn't called upon to exert himself in handling them.

The fact that Chappelle didn't get a base hit on his first day is not worrying south side fans. The whole Sox team gathered only five hits, and Hal Chase made two of the five. Chase, Schalk, Collins, and Fournier staged a swell assault in the second inning and produced the only run. It was turned out with such precision and daring, starting the Sox off in front, that it looked as if the Big Macks were doomed for another trimming.

This happened to be a day when Tex Russell needed more than one run in order to win his game. It may be he didn't have quite as much "stuff" on the ball as usual, or it simply may be that Baker, McInnis, Dan Murphy, and Schang are some clouters. More likely it is the latter.

In the whole game the Sox had only one man left on base, and that was Chase after his three bagger. All others were wiped off in their helpless attempts to advance, except Chase on another occasion, when he scored the only run. He started the second round with a blow to center for one base, and Schalk bunted him down to second. Shano Collins died on a long fly to Walsh, and Chase raced to third after the catch, from where he scored on Fournier's single to left. The latter was nipped stealing, ending the only successful Sox attack.

Eddie Collins Starts Trouble.

Eddie Collins worked Russell for a walk at the start of the fourth, and after Baker had failed trying to bunt he finished with a line drive along the right foul line for two bases, sending Collins to third. McInnis pulled a smashing single inside of third base, sending both runners across and taking second himself on the peg home. Dan Murphy lifted to J. Collins, and McInnis scooted to third after the catch. Barry slapped to Lord and McInnis was trapped between third and home and run down. Barry made second on the play and scored when Schang ripped a liner to the corner of left field for two bags. A moment later Schang was nipped off second by Schalk and run down trying to make third.

Three singles in the eighth gave the Macks their other run. Bender opened with a scratch hit to Lord. Oldring popped out, but Walsh singled to left, sending the Indian to second. Walsh was caught off first by Schalk, whereupon Bender tried to make third, but Chase shot to Lord and the Indian was tagged. E. Collins walked, then Baker cut a single to center, sending Walsh home from second. The round closed when McInnis forced E. Collins at third. Score:

STEWART TO PLAY WOLTERS FOR CUP

Victories Give Two Golfers a Chance to Capture the Skokie Trophy.

DOCTOR WINS BY 5 AND 4.

Defeats Bennett, While Exmoor Contestant Downs McConnell by One Hole.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Dr. Lee K. Stewart of the home club and Leon A. Wolters of the Exmoor Country club, came through the semi-final round in the main flight of the Skokie invitation tournament yesterday, and will play over the thirty-six hole route today for possession of the Skokie cup.

The big doctor defeated William H. Bennett, the veteran Skokie player, 5 and 4, and Wolters, after a nip and tuck struggle, eliminated George M. McConnell of Edgewater by a margin of one hole.

Two Lagrange players, B. N. Anderson and H. C. Simons, will meet in the final for the Elm cup. Both had comparatively easy victories, the former downing S. A. Wilmarth of Skokie, 5 and 3, and the latter winning from the redoubtable Sam Dingee of Exmoor, 3 and 2.

Good Play in Minor Flights.

A heavy rain in the early morning slowed up the course, but had no bad effect on the scores. There were a number of good matches in the minor flights, one of the best being between Ray Daniels of Midlothian and Douglas Smith of Skokie in the Willow cup. Daniels went out in 37 and Smith in 39, the former leading 2 up. Smith won the tenth hole, but lost the twelfth. The next five holes were halved in par figures. Daniels got a 4 at the bye hole, finishing with a card of 78, Smith taking one more.

Percy Manchester had to shoot a 77 to defeat Dr. B. A. Duffy, 2 and 1, in the Oriole cup flight. The doctor went out in 35, Manchester getting 36 and being 1 down. The Skokie man came home in 41, Duffy taking three more. At the seventeenth hole Duffy's tee shot found an almost unplayable lie, and he had to chop out a few feet.

Fine Driving by Dr. Stewart.

Dr. Stewart did some fine driving in his match with Bennett. Playing out the bye holes, he was over the sixteenth hole, 525 yards, in two, but missed his putt for a three. Stewart won the first two holes in par fours, but Bennett won the next, 3—4. Stewart was 2 up at the turn and won three of the next five holes. Cards:

Stewart—Out	4	4	4	5	4	4	5	6	3	—39
Bennett—Out	5	5	3	5	5	4	5	5	4	—41
Stewart—In	5	5	5	3	4
Bennett—In	6	7	5	3	5

Wolters and McConnell are both fine match players and after a hard fought game the outcome was determined on the seventeenth green, on which Wolters holed a long "rainboy" putt and won, 5—6. This put him dormie one, and he halved the terminal hole with a par three. Cards:

Wolters—Out	6	3	4	6	4	4	4	6	3	—40
McConnell—Out	4	5	5	5	4	4	4	6	3	—40

MRS. COLBURN TAKES HONORS IN WOMEN'S GOLF TOURNEY.

Glen View Player Defeats Miss Ernestine Pearce of Calumet Club in Final by 2 and 1.

Mrs. F. S. Colburn of the Glen View club carried off the main honor of the Women's Western Golf association tournament, which finished yesterday at the Beverly Country club. She defeated Miss Ernestine Pearce, the young Calumet player, 2 and 1, in the final, after having defeated Mrs. R. H. Smalley, 4 and 3, and Miss Carrie Lee of Evanston, 4 and 3, on the preceding days.

Miss Pearce's play through the tournament indicates she is one of the most promising players of the Chicago district. Mrs. Colburn gained a lead of 2 up on the first nine holes, but on the second nine Miss Pearce held her even, each winning four holes. Miss Pearce got a fine 6 on the long eleventh hole, 565 yards, and at the thirteenth, fourteenth, and sixteenth holes she made 4, 4, 5, equaling men's par. Mrs. Colburn got the fifteenth hole, 400 yards, in 4, under men's par, while on the seventeenth hole, 395 yards, she got a par 5. Cards:

M'ELWEE ENTERS GOLF FINAL

MEETS WALTER KIRK TODAY

Carr Also Eliminated in Members' Tourney at Onwentsia.

Recovering from the slump he experienced in the qualifying round of the Onwentsia members' tournament, R. Harvey McElwee yesterday played true to form and in a finely fought match defeated Wallace C. Winter, 3 and 2, in the semi-final round of the main flight. Today he will meet Walter R. Kirk in the 36 hole final, the latter having defeated Clyde M. Carr, 5 and 4.

Although defeated, Mr. Winter demonstrated that his fine play of the previous rounds was not a passing spasm, as he negotiated a medal card of 79, forcing his experienced opponent to gather a 76 in order to win.

McElwee was fortunate in making a good start and taking the first two holes. He increased his lead to three at the fourth hole, but Winter won the next with a fine three, and par fours at the next two holes put him on even terms. McElwee won the eighth and ninth holes with par fours and was 2 up at the turn. They halved the next six holes. McElwee put his tee shot on the green at the "baby" hole and won, 3—4, this ending the match.

Cards of McElwee and Winter.

The cards follow:

McElwee—Out	4	3	4	4	4	5	5	4	4	—37
Winter—Out	5	4	4	5	3	4	4	5	5	—39

Kirk halved the first two holes of the match with Carr in 4, and then jumped into the lead at the long reservoir hole, winning, 4—5, one under par. He never relinquished this advantage. Kirk was 2 up at the turn, and won the eleventh and fourteenth holes. They played the bye holes for medal cards, as follows:

"The Best Play I Ever Saw."

Chicago—[To the Baseball Editor of The Tribune.]—As one of the old and ardent fans, I think the best play I ever saw was the first triple play made. There have been many since, but the inception and the first execution made it really great. It occurred during the early stages of professional ball, in the late '60s, I think. Chicago's first professional team was playing the celebrated Cincinnati Red Sox. Chicago was at the bat and had succeeded in getting three men on the bases with no one out. The batter knocked a high fly near third base. Watterman, who was playing that position, purposely dropped the ball, recovered it, touched the runner at third, stepped on the base and threw to second for the third out, putting one man out and forcing the other two. This is the first triple play recorded. At the time scarcely any of the players or spectators realized what had happened. In fact, the umpire had to have it explained to him.

[Such a play was possible before the present "infield fly" rule, which was framed to Editor.]

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each letter printed from fans describing "The Best Play I Ever Saw."

HARRY FORBES TO 'COME BACK'; MAY SIGN WITH JIMMY WALSH.

Former Bantamweight Champion to Make One More Attempt—Believes He Can Beat Younger Boxers.

Harry Forbes, former bantamweight champion of the world, is going to make one more attempt to "come back." Harry saw the six round contest between Jeff O'Connell and Danny Goodman at Aurora Thursday night and after the contest the promoters offered to hang up a purse for a six round bout between Harry and Jimmy Walsh, the English bantam.

This proposition and the passage of the boxing bill in Wisconsin has led Harry to believe he still is good enough to beat several fighters who are posing as first class bantams. Forbes has been giving boxing lessons at Nate Lewis' gymnasium since his retirement from the ring following his bouts with Johnny Coulon and Matty McCue.

"Doc" Krone has matched his heavyweight, Jack Hogan, against Jake Bernstein for a six round bout on July 27. The place has not been named.

Billy Walters, the naval station welterweight, has received an honorable discharge from the navy and will devote all his time to boxing.

M'CAREY WANTS TO SEE COULON

Los Angeles Promoter Invites Champion to Visit Coast and Recuperate —Plans Bout for Johnny.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 18.—[Special.]—Tom McCarey, boss of the Vernon arena, today invited Johnny Coulon of Chicago, holder of the bantamweight title, to come to Los Angeles to recuperate and get into condition to defend his crown. McCarey wants to know first hand, if Coulon is really sick, and therefore invited Johnny to come here and recuperate at the beach or mountains, acclimating himself so as to be in the best of shape for a Labor day or Thanksgiving day bout.

Denver, Colo., July 18.—[Special.]—Charley Scully of Chicago and Red Butler of Kansas City went ten rounds to a draw before the Colorado Boxing club tonight. Scully had the better of the first rounds, but Butler came back in the eighth and ninth and won a decision by landing several telling blows.

Lincoln Giants, 8; American Giants, 3.

CHICAGO ROWERS WIN TWICE

Honors Divided in Other Events of Peoria Regatta.

HOME EIGHT TAKES FEATURE

St. Louis Shells Collide in Four Oared Contest and Withdraw.

Peoria, Il., July 18.—[Special.]—Chicago oarsmen took two firsts in the opening races of the Southwestern Amateur Rowing association regatta today. Honors were well scattered among other crews. Of the seven events the Western Rowing club of St. Louis won one, Quincy Boat club one, Peoria Rowing club one, and the Century and Centrals of St. Louis one each.

The weather was perfect for rowing, only a light breeze blowing down the course. The events were not started until 4 o'clock. The largest crowd of the week witnessed the races.

The sensation of the day for the local crowds was the winning of the last event by the Peoria eight in better time than the winners of the Central States association rowed the distance two days ago. It is the first time in thirty-five years that a Peoria eight has shown in front.

Six crews started in the four oared scull shell event. Central of St. Louis led to the turn. The other crews were well bunched and in turning several attempted to get around the same buoy. The two Mound City crews collided, the No. 2 shell being badly damaged. Both crews were thrown out of the race. Quincy finished first, with Grand Rapids and the Century of St. Louis second and third. The race was protested and may be contested again tomorrow morning. Results:

Six oared barges, ¾ mile straightaway—Won by Western Rowing club, St. Louis; Mound City Rowing club, St. Louis, second; Century Boat club, St. Louis, third. Time, 4:03.

Single scull shells, ¾ mile and turn—Won by Greene, Lincoln Park Boat club, Chicago; Loehde, Lincoln Park Boat club, Chicago, second; Oestreicher, St. Louis Rowing club, third. Time, 11:50⅘.

Pair oared scull shells, ¾ mile and turn—Won by Buder and Luth, Century Boat club, St. Louis; Imboden and Toll, Mound City Rowing club, St. Louis, second; Bartsch and Vogler, Western Rowing club, St. Louis, third. Time, 10:56.

Single scull shells, open, half mile dash—Won by Floerke, Central Rowing club, St. Louis; Schopps, Grand Rapids Boat and Canoe club, second; Hohanadel, Lincoln Park Boat club, Chicago, third. Time, 1:19 2-5.

Four oared scull shells, ¾ mile and turn—Won by South Side Boat club, Quincy; Grand Rapids Boat and Canoe club, second; Century Boat club, St. Louis, third. Time, 9:37. Race protested.

Double scull shells, ¾ mile and turn—Won by Korf and Rehberger, Lincoln Park Boat club, Chicago; Schrieber and Koopman, Western Rowing club, St. Louis, second; Lindner and Schoppa, Grand Rapids Boat and Canoe club, withdrawn. Time, 10:35.

Eight oared shells, 1½ miles straightaway—Won by Peoria Canoe club; Central Rowing club, St. Louis, second; St. Louis Rowing club, withdrawn. Time, 7:08.

Rain Prevents Pittsburgh Trots.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 18.—A program calling for stake races with purses aggregating $19,000 was called off today when for the fourth time this week the Grand circuit meet had to be postponed on account of heavy track conditions. It was decided tonight, weather conditions permitting, to run off today's program tomorrow with an addition of two races, seven in all. This brings the prize money for tomorrow to $23,000.

NINE QUALIFY FOR NEW MOTOR CLUB

*First to capture spokes.

On completion of the two day run yesterday, from Chicago to Monmouth, Ill., and return, nine owner qualified for charter membership in the "Two Hundred" club. For keeping their motors running during the entire test of 200 miles on the return trip and finishing the strenuous grind in ten hours, E. C. Patterson, sponsor for the new organization, will present medals to the lucky members.

On the first day trip to Monmouth only two automobile owners qualified, but a knowledge of road conditions together with determination raised the number to nine on the second day's outing. The roads, although excellent most of the way, were like bunkers to some drivers in many places. To make scheduled time the pilots were forced to travel at a greater speed than twenty-five miles an hour.

Callender First to Return.

The first of the crew to enter Chicago was J. E. Callender in his Edwards-Knight. Callender drove a near perfect run the first day, only to lose his chance at the medal by carelessness. He was on the job every minute yesterday and led the crew with a perfect score.

Charles Barnum S. Hatch was the first man to win one of the double century medals and also a spoke to his wheel. Due to good driving and excellent assistance in changing tires, Hatch led the tired drivers into Monmouth Thursday night and was the first man to qualify for membership. He drove like a professional yesterday and with perfect coaching was able to win the spoke. R. O. Evans, another double winner, reached the city soon after Hatch and announced his second perfect score.

E. C. Patterson, originator of the nonmotor stop club and the donor of the medals, failed to qualify for membership in his own club on Thursday, but on the second day reported at night with no demerits. He will award himself a medal when he arrives at his office this morning.

Stewart Qualifies for Club.

G. Ross Stewart, who failed on the initial run because his speedometer broke and also because he refused to take a medal after Mr. Patterson had decided he had made the distance, brought back his car without a mark against it. Among those who still are candidates for membership are B. B. Ayers, J. E. Maguire, R. Farwell, and D. G. Joyce.

The heat during the two days bothered tourists greatly. Several pilots started before daylight and escaped the strenuous driving in the heat, but many were forced to stop by the road side to cool the occupants of the machines and the motors.

GOV. SPRY WELCOMES AUTOISTS

Hoosier Tourists Find People of Utah Most Hospitable of Trip—Hailstones Pelt Motorists.

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 18.—[Special.]—Accompanied by Gov. Spry of Utah the Hoosier motorists were welcomed into this city at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Their march across the state has been one not soon to be forgotten. Never in any other state have the people been so hospitable and so anxious to have the tour stop for a few moments. About fifteen miles from Salt Lake City rain clouds gathered over the Wasatch mountains, in whose valley the cars had been running all afternoon, and passed out a bountiful supply of moisture, mingled with a hard variety of hail stones.

Most of the tourists stopped and waited for the storm to blow over, only to find after traveling for a few miles that the storm had been a sectional one and that within two miles the road was deep in dust.

The tourists will remain in this city until Monday morning, when they will continue the journey to the coast.

HAYES TO DEFEND NET TITLE

Champion Survives in Singles of State Tourney.

PLAYS HEATH BYFORD TODAY

Waldner and Bowers Meet Defeat in the Semi-Final Matches.

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Walter Hayes, state champion, and Heath Byford, runner-up in last year's state tournament, will clash again in the finals of the Illinois state tennis championship this afternoon at the Wanderers' club.

In the doubles Byford and Burdick will meet the winner of the Hayes-Winston and Green-Forstall match, which was not completed yesterday on account of darkness. Each team won two sets and the western champions took three games of the fifth set.

After his near defeat by Gifford, Hayes came back yesterday and played all around Waidner, beating him in straight sets, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3. Waidner put up a plucky fight in each set, but had no chance against the kind of tennis the state champion was playing. Heath Byford also played brilliantly, defeating Bowers, who was considered a dark horse in the tournament, in straight sets, 6—2, 6—0, 6—1.

Byford-Burdick Team Wins.

Byford and Burdick showed the class of the tournament in the doubles. They defeated Wardner and Gardner three sets of four. There never was much doubt as to the final outcome. Burdick's playing especially brought the spectators to their feet again and again.

The thrills of the day were furnished by the Hayes-Winston and Green-Forstall match. Green and Forstall started off as if to smother the western champions, winning the first two sets in easy style, 6—1, 6—4.

Hayes and Winston came back strong in the third set and won, 6—4. In the fourth set each team won its serve up to the fifteenth game, when Green and Forstall by some brilliant team work broke the defense of the champions by applying their attack at Winston, who wabbled considerably.

In the sixteenth game they continued playing Winston and ran the score to 40 love in their favor. Their chances looked bright when Hayes drove a ball full speed into the net about two inches below the top. The ball by some freak break jumped to the top of the net, where it hung suspended for a moment and then dropped over safely, giving them their first point of the game.

Green Upset by "Break."

Green, who was serving, was so upset he smashed the next two balls into the net, and Hayes evened things up by a brilliant return of the next serve. From then on Hayes and Winston played all around their opponents, taking the set and the next two games. In the fifth set only three games had been completed when it became too dark to play. Scores:

MEN'S SINGLES.

Semi-finals—Hayes defeated Waldner, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3.

Byford defeated Bowers, 6—2, 6—0, 6—1.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

Semi-finals—Byford and Burdick defeated Waldner and Gardner, 6—3, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4.

Hayes and Winston vs. Green and Forstall, 1—6, 4—6, 6—4, 10—8, 3—0 [unfinished].

Race for City Title.

A ten mile race for the city championship, the longest contest of the season thus far, will be staged at Riverview motordrome tonight. Four stars will start, Wolter and Walklet of the "home" team of league motorcyclists and Caffarella and Verrill of the "road" team of riders.

'BOOKIES' PROSPER AS CHOICES LOSE

Biggest Crowd of Meeting Drops Large "Wad" on Races at Porter Track.

ONE FAVORITE IN FRONT.

Talent Jolted When Poor Ride by Robbins Beats Wood Dove; Cassowary Wins.

BY JACK PROCTOR.

The biggest crowd that has attended the race meeting at the Mineral Springs track at Porter saw the card of six races run of yesterday. The increase in patronage, of course, increased the speculation in the betting ring. The layers put in a most profitable day, as only one favorite managed to cop the winning end of a purse. The attendance was estimated at 1,200 persons, and the grandstand resembled days past at Hawthorne or Harlem.

Nags at fairly good prices carried off the majority of events, and the winners did not draw a heavy play from the talent. Cassowary, almost overlooked in the betting gathered in the purse in the fifth race at one mile, in which the hardest jolt was handed the wagering clan. No one had any idea that Wood Dove, the 3 to 5 favorite, could be beaten in the field of six that faced the starter, and accordingly the talent went to the filly strong.

The guess was correct, all right, but Jockey Robbins wasn't reckoned on. When the barrier went up Robbins was caught sound asleep and Wood Dove stood flat footed. Robbins set sail after the others, and turning into the stretch had Wood Dove in second place, the only horse in front being Cassowary. But the stiff drive to make up the lost ground had wearied Wood Dove, and Cassowary managed to stick in front to the finish, winning by a length.

Poor Ride Beats Pulsation.

The same jockey put another poor ride on Pulsation, a 4 to 1 shot, in the second race. Pulsation was tipped as a "good thing," and, although nearly left at the post, he picked up his field one by one and turned into the stretch in front by half a dozen lengths. When Connelly, on Clarionette, and Feeney, on Santeneca, started their rush for the wire, Robbins, by not letting his mount down, let both of them pass him. Santeneca took the place.

The only winning favorite was Steicliff in the opening dash at six furlongs. Ada Bay, choice in the third race, could do no better than third. Auto Maid, at 8 to 5, finished in the ruck in the fourth, which went to Casque at 5 to 2. The best Pedro, the 4 to 5 favorite in the last race, could do was second to Galley Slave, a 3 to 1 chance.

Nicol was the only jockey to take more than one race. He gathered in two brackets.

The jockey club officials announced they had failed to discover that Miss Nichols, winner of the sixth race on Thursday, was a "ringer." The investigation, however, has not been finished. The wagers made on the race will stand. Another protest was lodged against General, which finished second to Miss Nichols, and there is a possibility that Lady Nute, which ran third, may take the winning end of the purse, which is being withheld pending the investigation.

Summary of Races.

First race, 3 year olds and upward, ¾ mile—Steicliff, 113 [Steele], 6 to 5, won; Trojan Belle, 10[?] [Dominick], 5 to 2, second; June W., 113 [Winnans], 4 to 1, third. Time, 1:15 3-5. Darkey, Palma, and Sure On ran. Tony W. excused by starter.

VOLUME OF TRADE ABOVE FORECASTS

R. G. Dun & Co. Say in Review Hot Weather Business Exceeds Expectations.

STEEL INDUSTRY ACTIVE.

Crop Conditions Lend Encouragement; Bank Payments Run High.

Dun's Review, published today by R. G. Dun & Co., will say:

"Notwithstanding excessive heat in the east and the effects of the vacation period, there is less slowing down in business generally than looked for, and the activities sustain an aggregate comparing favorably with this time last year. The record of trading defaults shows slight increase, but the volume of solvent payments through the banks exhibits further gain and the markets for securities, although dull, reflect better tone in investment.

"New demands gathered more force in general merchandise and some branches of the industries. A gratifying development appeared in iron and steel, prices having steadied for furnace product, followed by more numerous inquiries for finished material.

Crop Conditions Encouraging.

"Agricultural conditions imparted strength to the outlook in manufacturing and production and distribution of crude and finished outputs are maintained at the highest level. The winter wheat harvest is virtually completed and the results exceed estimates early this month. Growing grains have derived much benefit from the ample rains this week and prospects became brighter for northwestern crops.

"Marketings of the breadstuffs disclose large gains over last year and the aggregate movements rose to nearly 2,000,000 bu daily. Heavy conversion of wheat into cash adds to the circulation of money at interior centers and there is now an expanding consumption of the necessaries and good buying of materials for farm use."

Bradstreet's Weekly Reports.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Bradstreet's State of Trade tomorrow will say:

"Trade is quiet as a whole, a condition usual at this season, but despite tariff uncertainty, which has tended to deepen of late, and high rates of money, the needs of nearly 100,000,000 people from day to day, with necessary provision for short distances ahead, make for a very fair volume in the aggregate. Best reports as to activity come from agricultural sections, while industrial centers, and particularly the east, return relatively the slowest advices."

Bank Statements of the Week.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Bradstreet's bank clearings report for the week ending July 17 shows an aggregate of $3,044,757,000, as against $2,537,-615,000 last week and $3,103,623,000 in the corresponding week last year.

CANVASS OF ILLINOIS BANKERS HITS CURRENCY REFORM BILL.

Only Ten Per Cent Indorse Measure in Replies to Senator Sherman—Political Domination Feared.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—[Special.]—Illinois bankers are opposed to the Owen-Glass currency bill now pending in the house of representatives.

Senator Sherman has received several hundred replies to the letter he addressed to the bankers of his state inquiring their opinion of the measure. Not more than 10 per cent of the replies express satisfaction with the bill.

The majority of the bankers say they are utterly opposed to the principal features of the proposed legislation. They object particularly to the provision for control of the banking system by political appointees.

Replies from about fifty of the 300 national banks in the state have been received. Nearly all say that national banks cannot live under the proposed currency system and will be compelled to become state institutions. Many suggest that national banks should be given the right to do a savings and trust business like state banks.

The branch bank also comes in for sharp criticism. One country banker said that if his institution should become a branch bank he would be transformed into a hired man for the magnate higher up.

A brief session of the Democrats of the house banking and currency committee today concluded consideration of that section of the administration currency bill relating to bank examiners. No material changes were made.

DRY GOODS BUSINESS SHOWS USUAL SUMMER FALLING OFF.

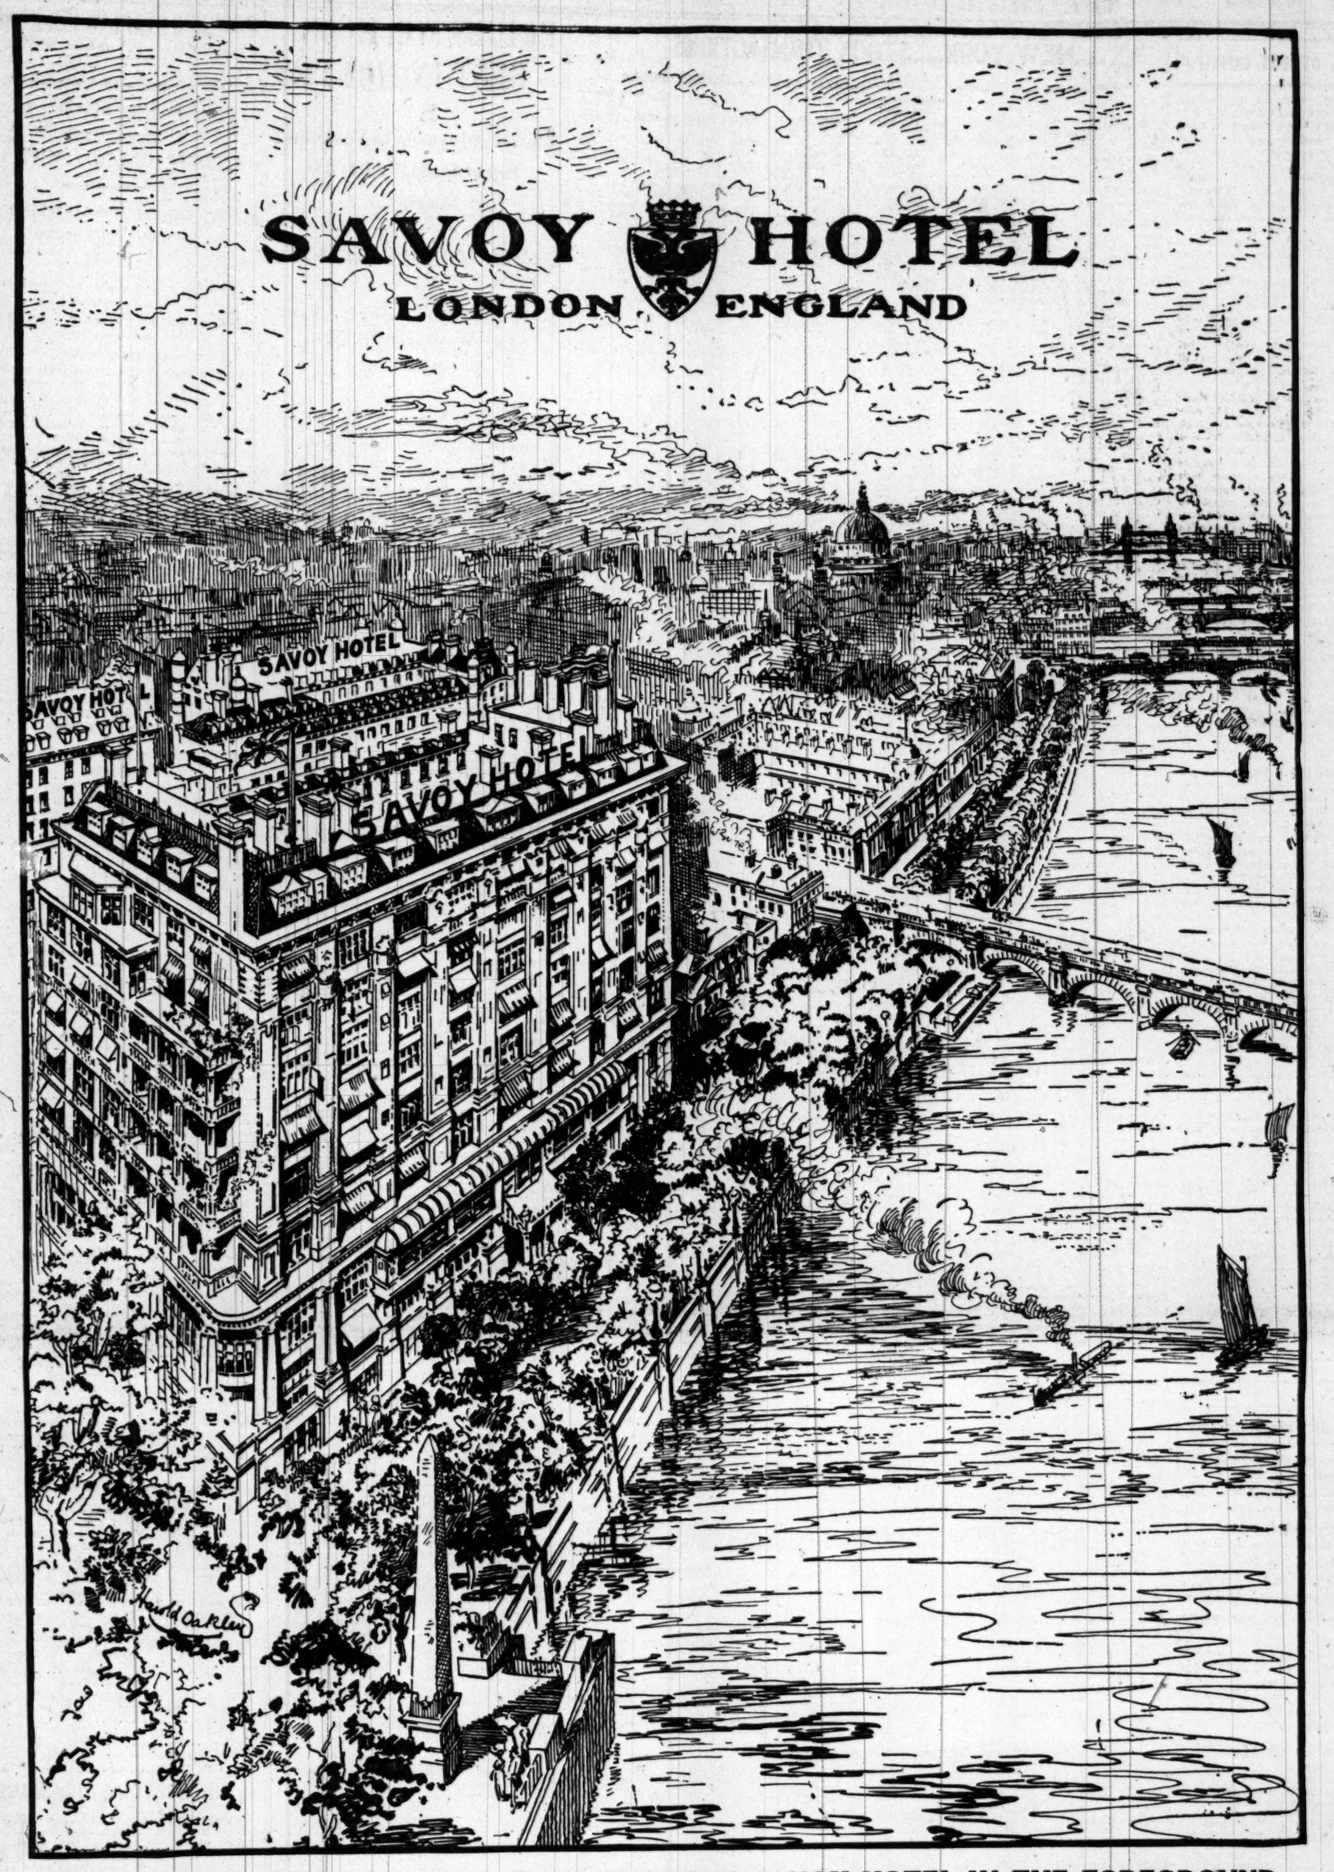

Marshall Field & Co. Says in Review Sales Are No Lower than Usual—Collections Above Normal.

Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the dry goods trade say:

"Distribution of merchandise in general shows the midsummer falling off, but in no way to a greater degree than is usual at this time of the year. Collections are somewhat better than normal. Merchants are taking advantage of the great open stock in this market. They are ordering week to week just what they need. This means a greater turnover to them and also makes for a sounder business condition.

"There is also a materially increased call for cotton lace flouncing in 17, 27, and 45 inch widths for dresses to be used over highly colored silks."

THE HOME OF AMERICAN VISITORS TO THE WORLD'S CAPITAL

"London is still crowded with "Americans, and most of the best "Hotels are full of these indefati- "gable sightseers. At the Savoy, "particularly, there is an unusual- "ly large number of beautifully "dressed American women. . . . . "Very conveniently situated for "sight-seeing both in the City and "the West End, it is easy to see "why the Savoy should always be "so well patronized by foreigners "as well as by distinguished Eng- "lish people. Quite a crowd of "passengers by the Baltic has "arrived there from the States dur- "ing the last few days."

"Savoy on Historic Site

"Hotel Now Stands Where Norman Castle Was Built in 1245.

"Few of the thousands of Americans who "annually occupy luxurious suites at the Savoy "Hotel on the Thames Embankment or sit in "the Greek and Renaissance restaurant over- "looking the river know that the building with "its thoroughly modern facades occupies the "site where once stood the castle built by the "Earl of Savoy and Richmond in 1245, which "played an important part in the parlous reign "of Henry III. and his war with the barons "headed by Simon de Montfort.

"Identity of location, however, is the only "thing the modern Savoy has in common with "the mediæval Norman castle. In place of "the ramparts, moat and drawbridge of the "past are Winter gardens and terraces, where "matter-of-fact Chicago elbows romantic Paris "and poetic Rome, with an environment that is "an artistic, harmonious blending in color and "design of various civilizations, in which, how- "ever, the French prevails.

"The contrasts of Helias and Siena in the "restaurant are not repeated elsewhere, for on "the parlor or second floor there is a pleasing "transition from room to room through the "epochs of the three Louis, in which an exact "reproduction of the boudoir in the Trianon of "Versailles has a conspicuous place."

THE SAVOY HOTEL

OCCUPIES THE MOST CENTRAL POSITION IN LONDON

BANK TO SAVOY (FIVE MINUTES)

"The advent of the motor car is responsible for many changes, and it "seems to have transferred a good deal of the City luncheon business to the "Savoy Restaurant. The fact that it only takes five minutes to motor from "the Bank of England to the Embankment entrance of the Savoy no doubt "accounts for the large number of City men one sees nowadays having "luncheon on the Savoy Balcony overlooking the Embankment Gardens "and the River Thames, where the discussion of business seems easier "under the influence of an after-luncheon cigar and a cup of coffee."

—From Financial News, London.

"There is no doubt that London in June has become the biggest "pleasure city in the world. The nationalities comprised in the multitude "that assembles nightly at the Savoy Restaurant for supper is a study in "itself. On Thursday nearly seven hundred were supping there. . . . . "On a hot day a meal on the Savoy Balcony is a memorable experience. "Throw the windows wide open, and while you fare sumptuously you "watch one of the wonder-sights of the world. That reach of the river "to Westminster is historic, and above the foliage of the trees rises Cleo- "patra's Needle. It is a pageant of history."

From The Evening Standard, London.

The comforts and luxury of the Savoy Hotel, its cuisine and service, combined with the most moderate charges, place it absolutely in the front rank of all hotels in Europe. The beautiful suites—with bathrooms attached—overlooking the River Thames and Embankment Gardens, away from the noise and bustle of street traffic, although in the center of London, are greatly appreciated by all European and American travelers.

EARNINGS OF S. P. SHOW GOOD GAIN

Report Shows Returns Equal to 9.52 Per Cent on Common Stock.

MADE DESPITE HANDICAP

Poor Sugar Cane and Citrus Crop and Rate Cuts Affect Showing.

The preliminary report of earnings of the Southern Pacific System for the year ended June 30, 1913, together with dividends on securities owned, shows earnings equal to about 9.52 per cent on the $272,672,405 outstanding common stock. This compares with 7.92 per cent for the previous year.

These earnings were shown despite losses of $1,100,000 from destruction of Louisiana sugar cane crops, $1,300,000 due to rate cuts by various commissions and losses estimated at $1,000,000 resulting from damage to citrus fruits last January.

Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the Southern Pacific executive committee, says of the condition of the lines:

"All our properties are in splendid condition and the present outlook in the territory served by our lines is such as to encourage hope of satisfactory earnings for the near future."

Shipbuilding Common.

Common stockholders of the American Shipbuilding company continue to be exercised over what may be the action of the directors with reference to the declaration of a dividend on the common stock. The board will meet the latter part of this month and thus far it is said Chairman W. L. Brown has declined to intimate what the board will do, saying that the full membership must determine the dividend policy.

So far as can be learned the minority common stockholders intend to take legal measures if necessary to determine whether the position of the company is such as to warrant a distribution on the common shares. The shareholders are in earnest in assuming this position, the board of directors may hesitate before pursuing a course that would lead to legal proceedings. As a general rule the credit of a company is not improved by having its business overhauled in the courts. The board therefore if it does not declare a dividend will probably make a clear statement of the reasons for its action.

Known Movements of Money.

Known movements of money for the week indicate the New York banks gained net in cash $2,788,377. They gained from the interior $8,321,377, but lost to the subtreasury, including $3,000,000 gold, $5,533,000.

International-Great Northern.

It is announced that the International and Great Northern's fiscal year, ended June 30, 1913, was a disappointing one. The company earned a surplus slightly over one-third of the surplus earned in the preceding nine and one-half months, from the discharge of the receiver to June 30, 1912.

Gross earnings in the fiscal year just closed were 8 per cent ahead of 1912. There was earned the euivaqlent of 5 per cent on the $3,400,000 preferred stock outstanding and about 2.2 per cent on the $6,500,000 common.

It is said the Mexican troubles had considerable to do with the unfavorable exhibit in the matter of net.

Dividends Declared.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad declared a quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent, payable Sept. 30 to stock of record Sept. 9.

The North American company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent, payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 15.

Financial News Notes.

The Utah Copper company's June production is reported to have been 11,637,949 lbs of copper, being the largest monthly outturn since operations at the mine and mill were interrupted by the strike last year.

All the $30,000,000 Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul general mortgage 4½ per cent bonds purchased by the syndicate headed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. have been sold.

The following securities were listed on the stock exchange: Louisville and Nashville railroad company, $4,500,000 additional Atlanta, Knoxville and Cincinnati 4 per cent gold bonds; Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway, $6,000,000 additional common stock.

Chicago Securities.

Sears-Roebuck common was unusually active on the local exchange and the price showed a net gain of 1⅜ points for the session. The buying and selling were general. The New York market was up, and this probably helped the local trading. Swift & Co. shares were active and steady at 104⅝. Series 2 certificates were active and firm. There is more general buying in this issue than at any time in months. The price holds up regardless of a large amount of profit taking. The impression is general that dividends on the certificates will begin next year.

Union Carbide was inclined to be weak, selling off to 162. There is neither news nor speculation in the shares at this time. Peoples Gas was firm, closing at 112. The buying was in small volume. In the bond department there was again a good demand for Commonwealth Edison 5s. Morris & Co. 4½s were quoted at 86½.

LATEST WALL STREET GOSSIP.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Gradually the wary investor is turning this way, said the broker today. The appeal of a list of plus signs along the right hand edge of the stock column in the evening paper is arousing interest. Uneasiness of the man who doesn't know whether to wait for one more big break or not is getting more acute. But whether the sharp rise of today, bringing prices to the best figures for a considerable number of days, is founded on fundamentals or not it is undoubted that Wall street in the last week is less of a gloom center.

Brokers will at least grant that there is a possibility that there is real value somewhere in securities. Not even less has been admitted up to date. The conservatives who try to analyze and reason on conditions looked at Steel, Union Pacific, Reading, and Copper today with their gains of nearly 2 points and felt that there must be something real back of it. They concluded that there was; that sounder money conditions are present, that the strain is not to be so great, even that there was some hope of possible moderation in government activities.

The criss-crossing processes of mind of these members of the committee on banking and currency at Washington who are gumshoeing through the currency bill for chances to find Wall street covertly lurking have reached the stage where their operations are highly amusing to bankers here quietly looking on. These members were again in the limelight today. Bankers appreciate the highly difficult task of those leading members of the committee who recognize the need of a currency bill based not on suspicion but on scientific principle in restraining the hunter of Wall street and checkmating his foolish moves.

The latest find of the radical was his method of doing Wall street out of a good thing by striking out of the proposed bill on Thursday the provision allowing banks to rediscount their direct obligations, which are based on stock exchange collateral.

"This," said the radical, "will fix Wall street further. The interests must not use our reserve banks to get money for their wicked speculation in stocks. This will discomfort them."

So they took away the privilege. Bankers laughed. Country banks are more anxious to lend money on stock exchange collateral than any other, when they have available funds outside of their own business needs.

The action of New Haven was curious. On the opening of the market it jumped 1¼ points above the previous closing. Advances carried it to 106½, a gain of 2 points. It declined to 105 at noon. Trading then practically stopped. The meeting of the board of directors was to resume at 1 o'clock. In the last hour of the market trading resumed with the sudden drop from the high prices of the morning of 4 points. The stock closed 2½ points below the closing of the day before.

The movement was erratic in the extreme. The Mellen resignation was a bullish factor turned into a bear argument on the stock as soon as the afternoon meeting had demonstrated the confidence of the directors in the ex-president and the president's belief in his ability as a benefit to the road. Stockholders registered their belief in the last hour of trading that a man of exceptional keenness and ability had been lost whose place would be difficult to fill.

When the $30,000,000 St. Paul bond was announced in April it was watched as a critical test of the market. The price of the original offering at 95½ was recognized as an unusually attractive figure on the gilt edged security in the mortgage. The offering was made in the belief that the stagnation in the security market could only be broken by meeting the public demand at a lower level of price to stimulate investment.

The offering of the St. Paul bonds in the first instance was judged a partial failure. Approximately only $23,000,000 of the bonds were sold. The announcement today, however, that all of the issue had been sold without any member of the large syndicate having expended a cent in taking over any part of it not subscribed was recognized as an extremely favorable indication of returning healthfulness in the security market.

The bankers were offered a price for the unsold portion of the issue after the first offering. They refused and instead increased the price of the remainder one-fouth of a point to 99¾. The completion of the sale today is adjudged a victory for the issue as having accomplished its purpose of stimulating a real investment demand. The bonds have been sold into solid hands, where they will stay permanently.

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, July 18.—The stock market has taken another turn for the better and today, apart from dullness in Kaffirs, most sections closed higher under bear covering. Consols gained a quarter of a point and Mexican and Chinese securities participated in the upward movement. Rio Tintos and Amalgamated Copper were the features in the speculative sections, Paris buying the former. American securities opened steady and a fraction higher. A downward movement followed and prices fell below parity, but the market rallied later on covering and New York support and closed steady. Money was in good supply and discount rates were firmer.

PRICES FOR HOGS BEST IN MONTHS

Market Advances 10 Cents and Top of $9.60 for Day Is Reached.

LAMBS CONTINUE SLUMP.

Values Decline 25 Cents; Sheep Also Weak; Cattle Figures Steady.

Hog prices at Chicago yesterday touched a new high mark for recent months at $9.60, showing a gain of 10c from Thursday's values. All the desirable offerings included in receipts of 14,000 head were taken at the full upturn and the average price for the day was advanced 11c to $9.30. Late in the session, however, buyers took a stand against paying full values for common, mixed packing hogs, and the market weakened, losing part of the early gain. Bulk of sales ranged from $9.15 to $9.45.

Lamb values continued their downward slide, sustaining a further loss of 25c. This brought prices to $1.00 lower than at the high time of the week. Sheep were steady to 15c lower for the day and showed a loss of 10@35c for the week. Native lambs topped at $7.75, and Montana wethers made $5.25.

There was little action in the market for cattle and prices remained without material change. Receipts were posted at only 1,500 head, which included few steers good enough to sell at higher than $8.00. Cows and heifers were weak to a shade lower, and calves held steady.

Imports of merchandise and dry goods for the week ended July 12 valued at $17,622,190.

PRODUCE STAPLES UNCHANGED

Trade Active and Steady; Retail Buying Liberal.

SHIPPING CALL IMPROVES.

Poultry Receipts Grow Lighter; Butter and Eggs Cleared.

An active, steady trade was transacted in produce at Chicago yesterday and prices of principal staples remained without change. Retailers were liberal buyers of all products and there was an improved shipping demand for potatoes, butter, eggs, and fancy fruits.

Receipts of poultry were lighter at 3 cars by freight and 800 coops by express. The trade was well supplied, as a result of the heavy arrivals earlier this week and prices were not advanced. Many of the dressers still have high costing spring chickens on hand and they are not in a position to profit by the low price recently enforced.

Cantaloupes and watermelons were slightly lower under increased arrivals, but they met with a broad inquiry. Berries sold at slightly improved values, while peaches were in lighter supply and firmer.

Receipts of butter were 12,497 tubs and of eggs 11,817 cases. The demand was good, especially for the better grades. Receipts of potatoes were reported at 40 cars and the market was firm at $2.75 a barrel.

NEW YORK STOCKS MAKE UP LOSSES

Forward Movement Resumed with Vigor; Upturn Best in Weeks.

CLOSE SLIGHTLY LOWER.

Buying for Foreign Accounts, Particularly by Paris, Chief Influence.

New York, July 18.—The forward movement in stocks was resumed today with vigor following the interruption yesterday of the advance which began several days ago. Trading was on a considerably larger scale and the rise was the most comprehensive of several weeks. Steel, Union Pacific, Reading, Canadian Pacific, Smelting, Harvester, and various other stocks mounted 2 points or more, with lesser gains for most of the remainder of the list.

While the close was below the best prices in some cases, owing to realizing sales, no serious inroads were made on the day's gains. More than one-fourth of the trading was in Steel, the keen demand for which apparently was due in large part to forced covering.

The course of the market illustrated the close connection now existing between conditions here and in foreign countries. London was a buyer of stocks here and Paris and Berlin also made purchases on direct orders.

Foreign Buying Near 20,000 Shares.

Arbitrage brokers estimated foreign buying at 20,000 or more shares, principally of Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, Steel, and Amalgamated. There were no important developments at home and the foreign influence was perhaps the most important factor. Private advices from the other side spoke of improvement, particularly at Paris.

The improvement here during the week for money of short term notes gave the impression of easier money conditions abroad, a change which is assumed to be responsible primarily for betterment of the European securities market.

So much stress has been laid on the depressing influence of this market condition abroad during the last year that any sign of recovery there is looked for eagerly. Movements of stocks here during the last few days have followed the European markets. Prices rose abroad on Wednesday and today, and an advance here followed. Yesterday's reaction in London was followed by a reaction here. In addition to the foreign buying brokers said that there was a better demand for investment stocks here today than had been the case for some time.

New Haven Stock Fluctuates.

The course of New Haven was watched closely, owing to the announcement over night of President Mellen's resignation. Traders who viewed this development as bullish bought the stock, marking up the price 2 points. Subsequently it fell off sharply, closing at a loss on the day of 2¼. New Haven 6s lost 1⅛.

Bonds were firm. Total sales, par value, $1,665,000. Panama 3s registered and coupon declined ¼ on call.

Money on call steady, 2¼@2½ per cent; last loan, 2¼; closing bid, 2; offered at 2¼. Time loans easier; 60 days, 4@4½ per cent; 90 days, 5@5½; six months, 6. Prime mercantile paper, 6 per cent. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at 4.8315 for 60 day bills and at 4.8650 for demand. Commercial bills, 4.83. Bar silver, 59⅝. Mexican dollars, 47. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds firm.

REPORTS OF RUST FRIGHTEN SHORTS

Wheat Advances Sharply on More Unfavorable Crop Advices from Northwest.

CROP REPORTS BULLISH.

No Adequate Relief in Drought Conditions in Southwest; Products Firm.

Black rust reports from South Dakota, with the market strength in coarse grains and the relative firmness of foreign markets helped lift wheat prices out of the speculative rut in which they have been for several days. Prices at the close yesterday were ¼@⅝c to ⅜@½c higher. Liverpool was ⅛d lower, and this with favorable weather conditions northwest gave prices a sharp setback right after the opening, but there was a good demand for all the wheat offered, and prices rallied immediately. Shorts were good buyers.

Logan-Bryan sold July and Armour and Bartlett-Frazier bought July. Chapin, Bartlett-Frazier, and local traders were fair buyers of the September. Armour sold September against the purchases of July.

Fair Weather Northwest.

Light showers were reported at a few points in the northwest. Generally fair conditions, with moderate temperature, existed on both sides the international line, the weather in western Canada being a little warmer. The black rust reports referred to come from east central South Dakota, Bryant, Willow Lake, and Yale reporting well defined black rust on the wheat fields. The Modern Miller report on winter wheat conditions was bearish, saying the quality of soft wheat was practically perfect. Hard winter yields were reported larger than expected.

The cash demand here was fair. Sales were 80,000 bu. Exporters differed as to the export inquiry, some saying there were good orders, while others reported the inquiry slow. A fair business seems to be under way every day.

Paris Mart Shows Strength.

Paris was ¼@1¼c higher with shorts active buyers. Antwerp was ⅝c lower, Berlin ¼c higher, and Budapest ¼c lower. Unfavorable crop conditions were reported in England, elsewhere few complaints being forwarded. World's shipments were estimated at 10,000,000 bu, of which this country and Canada furnished 3,600,000 bu; Argentina, 856,000 bu; India, 2,792,000 bu; and Australia, 712,000 bu. Moderate changes are expected in on passage stock.

Receipts here were 238 cars with 345 cars inspected yesterday. Receipts west aggregated 1,377,000 bu; last year, 883,000 bu. Northwest points had 161 cars, against 111 cars a year ago, and Winnipeg 101, against 212 cars. Clearances for wheat and flour for the day were 307,000 bu.

Corn Active and Higher.

Corn was active and strong. There was no change in the character of the news from the southwest in regard to the crop and the hot wave covered a wider area. Southwest markets were strong, and while there were rains reported early, late advices did not confirm the heavy precipitation claimed at many points. Prices broke here at the start, but rallied and closed ⅛@⅝c higher. Bartlett-Frazier, Lamson, Wagner, Geahart, and Ware-Leland were good buyers of corn. Selling was scattered. Receipts were 86 cars, with 85 cars the estimate for today. Western points had 293,000 bu, against 332,000 bu a year ago. Cash sales were 105,000 bu. Cables were ¼d off. Argentine shipments for the week were 4,224,000 bu, and from this country 250,000 bu. The forecast was for continued fair weather over the corn belt.

Shorts Buy Oats Freely.

Commission houses and shorts were good buyers of oats and there was a sharp advance, the market failing to break early in sympathy with other grains. Thrashing reports did not show any improvement. Prices were ½@⅝c higher at the finish. The cash demand was fair, and there were sales of 90,000 bu at ½c advance. Country sales continue light. Receipts here were 138 cars, with 124 cars the estimate for today. Western points received a total of 585,000 bu, against 233,000 bu a year ago.

Hog Products Are Strong.

Provisions scored moderate gains, the heavy profit taking on the advance easing the market a little from the best prices of the day. Receipts were less than expected at 15,500, and prices at the yards were 10c higher, the top being $9.60. Cash trade in both meats and lard is said to be good. Receipts were 64,300 in the west, with 57,600 the corresponding day last year. The local estimate for today was 10,000.

Rye Trade Inactive.

Rye was neglected and nominally steady at 62½c for No. 2. Receipts were 2 cars.

Barley was quiet at unchanged prices, with sales of malting at 52@57c; feed, 52c, and screenings, 33@45c. Receipts, 8 cars.

Timothy seed was quiet at $5.50 nominal for September and October and $3.75@4.75 for cash lots. Clover seed held firm at $14.50, sellers, for October and $8.00@15.00 for cash lots.

Duluth flax closed ⅞@1½c lower, with cash on track $1.38¾; July, $1.36½; September, $1.39¼; October, $1.39½. Receipts, 50 cars. Minneapolis was ⅛c lower, at $1.37¼ for cash on track. Receipts, 13 cars. Winnipeg closed 1@1⅛c lower, at $1.23¾ for July and $1.27⅞ for October. Receipts, 16 cars.

AMERICAN GRAIN MARKETS.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 18.—WHEAT—Market was strong. Shorts covered freely and pit offerings light. Hamlin, Clark and Beadle counties in South Dakota sent in reports of black rust. July closed ⅛@⅜c higher than yesterday; September, ⅛@⅛c higher, and December, ¼@⅜c higher. Local elevator stocks decreased 1,100,000 bu for the week. July opened 87⅛c, high 88⅛c, closed 87⅝@87⅝c. NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE.

A conservative Kansas City grain man wired Ware-Leland: "The drought, excessive heat, and chinch bugs are daily rendering less possibility of an average crop of corn in the southwest. In Kansas and Oklahoma many report the situation already beyond redemption, although a general rain would doubtless save much corn. Only rains of a local character have fallen in these states during the last six weeks. Now it is reported that the corn is tasseling and all authorities admit that continued drought and heat at that period of plant life would be fatal. That the seriousness of the drought situation is affecting pastures and all kinds of feed is suggested by the report of a Kansas City house that it has sold corn for shipment to central Kansas that would cost more on delivery than the country price of wheat, taking the grains pound for pound. With oats and other feeds short, there is assurance of a big demand for every bushel of corn that will be raised and high prices are likely to prevail during the coming year."

B. W. Snow wired from St. Louis: "Corn prospects along Illinois Central, Chicago to St. Louis, much mixed, but general average is poor. Kankakee to Farmer City, good. Thence to Springfield, spotted, and south of Springfield, distinctly poor. Plenty of moisture to Farmer City, but from there south alternate streaks of rain and drought. Tassel just beginning to show on few earliest fields, but growth will not average more than hip high, and south of Springfield there are thousands of acres not yet knee high. Hot weather has not yet done any material damage, but corn in the dry sections is curling and growth is checked. Viewed as a whole, the stand is poor, growth uneven, stalks small, but color good. Critical period comes with beginning of tasseling. Oats harvest begun. Best fields are below average. Bulk barely worth cutting and large acreage being cut for hay or pastured. The crop is poorest in years."

Indiana points reported yesterday that Philadelphia was bidding 2¼c over Chicago for wheat in the state, Baltimore 1⅝c over, New York 2¼c over, and Toledo 2⅜c over. This does not indicate that there will be much pressure of wheat from this territory, usually tributary to Chicago, at present at least. Omaha reported no wheat offering there, and acceptances here were generally small. The country was bid as high as it was before the decline in prices, without any wheat being bought. Local sales were light, however, so far as reported, but there were charters made for 600,000 bu wheat to go to Buffalo.

The first definite reports of black rust of the season were reported yesterday. Yale, Willow Lake, and Bryant, in east central South Dakota, reported black rust apparent in nearly all the fields in that vicinity, with weather conditions right for the rapid development of the plague. Black rust is present more or less every year, but usually with normal growing conditions losses from it are not heavy. This year the crop is late, and the chances are that there will be a good many reports the next few weeks claiming rust damage.

Heavy rains were reported at a number of points in Kansas and Nebraska, but late advices from Kansas City said that no confirmation had been received of these rains except at a few points and that the Postal Telegraph company manager did not know anything about them. The official map showed but little rain anywhere in the corn belt, North Platte, however, having 1.14 inches. Reports during the day indicated weather conditions still hot and dry, with temperatures again over the 100 mark at many points in Kansas. Predictions were for continued fair weather with but little change in temperatures.

"Prospects in Minnesota for an abundant harvest of all grains are excellent, according to Dean A. F. Woods of Minnesota State university. "I do not believe that the crops in this state have been injured by the recent rains," said Dean Woods, "and in my opinion there is little or no danger of black rust. There have been reports of 'scab' grain, but only in one locality. I think that the crop yield as a whole will average up about the same as it did last year. Corn, on the other hand, will be much better."

Cash corn was in fair demand and prices were about ¼@½c higher. Outside cash markets were firm. Country offerings were moderate as a rule at all markets, and Kansas City reported a continuation of the good demand. Oats were ¼@½c higher. The shipping demand was fair and there were sales of 105,000 bu corn and 90,000 bu oats. Wheat sales were 80,000 bu for shipment and 200,000 bu to go to store.

Chapin had the following from Lyle: "From Carmi to St. Louis the country is very dry; corn is average promise in the poor counties on route and very good near St. Louis; not much yet in tassel and not yet taking damage from heat; color good, showed some distress in today's heat; wheat a big crop and fields nearly all cleaned up, are thrashed or stacked; farmers scraping out fields and getting some feed."

Bradstreet's reported exports of wheat and flour from both coasts this week at 3,500,000 bu, a decrease of 1,578,000 bu. Corn exports were placed at 226,000 bu, increasing 194,000 bu. Comparative totals follow:

A Baltimore exporter wired: "Looks sure to me your market must take care of Nebraska wheat, as Atlantic ports cannot compete with cheap sales Oklahoma and southern Kansas No. 2 hard. We may be in the running in September, but hardly before."

Kansas City wired, quoting Prof. Cottrell, agricultural commissioner of the Rock Island: "Corn has been cut 50 per cent by dry weather from Herington, Kas., south to Fort Worth, Tex. Thrashing returns on oats show small yields."

"Pit farmers say hot weather when corn is tasseling kills the crop," says Harvey S. Williams, "but for the last few centuries corn has tasseled in July and August, the hottest two months of the year. What is the answer?"

A Topeka message to Bennett said: "Some farmers say corn fair condition, others say burnt in spots. Temperature today 94. In our opinion corn can stand but a few days more hot weather without rain."

Indian shipments of wheat this week were 2,792,000 bu, against 2,672,000 bu last week and 2,832,000 bu a year ago. Australian shipments were 712,000 bu, against 1,072,000 bu last week and 440,000 bu last year.

World's shipments were estimated at 10,000,000 bu wheat. Last year total exports for the week were 10,672,000 bu. Broomhall predicts there will be a moderate change in on passage stocks.

France was reported a good buyer of wheat yesterday, and the demand from the continent was generally good, according to Broomhall. Paris was ¼@1¼c higher.

William Mills has made application for membership on the board of trade and a membership has been posted for transfer by the estate of James P. Taylor.

Slaughter had an English cable saying political conditions involving Austria and Russia were feared, and that crop reports in England were bad.

Private cable advices from Argentina said there were favorable prospects for wheat generally, but that in some sections rain was needed.

The official forecast of sixty-three governments in Russia and in Europe show an increase of 13.6 per cent in the yield of winter wheat.

Deliveries on July contracts were 125,000 bu wheat; 25,000 bu corn; 100,000 bu oats; 250 tierces lard, and 150,000 lbs of short ribs.

Bids on the call for wheat to arrive were ⅛@⅜c higher; corn, ¼@⅞c higher; oats, ¼@1c higher; rye, steady to ¼c higher.

Estimated receipts for today: Wheat, 345 cars; corn 85 cars; oats, 124 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 8 cars; hogs, 10,000 head.

Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 1,100,000 bu for the week. Duluth stocks decreased 446,000 bu up to Thursday night.

LEHMANNS PLAN $750,000 FLATS

Edward J. and Otto W. Pay $65,000 for Site at Sheridan Road and Byron.

QUITCLAIM ON RECORD.

Ursula G. Grace Gets Property at 357-59 River Street from Chicago Title & Trust.

An important deal has been closed on Sheridan road, at the southwest corner Byron street involving, it is understood, the erection of an extra high grade apartment building to cost probably in the neighborhood of $750,000.

The land in the deal is at the point where Byron street becomes Sheridan road and has a total frontage of 287 feet on the two streets. It also faces 224 feet on Grace street and has rear dimensions of 233 feet. It was purchased by Edward J. and Otto W. Lehmann, of the Fair, from E. T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia banker. S. W. Winefield & Co. were the brokers.

Consideration Put at $65,000.

The consideration is withheld, but it is understood to have been around $65,000. The property was placed under contract of sale to the late Joseph Theurer of the Peter Schoenhofen Brewing company prior to his death, which contract later was sold to the Lehmanns. E. A. Manger of Edward E. Hamer & Co. and Thomas Tagney were the brokers in the original deal, in which Mr. Theurer was interested.

It is stated that Mr. Theurer planned to erect a ten or twelve story fireproof apartment building to cover the lot, each apartment to contain from ten to fifteen rooms, and it is understood the Lehmanns probably will carry out this plan.

Quitclaim Filed.

There was filed for record a quitclaim by the Chicago Title and Trust company to Ursula G. Grace of the property at 357-59 River street, northwest front, 32x100 feet, between East South Water street and the Chicago river, with four story brick building. The consideration is given as $2,780 and other good and valuable consideration. The board of review valued the property at $44,030.

The Merle & Heaney Manufacturing company has sold to the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company the property in Union place, 166 feet southwest of Twenty-second street, 75x120 feet, northwest front, with brick factory improvements, for $40,000.

Murray Wolbach has sold to Mary G. Brailsford the apartment house property in Windsor avenue, 142 feet west of Hazel avenue, with 50x93¾ feet of ground, north front, for $25,000.

Sale in West Lake Street.

William A. Perkins has sold to the Haines company the property in West Lake street, 225 feet east of Robey street, 74x125 feet, north front, with business improvements, for $20,000.

The property at the northwest corner of Halsted and Sixty-second streets, 50x124 feet, east front, with store and flat improvements, has been sold by Barbara Gerber to Mary M. Josenhaus et al., consideration nominal.

The property at the southeast corner of Hoyne avenue and Flournoy street, 129x91 feet, with flat improvements, has been sold by Hannah Wells to Elizabeth Caddy, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $13,000.

Joseph W. Young has purchased from John C. Griffin a tract of about five acres at the northeast corner of Fortieth and Archer avenues, this being the fourth acre tract he recently has purchased in this neighborhood, all of which will be subdivided at once and known as the Murdock, James & Co. Archer addition.

Alfred H. Gross has sold to Richard T. Davis the residence property at 1106 Oak avenue, Evanston, near Greenleaf avenue, for $10,000. The lot is 50x125 feet and the building is of unique design, the dining room having a floor constructed of tiles imported from Holland. W. A. Pridmore was the broker.
